THE SLUG PEST.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

That a hard winter minimises slug troubles is another fine theory which experience teaches to be foolish in fact. We have just seen a slug-infested rockery with half the plants grazed down, and it is just a question at the moment if anything will be left. Needless to say, the slugs, little slimy things, either black or white, find a happy home in rockwork and hunting down this smallest of small game is a sheer impossibility. However, we advise our friend to seek relief in lime—that is, lime water, using a saturated solution clear, that is as much lime as the water will operate on chemically, as a given quantity of water will only absorb a certain amount of the caustic virtues, and a thorough drenching of the well-skimmed, clear liquid will prove another story for these "varmint" forthwith.

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

INSECT FOOD.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

The change from cold, dry weather has brought about sweeter herbage and more insect food. This is very welcome, as the scarcity of this natural food is a more serious matter for chickens than for adult birds. Frequently there is a set-back in the growth of the half-grown youngsters because they are not obtaining sufficient food of this description, especially if they are confined to a limited area. They feel their surroundings have become stale and unsatisfying, and they mope about, lose their appetite, and show a lack of interest in life. That is so different from what they should be that, when noticed, this condition should be remedied at once. A change to fresh ground will act like magic, and is all the physic they need; but if the rearing ground is deficient in the supply of insect life, green food substitutes must be provided, for chickens cannot be reared in a healthy and vigorous condition without a full supply of these ingredients. If there are no insects, meat must be given in the feeding—about one-fifth of the soft mash, and plenty of fresh green food

IS VICO BATHING PLACE DANGEROUS?

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST.

Dr. Brennan yesterday held an inquest on the body of Daniel Patrick Mahoney (18½), who was drowned last Saturday near Vico bathing place, Dalkey.

Captain J. P. Mahoney, 11 St. Claire Park, Dundrum, said that his son was a clerk in Messrs. Lever Brothers. He was a good swimmer.

Captain Mahoney added that if there had been a notice "Dangerous" at the Vico bathing place, his son never would have gone in. He always went to Blackrock. If witness had known that his son was going to Dalkey, he would have warned him, because he knew Dalkey very well. His boy would have been alive to-day if he had seen a danger notice. He only mentioned this in the interest of other fathers, and made no complaint.

Arthur Curtis, 43 Lower Sherrard street, Dublin, said that he accompanied the deceased boy to Dalkey. Mahoney went down to the bathing place. He stood about five minutes before he got in, because he did not know where to dive off. He dived in and swam out strongly for about ten yards. He then turned to come back. He came in a couple of yards, when the back-wash caught him.

RESCUE EFFORTS.

He started to come in again, and then cried for help. The witness tried to make a line with his trousers to reach the deceased boy, but the water dragged him away. Witness ran for help, and when he returned there was no sign of Daniel Mahoney.

In reply to the Coroner, the witness said that there were neither notices nor a life-buoy there. The witness could not swim.

In reply to Mr. G. L. Howe (for Dalkey Urban Council), the witness said that there was no diving board there. He did not know that the absence of the board meant that the season was not open. He had not heard of the yachting accidents that day. It was the deceased boy's first bathe this year. The accident might have been caused owing to a sudden cramp, due to the coldness of the water.

DANGEROUS CURRENTS.

James Hammond, fisherman, said that, from forty-eight years' experience, he thought Vico, owing to the currents, was the most dangerous place on the coast. If the deceased boy had known the place he could have swum twenty yards south, where he could have walked ashore. Even if a life-buoy had been thrown the deceased boy still might have been dashed to pieces against the rocks.

In reply to Mr. Howe, the witness said that the currents always swept away from the bathing place. Thousands of people bathed there every year. It was seventeen years since there was a bathing accident at Vico. There were people bathing there last Christmas. The currents did not hit the bathing place.

Dr. J. P. O'Connor said that, in his opinion, death was due to suffocation by drowning. There were a few ante-mortem marks of injury on the head, which might have been caused by the deceased boy being thrown against the rocks. It was safe for a man to go bathing two hours after food. There was no evidence of cramps.

Dr. O'Connor also said that, if a man got cramps in the water, he would go down straight away. He had had experience of a backwash. One was very easily suffocated in a backwash and rendered helpless.

Dr. O'Connor asked why the notice leading to the bathing place was kept up during the non-bathing season.

THE BATHING SEASON.

The Chairman of the Dalkey Urban Council (Mr. John Maguire) said that Vico Park was the property of the Council, and usually was a safe bathing place. At the commencement of the bathing season (June 1st) the Council erected a diving board, life-buoys and lines for the use of bathers. One of the Council's staff visited the place every morning and inspected the life-saving apparatus. Last Saturday was a very stormy day, dangerous for bathing, even for expert swimmers.

"Lifebuoys," he said, "have been smashed and stolen from the place." In consequence of this, the Council had erected notices beside the buoys with the words, "You protect me and I will protect you." The Council wished to express its deep regret at the tragedy, and offer its sincere sympathy to the deceased boy's family.

The Coroner, who expressed sympathy with Captain Mahoney, returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence. He said that it was a matter for the Urban Council to say whether a notice should not be put up during the close season. It was a terrible thing that lifebuoys should be stolen. He thought that the notice, "Gentlemen's Bathing Place," should be removed in the close season.

Mr. Maguire—We will get that done.

HOMES FOR BOARDED-OUT CHILDREN.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT OF POOR LAW.

Accommodation for boarded-out children was one of the subjects discussed at the annual meeting of the Nursery Rescue and Protestant Children's Aid Society, held at 89 Merrion square, Dublin, yesterday, by invitation of Mrs. H. T. Bewley.

Speaking of the report of the Poor Law Commission and the amendments proposed by the Rathdown Board of Guardians to the 1908 Act, and sent to the Minister for consideration, Mrs. Noel Guinness, who presided, said—I understand that the Minister more or less promised to embody these amendments in his bill. This Society, I believe, did not approve of two of these amendments, and of one of them I particularly want to speak—that all persons taking in nurse children shall have a certificate granted by the local authorities sanctioning them as fit and proper persons to take charge of children and their homes and premises clean and healthy. Your objection to that resolution was, I believe, founded on the fact that as it is it is terribly difficult to find women to take in children; that respectable nurses dislike the idea of inspection by the local authorities.

Her own idea of the way to increase the supply of women on the lists was to improve the status of the foster-mothers. A woman holding a certificate sanctioning her as a fit and proper person to take in children should be able to hold her head high amongst her neighbours. They might follow the example of France, where foster-mothers were given a small monetary award if they had undertaken the nursing of children satisfactorily for ten years. There were many splendid and devoted women who cared for children with the utmost self-sacrifice and turned them out a credit; by pointing to these women they might urge others to come forward in greater numbers.

Miss Bond, hon. secretary, read the report of the year's work, which stated that twelve babies had been received at the home at 8 Lower Leeson street. There are now forty-six in the care of the Society.

Miss Moore, hon. treasurer, stated that the total receipts, including balance from the previous year, amounted to £1,044 3s. 6d., and the total expenditure £848 4s. 1d.

"I do not think we as a Church are doing half enough to help the work of the Society officially," the Rev. John Powell said, speaking on the report. "There might be clergy who know of mothers of small families or with no children who would be prepared to come forward. If your needs were more generally known by the clergy and by the lay members of the Synod, you might reasonably expect to get more help and more financial support."

With regard to girls charged with infanticide, Mr. Powell suggested that publication of their names ought to be avoided in the case of first offences, and that first offenders should be tried in camera.

SHEEP-DIPPING IN COUNTY LONGFORD.

PUBLIC BATHS RUN AT A LOSS.

Because public sheep-dipping baths under the scheme showed a loss of £89 a year, Longford County Council refused to adopt the scheme again. Two inspectors, Messrs. H. Gilnagh and F. Kenny, were appointed by the Council at a salary of £15 each to supervise sheep-dipping in the county.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

DRINK BLAMED.

(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

Michael Barry, a young man who had been employed as a bank clerk in Warrenpoint, County Down, was charged by Detective Inspector Patrick O'Connell with obtaining £7 10s. from Mr. Philip Meagher, licensed vintner, Sandford House, Ranelagh, last October by means of worthless cheques.

Mr. P. H. O'Brien, solicitor, defended.

Mr. Meagher stated that he knew the defendant, and cashed three cheques on various dates in last October. All the cheques were returned, marked "No account."

In reply to the Justice, witness said that he kept on cashing the cheques, as he believed the defendant's credit was good.

Mr. O'Brien—And since then you have received your money in full?—That is so.

The Justice—Who has done the paying up?

Mr. O'Brien—His relatives.

Detective McGillian deposed to taking over the defendant from the Civic Guard at Limerick on the previous afternoon, and bringing him to Dublin. He had a warrant signed by District Justice Little.

Inspector O'Connell stated that when the defendant was charged at Pearse street he said: "I will make no statement until I see my solicitor in the morning." He made a similar reply when the charge was read over to him at the Bridewell.

The Inspector asked for a remand, as there were other charges to be preferred against the defendant.

Mr. O'Brien said that all the money involved in those extra charges had been paid up.

The Justice had decided to remand the case to Thursday on a bail of £50, but on being assured that all the money had been paid up he decided to deal with it then.

Mr. O'Brien said that his client had been employed in a bank in Warrenpoint, and unfortunately had given way to drink, with the result that he had issued the cheques in question. When his people heard about his downfall they paid up in such a thorough manner that all the money obtained by the defendant in October was paid up by December, and no one now was at a loss.

The Justice bound Barry over in a sum of £20, to come up for sentence if called upon within twelve months.

STANDARD CHARGES FOR GOODS TRAFFIC.

IRISH RAILWAY TRIBUNAL'S SITTING.

The Court of the Irish Railway Tribunal, consisting of Judge O'Brien (Chairman) and Messrs. J. R. Kerr, C.E., and H. Mangan, sat in the City Hall, Dublin, yesterday to consider amended schedules of proposed standard charges, submitted by the Great Southern Railways Company, and to hear objections thereto.

Mr. E. J. Phelps, K.C., and Mr. E. J. Kelly (instructed by Mr. McDonald, solicitor) appeared for the railway company; Mr. John Ingram represented the Department of Industry and Commerce; Mr. F. W. Manning appeared on behalf of Messrs. Arthur Guinness, Son, and Co.; Mr. E. W. Selfe represented the Railway Traders' Committee.

Mr. Hanrahan, assistant to the traffic manager, Great Southern Railways, gave evidence. He produced a large volume of statistics governing various classes of traffic, with charges for specified distances.

The charges now submitted for consideration by the Tribunal were virtually the existing charges standardised, subject to the classification already determined by that authority.

Among the questions dealt with by the witness in his evidence, which was of a technical nature, was that of continuance of the existing practice of carrying live-stock at reduced scales where the owners assisted in loading and unloading.

The Tribunal adjourned until 12 o'clock to-day.

CLERICAL MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Dublin Provincial Council of the Clerical Managers' Association held its annual meeting in Dublin yesterday. The Very Rev. Cornelius MacNamara, D.D., Castlecomer, was in the chair. Other members present were:—The Right Rev. Monsignor Delany, P.P., Rathvilly; the Very Rev. James Rossiter, P.P., Ferns; Very Rev. Laurence Brophy, P.P., Newbridge; the Rev. Michael Murphy, C.C., and the Rev. Canon Waters, Honorary Secretary. Matters of great importance to the clerical managers were under consideration and decisions come to, which Canon Waters was ordered to report to the Secretary of the Central Council.

RELIGION AND SOCIAL PRINCIPLES.

LECTURE AT WATERFORD.

In the course of a lecture on "Catholic Social Principles," delivered in Waterford Town Hall, the Rev. J. Kelleher, Professor at St. John College, Waterford, said that it might appear strange that in this, which is in so many respects the most genuinely Catholic country in the world, there should be not only practical disregard for Catholic social principles, but general ignorance of their very existence.

That had its explanation. By heroic endurance and through special providence of the Almighty, their forefathers had been able to preserve the substance of the Catholic faith; but loss of property, of economic independence and of social influence was part of the sacrifice they had to make for religious fidelity. Social and economic conditions altogether alien to their religion were imposed on them.

Since the storm of persecution was over, and the Catholics of this country began slowly and laboriously to get back to their own, they had of necessity to conform to the order which they found in existence. Even if they had wished it, they could not change that order; but they did not even wish it, because they had no practical acquaintance with any other order.

Though Catholic teaching might not solve outstanding social problems, such as housing and unemployment, it would at least show what individual duty was in regard to them.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

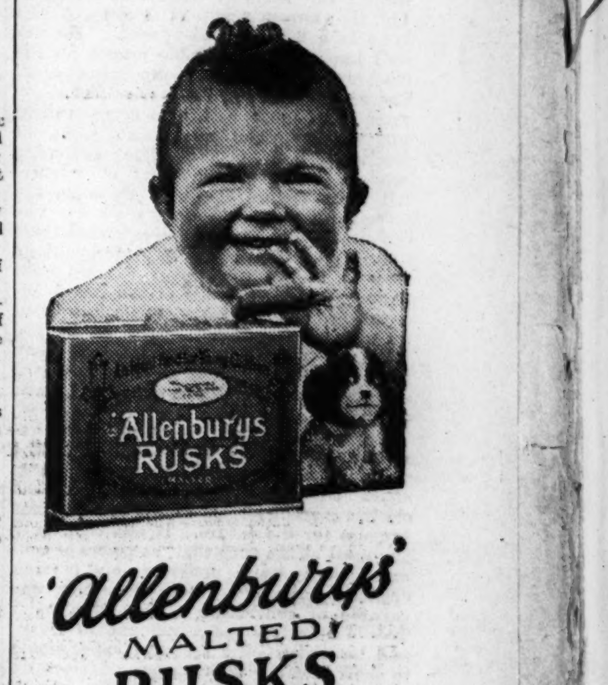

MAINTENANCE OF CHILDREN.

Longford County Council at its quarterly meeting passed a resolution to the effect that the amount contributed by parents and guardians of children who were committed to industrial schools be allowed in relief of the maintenance of these children, and that the T.D.'s for the constituency be asked to see that the matter is attended to in a new bill which, it was stated, is soon to be introduced in the Dail.

The County Council agitated some time ago for a reduction in the charges for children's maintenance in the industrial schools, and the schools refused to accept children at the reduced rates, with the result that the County Council resumed payment of the rate of 5s. per head per week. The State contributes a similar sum, and the amounts paid by parents and guardians, in the opinion of the Council, should be put to the relief of the rates instead of being paid to the State.

The Chairman (Mr. Garahan), in reply to a member, said that the cost to the county in respect of children committed to industrial schools is now £1,600 per annum

A meeting of the Royal Society of Antiquaries was held yesterday at 63 Merrion square, Dublin. The President, Dr. W. F. Butler, read a paper on "The Descendants of James, ninth of Ormond." Dr. Adolf Mahr gave an account of the proceedings of the Archæological Congress recently held in Germany, and Mr. C. Dudley Palmer exhibited a keg of butter found lately near Edenderry six feet down from the surface of a bog by a man who was cutting turf.

SIR HUMPHRY DAVY.

A BENEFACTOR OF HUMANITY.

(By "J. S. S.")

ON the 29th May, 1829, died Sir Humphry Davy, one of the greatest chemists who ever lived. He was born in 1778, somewhere in Cornwall, and grew up to be a bright, curly-haired, awkward boy, who was in much demand by his schoolfellows for writing their Latin compositions, and by the love-sick youths of the village for writing their valentines and letters. In general, he was distinguished more for his out of school activities than for his devotion to learning.

His father's death, when the lad was sixteen, seems to have changed his whole outlook on life. Within a few weeks he was apprenticed to an apothecary practising in Penzance, and had mapped out for himself a course of study which, for the number and variety of subjects proposed, is probably unequalled by any. Here is his list:—Theology, Geography, My Profession (Botany, Pharmacy, etc), Logic, Languages (English, French, Latin, Greek, Italian, Spanish, Hebrew), Physics, Mechanics, Rhetoric and Oratory, History and Chronology, Mathematics. Remarkable as it may seem, Davy persevered with this formidable programme with a determination totally unexpected in a young man of such easy-going disposition. When his study had made him acquainted with the elements of physics and chemistry, as they then existed, he began to speculate and to make experiments for himself. He sent a paper, containing some original contributions to the study of heat and light, to a Dr. Beddoes, who was at that time founding the Pneumatic Institution at Bristol, in which he hoped to examine the medicinal properties of the gases; and this paper eventually led to Davy's appointment in 1798 to take charge of the laboratory there.

LAUGHING GAS.

He was soon at work on the gases. He found a method of purifying nitrous oxide (now used as an anæsthetic by dentists), which had been discovered by Priestley in 1772, and, having inhaled sixteen quarts of it, he described its effect thus:—"This gas raised my pulse upwards of twenty strokes, made me dance about the laboratory as a madman, and has kept my spirits in a glow ever since." Davy, at this time, had a large circle of friends about Bristol, including Southey, Coleridge, Tobin and the two Edgeworths, whom he induced to breathe the gas and record their sensations. Such a galaxy could not but make Davy and his discovery famous, and "laughing-gas" threatened to oust alcohol from its position as a dispenser of intoxicating gaiety among the fashionable people of England. At the same time, Davy continued to study the physiological properties of the gas, and he published a volume which dealt mainly with the chemistry of oxides of nitrogen in general, and laughing gas in particular. His success with nitrous oxide led him to try the effect of inhaling other gases. The experiment nearly led to fatal results, and he was obliged to take a holiday in Cornwall.

Meanwhile, the Royal Institution had been founded in London by Count Rumford "for diffusing the knowledge and facilitating the general and speedy introduction of new and useful mechanical inventions and improvements; and also for teaching, by regular courses of philosophical lectures and experiments, the applications of the new discoveries in science to the improvement of arts and manufactures, and in facilitating the means of procuring the comforts and conveniences of life." Davy was invited by Rumford to come there as assistant Lecturer in Chemistry and Director of the Laboratory, with the prospect of becoming sole Professor of Chemistry. He left the Pneumatic Institution and came to London in March, 1801. He delivered his first lecture in April before a very distinguished audience, and made such a favourable impression that he was promoted to the position of Lecturer in Chemistry in June. In July he was commissioned by the managers of the Institution to give a series of lectures on the "Chemical Principles of the Art of Tanning"—a commission which he accepted, although he had never entered a tannery. The lectures were given in the following winter with much success.

ELECTROLYSIS.

The Royal Institution did not at first receive the measure of success which was anticipated for it. Rumford's management was unpopular; powerful friends withdrew, and the subscriptions fell at an alarming rate. Davy, a young man of twenty-three, changed all this in one day. He delivered the inaugural lecture of the session in January, 1802, and took as his subject the value of science as an agent for the improvement of society. His fame as a lecturer had spread. He was well known in fashionable circles for his discovery of "pleasure-producing air." The recent scientific discoveries had given promise of great things to come, which, up to then, had shown no signs of fruition; and people were becoming anxious to know something of science. All these factors conspired to make the occasion proper, and Davy's success was complete. Wealthy friends extended their patronage and their purses; subscriptions soared; Davy's subsequent lectures were packed, and the success of the Royal Institution was assured. When Rumford severed his connection with it in the following year the Institution broke away from his views, and became the scene of some of the most brilliant triumphs of men of science.

Davy now turned his attention to experimental work. The invention of the voltaic pile and the discovery that water could be decomposed by means of the electric current seemed to him to hold great promise for the future. It was commonly supposed at the time that, as traces of acid and alkali were produced on passing electricity through water, electricity was capable of generating acids and alkalis. This conclusion was repugnant to Davy, and he undertook a series of experiments to show that it was erroneous. He proved conclusively that the substances which were found came not from the water or the electricity, but from faulty purification of the water, the presence of salt in the air, the solvent action of water on the walls of the vessel containing it, etc. This piece of work is now considered to be one of the classics of science.

TEACHER OF FARADAY.

Davy saw from the start that there was a close connection between electricity and chemistry. He proceeded to exhibit the relation, and, in doing so, he did what was probably the most valuable of all his work—he laid the foundations of electro-chemistry and paved the way for the work of Faraday. In the course of his investigations he isolated potassium, sodium and magnesium—three metals with remarkable properties. Sodium and potassium interact violently with water, and must be kept in naphtha. Magnesium is remarkable for the brilliant flame with which it burns; it is now used by photographers in taking "flashlight" photographs.

The doctrine propounded by Lavoisier, that all acids contain oxygen, seemed untenable to Davy, and he was now in a position to investigate it. He took muriatic acid and proved conclusively that it contains no oxygen, but is a compound of hydrogen and chlorine. This name he bestowed upon it himself, as a protest against the prevailing term, "oxymuriatic acid"; for, he says, "to call a body which is not known to contain oxygen and which cannot contain muriatic acid, oxymuriatic acid, is contrary to the principles of that nomenclature in which it is adopted." Little did he think that about one hundred years later this same gas, chlorine, would be used for the destruction of life on the battlefield.

THE MINER'S LAMP.

In 1812 Davy resolved to give up his lectures at the Royal Institution and to devote himself to research. The managers rejoiced that he was not severing his connection with them, and they permitted him to retain his chair. The following year marks another milestone in the history of the Institution; for in that year Faraday began his long connection with it. If Davy had done nothing but introduce Faraday, he would be entitled to fame, since the latter's contributions to science were no less important than those of Davy himself. Faraday, a bookseller's apprentice, became much interested in science, and was given a ticket for some of Davy's lectures by one of his customers. He attended some lectures on chlorine, took notes, and copied them out well in a small volume, which he sent to Davy as proof of his interest in science, together with a request for a position in the Royal Institution. Davy treated the request very kindly, saw Faraday, and, when a vacancy occurred early in 1813, recommended him for the position; and, in due course, the managers appointed him. He was trained under Davy, was partly self-taught, and completely fulfilled the high expectations of his master.

Perhaps, Davy is best known for his invention of the miner's safety-lamp. The increasing industrial activity of the early years of last century demanded a higher output of coal, and, as the pits became deeper and more numerous, accidents—chiefly explosions—became more frequent. A society was formed in 1813 to investigate the accidents and to propose remedies. Davy was consulted, and agreed to study the problem. Within four months he had produced a lamp which could be taken safely into explosive mixtures in the mines. His solution was very simple—the flame was completely surrounded with wire gauze. The explosive mixture passed through the holes in it, and burnt inside, but no explosion passed outwards. The joy of the miners was overwhelming, and the mine-owners decided to make Davy a present of plate. Immediately a protest was made that it was George Stephenson, not Davy, who was the real inventor of the safety-lamp. The controversy raged for a long time and was fought out bitterly, but posterity has decided that Stephenson has no claim in respect of this invention. The plate was duly presented to Davy, and, after his death, it was melted down and presented to the Royal Society, to found an annual medal for "the most important discovery in chemistry anywhere made in Europe or Anglo-America."

HONOURED IN IRELAND.

Many honours were conferred on Davy. He was knighted in 1812, on the eve of his departure from the Royal Institution, and was elected President of the Royal Society in 1820, and held the chair till failing health compelled him to relinquish it in 1827. His advanced views on chemical subjects did not tend to make him popular with his fellow-workers in science, though few could resist the charm of his manner; and so academic distinctions came not his way. However, on the occasion of his second visit to Ireland in 1811, to lecture before the Royal Dublin Society, the University of Dublin took the opportunity of conferring on him the degree of LL.D. It was in Ireland that he began to woo Mrs. Apreece, whom he afterwards married, much to the satisfaction of his scientific friends in London. She was a wealthy lady, and it was thought that by her help the ladies of London might be interested in science.

In 1823 Davy began to ail, and he spent most of the remaining years of his life in travelling on the Continent. His complaint was paralysis, which ultimately rendered him completely helpless, though his mind remained active up to the last. He died at Geneva on the 29th May, 1829, and, at his own request, was buried in the cemetery there. His services to science were great, but the motive which inspired them was greater. When he was asked to take out a patent for the safety-lamp, he replied: "My good friend, I never thought of such a thing. My sole object was to serve the cause of humanity; and, if I have succeeded, I am amply rewarded in the gratifying reflection of having done so."

NEW LONDON PLAY.

"SMOKED GLASSES" AT THE EMBASSY THEATRE.

LONDON, Tuesday.

"Smoked Glasses," produced at the Embassy Theatre, is not an entertaining play. It contains the nucleus of an idea, but it has been badly handled, and the authors, B. Scott Elder and William Foster, were unable to make their situations effective.

The company, within their limits, did what they could with the material at their command, but the only characters who succeeded in interesting us were those played by Miss Lena Anderson and Mr. Lodge Percy.

Miss Anderson has a flair for low comedy, and always introduces vitality into any part she plays, and Mr. Lodge Percy imparted a welcome touch of naturalness into the rôle of a burglar with a sense of humour.

Briefly, the plot relates how a husband, who is cured of blindness, returns home to give his wife a surprise, only to overhear her confessing that she had married him out of pity, and was in love with a younger man. He decided to remain blind pro tem., and to find out the name of his rival.

Fortunately at this moment a girl from Bermondsey—the daughter of a man who had saved his life—appears, and, although snubbed by the wife and her friends, grasps the state of affairs, and determines to win the wife's lover. She does so—not without complications—and then finds that she really cares for him, while the wife goes back to her husband, who has proved himself the better man.

The courageous young manager, Mr. James Grant Anderson, has presented eight new plays altogether since the beginning of his season at the Embassy Theatre, but, with the exception of two, they have not been very promising. Next week he revives an old favourite in "Jeannie Wakes Up," and will continue to revive popular plays for the remainder of his season.

After thirty-six years' missionary work in West Africa, Archdeacon McKay returned to Plymouth yesterday. His headquarters were Shugbo, about 180 miles inland.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

A Fright in the Street.

I walked down Grafton street through lines of girls and strangely clad men armed with collecting boxes for the Maternity Hospital. Turning into Suffolk street I came upon a solitary outpost resplendent in helmet and orange cloak, with green and red trousers, and a face made up to kill. A few paces on I observed an old lady of obviously high respectability in equally obvious terror shrinking into a doorway and clasping a tiny dog in her arms. Her eyes were fixed upon the warrior; the little dog could not even summon a bark, so tight did she clutch him. I had quite a deal of difficulty in persuading her that she was not confronted with a dangerous bandit or Chicago footpad, and that she could cross the street in complete safety.

Empire Week.

The shops in Belfast this week are a blaze of colour, and the artistry displayed in window-dressing is extremely good. This is Empire Week, and all the shops have a grand show of Empire goods, and impress on the good housewife to buy no foreign goods.

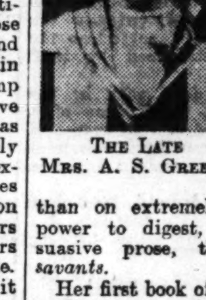

The Empire Marketing Board was responsible for the initiation of the Shopping Week in Great Britain, Ulster and the Dominions, and it asks all citizens to buy the home-manufactured articles if they are available, as such a policy would reduce the number of unemployed.

There is a window-dressing competition in the city for those who can produce the most artistic effect, and this year the number of entrants is very large, and. from what one can see, the judges will have an unenviable task in proclaiming the winner.

In Class A there is a cup valued at one hundred guineas, with a £10 cheque, and in Class B there is a cup worth £25, with a similar cash prize. The winners keep the cups for one year.

The Late Mrs. A. S. Green.

I was very sorry to hear yesterday of the death of Mrs. Alice Stopford Green, the widow of John Richard Green. For some years I had been expecting the news; for on the rare occasions when Mrs. Green was seen about Dublin in recent times her fragility of health was sadly evident. Mrs. Green was probably the most interesting writer on Irish history of her generation. Her method was much the same as that of her husband in his "Short History of the English People." That is to say, she depended less on original research among monuments and manuscripts than on extremely wide reading and a power to digest, in graceful and persuasive prose, the conclusions of the savants.

THE LATE MRS. A. S. GREEN.

Her first book of note was a work on the mediæval town, but her name was made by "The Making and Undoing of Ireland," published a few years before the Great War. In this work she dealt with the period 1200-1600 A.D.—a period neglected and largely misunderstood before her book appeared. In a series of essays on commerce, education, the towns, social life and so on, she drew a picture of late mediæval Ireland that was full of novelty and fascination.

It was characteristic of Mrs. Green's devotion to her subject that she subsidised a special edition of this large and originally expensive work, whereby students of Irish history were able to obtain it for the trifling sum of five shillings.

Other Works.

Another book, "The Old Irish World," which soon followed, was a collection of valuable essays; but it was only four years ago that Mrs. Green gave us her next important work. This was "A History of the Irish State to 1014." It dealt in much the same way as "The Making and Undoing" with ancient Ireland. That is to say, it dealt with aspects of history, political and social. instead of telling a story in chronological sequence. The importance of the work is that it embodied the new knowledge of the ancient period which has followed from the researches of Dr. Eoin MacNeill, and this set the whole subject in a fresh light.

Mrs. Green closed this book with an account and estimate of Brian, Imperator Scotorum, and said that prepared material was lacking for a study of the period between Brian's victory at Clontarf and the coming of the Anglo-Normans. I understand, however, that she carried her work further in recent years, and I hope that all her remaining papers will be suitably edited and published.

A 19th Century Cubist.

The other day my eye was caught by some Cubist pictures, which looked startlingly out of place in the window of an antique shop. I had the curiosity to cross the street for a closer examination, and discovered them to be a set of engravings made in 1828 from the drawings of Henry Bunbury. More merciful to his public than the moderns, the artist inscribed an explanatory couplet beneath each of his "Whims." A conglomeration of triangle topped by a woman's head bore the legend—

There is a truth with which no mortal wrangles,

This man is trying like a Boxer, sure,

Results of the Drought.

Everybody with any kind of land or garden is rejoicing at present in the welcome rain. In the lowlands things looked parched enough, but on the hills the little farms looked absolutely wretched. I was on the Feather Bed one warm day this week, and, down a little side road, I got into conversation with an elderly workman, whose business was quarrying ganite for road mending. He told me he never remembered seeing the reservoir so low, not even in October, or so many of the mountain streams dried up. He remarked that sheep and cattle had little to eat, and brought no prices when sent to the town. I pointed out to him that just at hand a nice little spring sent up a refreshing stream of clear, cold water, but he told me it was just a reserve of bog water, which is not good, and was clear owing to being filtered by the granite through which it passed. I also told him how refreshing the air was after stuffy Dublin. He "pessimised" by saying: "Sure, 'tis the only thing we has plentyful here, and there's times we gets too much of that same."

The Bruce.

The six hundreth anniversary of the granting of a Royal Charter to Edinburgh is now being celebrated in Scotland with great éclat, and with it is being remembered the same anniversary of the death of King Robert the Bruce, who granted the Charter in Cardross Castle on May 28th, 1329, ten days before he succumbed to the dread disease of leprosy on June 7th. The nadir of Bruce's fortunes was touched when he was forced to seek refuge in Rathlin Island, where is said to have taken place the episode which has made among the moral insects the persevering spider a serious rival to the industrious ant. Bruce rather emulated the web-weaving of the spider than his patience; for in the contests between Comyns, Baliol, and the English Crown for supremacy in Scotland, he appears as an unscrupulous and timeserving intriguer, and the whitewashing of his character by patriotic historians is the product of his heroic success at Bannockburn, in 1314, which put him in the position of lord of the Gael and inspired in Ireland a dream of the Gaelic imperialism.

The Bruces in Ireland.

Robert's brother, Edward, is pursuance of the plan of a Gaelic League to overthrow English power, landed on the Antrim coast on May 25th, 1315. His success was such that he was crowned High King at Knockmeldon, near Dundalk. The following year Robert joined his brother and threatened Dublin. The citizens determined on keen resistance, eyed the weak spots in their defences, and burnt Thomas street and St. Patrick's Cathedral to deprive the enemy of advantage there. The Bruces lay about the hill of Castleknock. Bloody, but fruitless, skirmishes took place; but, having no siege artillery, and the citizens holding firm, the investment was speedily raised. From that moment the Gaelic cause declined until John de Bermingham, who for this engagement is remembered in the name of the Bermingham Tower of the Castle, faced and defeated the Scots at Faughart on October 14, 1318. Here one John Malpas, knight, of Drogheda, seeking to rival the feat at Bannockburn of "the fierce de Boune" of Scott's poem, challenged Edward to combat, and, unlike de Boune, killed his man at the cost of his own life. That event, leaving the Scottish forces leaderless, decided the matter. Edward Bruce's head was salted and sent to England. Scottish Ambassadors, unaware of his fate, were demanding the crown of Ulster for him, when Edward II., in malicious jest, caused the ghastly relic to be flung on the table before them as an answer. The Bruces had been led to expect the aid of Norman-Irish lords in their schemes. They, at first, were prepared to harass the Crown to any length, but grew lukewarm when they perceived that a Gaelic ascendancy might cost them their lands. Their desertion destroyed the Scottish hopes.

"Muggers."

A friend of mine who spent many years in Australia tells me that in Northern Australia alligators are called "muggers." But in other parts of the country the name is applied to both crocodiles and alligators. They say, too, that the latter eat people, but that the former do not, and that if you come to a river full of these reptiles and are not quite sure which species it contains, just jump in. If you come out, the river is full of crocodiles; if you do not, it is inhabited by alligators!

The Dublin Operatic Society.

The Dublin Operatic Society, which is producing "The Barber of Seville" and "La Sonnambula" at the Olympia Theatre this week, in aid of Jervis Street Hospital, is to be congratulated on having for its chairman Mr. T. S. C. Dagg, who already has proved himself a fine organiser in many directions. An Irish hockey international, he became President of the Irish Hockey Union for several years. In his student days in Trinity he was the Treasurer of the College Choral Society and was recently elected a Governor of the Royal Irish Academy of Music. All his life Mr. Dagg has been a keen pedestrian, and, while having explored most of the beauty spots of his own country, he also has mastered many of the most difficult mountain passes of Switzerland and the Austrian Tyrol. His work with the Dublin Operatic Society has been largely instrumental in carrying it to its present point of success. For a society established under the conditions that surrounded the announcement of the Dublin Operatic Society needs not only an optimist, but a driving force which simply refuses to recognise obstacles, and these qualities Mr. Dagg possesses to an extent not given to many. Mr. Dagg also is one of the mainstays of the College Historical Society and of the Trinity Boat Club at Island Bridge.

MR. T. S. C. DAGG.

Bird Songs.

A correspondent writes:—It was Emerson who said that the supreme point of interest in any landscape is the edge of the horizon, and De Quincey that the most glorious sight in the world is the sun going to his rest; but what is the most perfect natural sound that can reach the human ear? I think I heard it lying in bed this morning half-an-hour before sunrise; the faint delicious undertone of bird song that is hardly sound at all at first, but gradually swells from a single sleepy note to a full-blown vocal chorus. It is the first few moments that matter; after they have passed it is well to turn over and sleep again, because the songs of the blackbirds, thrushes and linnets as they grow louder, invariably awaken that demon jazz merchant, the sparrow, and then farewell to slumber, at least, for me. During the "troubled times" there were few guns available to shoot hawks, and consequently the sparrows almost vanished. Few of us would care to pay the same price again for immunity; but when that raucous, never-ending chirp begins in the vicinity of the window-sill, I could wish for a large increase in the hawk population.

Living at the edge of the sea, I hear in the mornings also the strange cry of the oyster-catcher, or gillebridean, as the bird is called in Scotland. I do not know whether the pretty Scotch legend about the oyster-catcher obtains in this country, but it is as follows:—At the time of the birth of Christ, Saint Bride was taken from the Hebrides to Palestine by an angel, in order that she might become the foster-mother of the Saviour. The oyster-catcher was the faithful servant of the saint, and ever since in despair at losing her, it utters the plaintive cry, Gille Bride, Gille Bride (Servant of Bride). It can easily be recognised by the black and white plumage, and broad, red bill, well adapted for opening mussels. I have my doubts about the oysters, in spite of the name.

A Pretty Wit.

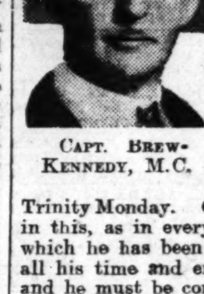

The exercise of "a pretty wit" is not always confined to the "guardians" of 'buses and trams. I have a friend who used to have an effective way of dealing with ladies who failed to thank him when he gave up his seat in a crowded tram. As soon as the lady took his seat without showing any signs of gratitude, oral or otherwise, my friend would lean towards her and say, "I beg you pardon." He was usually rewarded by a curt, "I didn't say anything." His reply to this was, "Oh, excuse me, I thought you said 'thank you.'"

Herring Gulls.

A correspondent writes:—The interesting account of the friendly and confident behaviour of the ducklings in St. Stephen's Green, recorded a few days ago in the columns of the "Diary" stirred memories in me of sadness, and also, I must confess, of impotent rage. Like the writer of the paragraph to which I am referring, I, too, stood on the edge of the lake in the Green on a glorious summer afternoon some years ago, charmed and delighted, watching the antics of the tiny ducklings darting hither and thither, swimming, diving in all the vivacity of their young lives. Overhead, floating lazily in the air was a large herring gull, poising gracefully and indifferent, evidently, to all that was going on below. Suddenly it planed down towards the lake with a view, evidently, as I thought, to rest calmly upon its waters. But not so. It merely skimmed the surface and then rose again, bearing away in its horrid cruel beak one of the tiny ducklings, so full of confident life but a moment or two before. I was really horrified, and cursed the white pirate with all my might. I hurried away and spoke to one of the park keepers about the matter, and he told me that despite the most careful watching they lose dozens of young ducks at a certain period every year through the depredations of herring gulls.

T.C.D. Association.

I was glad to learn at the annual meeting of the T.C.D. Association on Trinity Monday that this admirable institution is flourishing. My friend, Captain H. Brew Kennedy, M.C., who is assistant secretary of the organisation, told me that the idea has been received with enthusiasm by Trinity men all over the world, and a very large accession of new members is expected during the next few months. A very attractive blazer has been designed, and the Association tie was much in evidence on Trinity Monday. Captain Brew-Kennedy in this, as in every other enterprise with which he has been connected, is devoting all his time and energy to his new task, and he must be congratulated on the success which the Association has achieved during its first year of existence. He had a most distinguished war record, and is highly popular with College men all over the world.

CAPT. BREW-KENNEDY, M.C.

Puck Rock.

The motor boat trip to Ireland's Eye, or The Island, as it is commonly called, from Howth Harbour is worth the taking. The boat bears to the left to the only accessible landing, now made precariously over the rocks, but soon to be made at a landing stage proper, which, however, may doubtfully compensate for the little lost thrill. Here a small party of Danes, driven from Dublin after its second siege during the "forty years' rest," while Alfred the Great was occupying the Northmen's attention, made a last tooth and nail stand before their flight to Anglesea. Their spirits, they say, on wintry nights, answer the mournful call of the gulls. Here, too, lived St. Nessan in a hermitage, the ruins of which still stand. From this point can be well seen the strange shape of Puck Rock on the Head. That is due to St. Nessan also. He was busy illuminating the Gospel of Howth, and was mightily tormented by a malicious Puck, who worked from the hill opposite. A day came when the weather was oppressive with thunder and Puck more irritating than ever. In a paroxysm of exasperation, the saint picked up his manuscript and flung it with all his strength at the sprite, pinning him to the rock. And the human shape seen there to this day is Puck, his face turned upward in fear and agony and pain, still seeking to break free.

Earl's Hospital Work.

The Earl and Countess of Clanwilliam have given their beautiful grounds at Montalto, Ballynahinch, one of the family's Co. Down seats, on Saturday next, for the holding of a garden fête in aid of the Down Infirmary. Fourteen stalls will be erected in the grounds, and the games, which will include horse-jumping competitions, will attract a big crowd. The Meades, which is the Earl's family name, have long been associated with County Down, though the family originally belonged to County Cork where they owned many broad acres. The family pedigree goes back in direct line to the fourteenth century, and the Barony was created over 160 years ago. The present Earl served with the Household Brigade in the South African War, took part in French's dash to the relief of Kimberley, and was mentioned in despatches. He joined up again during the Great War, and served on the staff, and in the trenches on the Western front.

An Amusing Incident.

A correspondent writes:—A reference in the "Diary" to the ready wit of Dublin and London 'bus conductors brings to mind an amusing incident of the general strike in England in 1926. The 'buses were manned by volunteers, and were the object of unwelcome attentions on the part of the strikers. One 'bus, however, never was molested. The reason for this lay in a large notice placed in a conspicuous position on this 'bus. It read:—"The driver of this 'bus is a Guys' Hospital Student. The conductor of this 'Bus is a Guys' Hospital Student. Anyone throwing a stone at this 'Bus will become a Guys' Hospital patient."

A Little Girl's Request.

Kitty was a pretty child of about four years, with raven hair and jade and amber eyes, which she turned eagerly upon the postman who was cycling along the road which went by the remote cabin where she lived. "Mother," she cried, "Mother, what's dat?" "Whisha, darlint, dat's a boicycle." The postman dismounted to gossip, and the little girl examined his machine with minute care. When he was gone, she called her mother. "What ails, you, asthore?" "Me wants a girlscycle," said Kitty.

DUBLIN OPERATIC SOCIETY.

"LA SONNAMBULA."

The Dublin Operatic Society deserves the warmest thanks for its enterprise in presenting Bellini's "La Sonnambula" at the Olympia Theatre last night. The work was very popular in the middle of the last century. Its tender grace and melody and its sympathetic story won it a warm place in public favour. It is very typical of its date—it was first presented in 1831 at Milan—and the music is full of those florid touches and cadenzas which the Italian composers of the period so dearly loved.

To old-timers the opera last night recalled the days of Arthur Rouseby and his company. The Somnambulist was last produced in Dublin in the 'nineties of last century, with Rouseby and Gilbert in the cast, at the old Leinster Hall. The part of Amina ("La Sonnambula") has had special interest and appeal for prime donne, Jenny Lind and Adelina Patti, and, in more recent years, Galli Curci, won laurels by their singing of a part which offered them such arias as "Ah non Credeo" and "Ah non Guinge."

Last night's performance was on a high level. The cast was well chosen. Miss Peggy O'Regan as Amina revealing excellent qualities as a coloratura soprano. Her voice flowed in effortless style through the tricky mazes of the music, and her acting proved that she had a very sympathetic understanding of the character. As her rival in love, Miss Mamie Dingle sang and played the part of the second soprano very effectively, the voice showing lovely warm qualities. Mr. Henry Thornton as the lover, Elvino, found the straighter setting of the music more to his style than the tripping Rossini music of the previous night. He revelled in the work and gave the part a fine manly touch. Mr. M. J. Gallagher, as the Count, brought to the part a commanding stage presence. His singing of the lovely old song of remembrance, with the choral accompaniment, was one of the best things of the night.

The work of the chorus was splendid—the ensemble in the two big choral numbers, "Dusky Twilight" and "Here let us Rest," was as brilliant as any choral singing heard for some time. The parts were splendidly balanced, the tone was beautiful, and there were fine touches of light and shade.

Maestro Viani, who conducted, gave an impressive reading of the work, his control, especially in the very difficult concerted numbers, being admirable.

Mr. Herbert Bailey, who was responsible for the staging, dressing and lighting, deserves the highest praise for the effects achieved.

It was gratifying to note the large attendance, and there is no doubt that the opera will be well patronised during the remainder of the week.

MANCHESTER'S WATER SUPPLY.

NEW RESERVOIR IN LAKES DISTRICT.

Manchester Corporation Water Committee decided yesterday to proceed at once with the first stage of the £10,000,000 scheme to add Hawes Water, Westmorland, to the city's sources of water supply. The initial work will cost £500,000, and the whole plan will take about four years to complete.

One of the first steps will be the creation of a new village to house the fifteen hundred people who will be associated with the work. A church, a school, and a cinema will also be built.

A huge dam will be thrown across the Mardale valley, and a road some miles long will be built from Shap to the dam.

COLLEGE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

"That Nationalism is an obstacle to World Peace" is the subject for debate at the meeting of the College Historical Society at Trinity College, Dublin, to-night. The Rev. E. Savell Hicks, M.A., will preside. The debates of the Society are open to the public.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

GOLDSMITH AND BURKE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I am afraid that Prebendary Stockley's residence in Lichfield, where Doctor Johnson is idolised, has temporarily obscured his Irish sense of humour. Goldsmith's mock-epitaph on Burke is the greatest tribute from one Irishman to another Irishman in English literature. It is all the more so because it sets forth genially both Burke's virtues and his failings, just as friend should towards a beloved friend. Let us take the first four lines, as they form one sentence—

We scarcely can praise it, or blame it too much;
Who, born for the Universe, narrowed his mind,
And to party gave up what was meant for mankind.

These lines were written in 1774, when Burke was, comparatively speaking, unknown; yet they form a prophecy. Goldsmith was in his grave many years before Burke became the foremost statesman of his day. His genius can scarcely be "blamed too much" for his sometimes unreasonable opposition to the elder Pitt's policy both during and after the Seven Years' War; and he gave up his genius wholly to "party" in his deliberate break in friendship with Charles James Fox after their differences of opinion about the French Revolution.—Yours, etc.,

FREE STATE FLOUR-MILLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—As a mill-owner for over fifty years, I feel that I cannot allow the statements of the Ministers in the flour-milling debate to go uncontroverted. They quoted from the report of the Commissioners that "the mills here were neither well-equipped, well situated nor well managed." These gentlemen, though they visited English mills, never inspected, to my knowledge, any one of our southern mills. We have always kept our mills up to date, and during the last two years have laid out several thousand pounds in two of our mills, buying new machinery and adopting the most modern methods. I fearlessly challenge them to show that these mills are not fully as well-equipped as any English mill—I do not care which.

The Ministers stated that wheat could be bought as cheaply in Dublin as in Liverpool. This is not a fact. Manitoba wheats, which are the wheats chiefly used in the manufacture of bakers' flour, are always one shilling to two shillings per quarter (480lbs.) less in Liverpool. They also stated that we had already a tariff of two shillings per sack, and, in another statement, twelve shillings per ton on flour, and fifteen shillings per ton on offals. By this I presume they meant the freight from Liverpool. This is incorrect, as Liverpool millers can get freight from six shillings to eight shillings per ton and much less by their own vessels.

The most cruel part of Mr. Hogan's speech is his insinuation that we have been riding for a fall in anticipation of a tariff. This is most untrue. For the past two years we have worked more energetically than ever we have done, and, in spite of heavy losses, have tried to keep our mills going and keep on our men and pay them a decent wage.—Yours,

EDWARD HALLINAN.

CLONMACNOISE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Would it be very much out of place if, as a foreigner, I ventured to call your attention on a matter where Irish national life is concerned? May be it would not, if the feelings of deep sympathy which prompt me to write were known. A place of great beauty, one of the most moving sights I have ever seen—Clonmacnoise—is in danger of being desecrated. That nettles, the plant of forgetfulness, invade the graves, and that sheep graze among the time-burdened stones, add only to the pilgrims' emotion; but that holiday-makers come and picnic on the possible tombs of Colchu the Wise, or Maelmuire, and that noisy parties should go frolicking about in a thrice holy site like this are surely matters of regret. Is there anybody appointed to look after the place?

Furthermore, a modern house of concrete has been erected in the immediate vicinity, fortunately of an inoffensive type; yet it can be nothing but an affliction to the eye and to the heart, and an example not to be followed. I am bold enough to suggest that something could be done to preserve at Clonmacnoise the atmosphere of unspeakable serenity that moved me, as never before, when I first visited this "loneliest group of ruins."—Yours, etc.,

RELICS OF THE IRISH COPPER PERIOD.

ACQUIRED BY NATIONAL MUSEUM.

The transition from the use of polished stone implements to that of implements of bronze is marked by the use of implements of copper, which were first made of hammered metal, and later by casting in open moulds. The period, lasting from 2000 B.C. (or earlier) to about 1800 B.C., was one of great cultural activity in Ireland, as in Western Europe generally, and "finds" of implements and weapons of that period are of special interest to Irish archæologists.

The National Museum, Dublin, has just acquired, through the good offices of Professor A. F. Dixon (Dublin) and of Mr. Patrick Ward (Dunshaughlin), two copper axes in a good state of preservation, which were found on the townland of Crowtown, Dunshaughlin, County Meath, in an area still known as the Lough. There are indications that they had lain for many years under water. According to Mr. L. S. Gogan, of the National Museum, they are of intermediate type, and may be referred to the earlier limit of the above period (2000-1900 B.C.).

BRIGADIER-GENERAL CRITCHLEY.

NOT RETIRING FROM GREYHOUND RACING.

Brigadier-General A. C. Critchley states that there is no truth in the report that he is severing his connection with the Greyhound Racing Association, which controls the White City and Harringay tracks in London, the Belle Vue track at Manchester, and others in the provinces.

General Critchley, who is a director of the Greyhound Racing Association, was one of those primarily responsible for the introduction of greyhound racing into Great Britain. He is fighting in the general election as Conservative candidate for the Gorton Division of Manchester, and greyhound racing is one of the issues.

SCIENTIFIC STUDIES.

At a scientific meeting of the Royal Dublin Society yesterday at Ballsbridge, Professor John Joly, F.,T.C.D., read a paper, in which he described a new form of needle for radium therapy. So far back as 1914 Professor Joly invented a needle for use in radium therapy, and he is now bringing forward a suggestion for a new and improved type of needle.

CANVASSING "ONSLAUGHT" ON COUNCILLORS.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEATH RATE COLLECTIONS.

The Meath County Council had twenty-seven applications to deal with when they met in Navan yesterday to elect two rate collectors—one for Oldcastle, in the Northern end of the city, and one for Dunshaughlin district, at the opposite end.

The Chairman (Mr. Quinn) said that never in the history of local government had members of the Council been subjected to such an onslaught as they had been subjected to during the past fortnight by candidates and their friends. He was sick of rate collectors. "Every time you go out for a walk," he added, "you are thinking of seeing a rate collector in a bush." (Laughter.)

They were doing the business of the county voluntarily, without remuneration, and he thought it was not good enough that they should have to spend hours of their time interviewing prospective rate collectors and answering importuning letters. One result of this persistent canvassing and letter-writing was that it altered his opinion about the Appointments Commissioners on occasions like this.

Patrick Carr, Killallon, was elected for portion of the Oldcastle district. The rest of the area was divided among three collectors who had small collections adjoining.

For the Dunshaughlin area they had thirteen applications. The collection warrant was £12,000, and the poundage came to £300 a year. It was decided to divide the district into two and appoint two collectors. The successful candidates were Patrick Duffy, Dunshaughlin, and Robert Weldon, Navan. One of the candidates was a woman.

CARE OF BURIAL GROUNDS.

DISCUSSION AT MEATH COUNTY COUNCIL.

Senator Michael Duffy, at the meeting of the Meath County Council, at Navan, yesterday, spoke of the care which the English people bestow upon their burial grounds. Their churchyards, he said, were well looked after by local committees. The graves were dressed periodically, and many of the burial places were like gardens. Here in Ireland the graveyards often were choked up by thistles, weeds and timber—a state of things which did not speak well for the Irish people. Too little money was spent upon the upkeep of Irish churchyards and burial places.

The subject was raised in connection with the Board of Public Health's expenditure for the past six months. It included one item of £169 for the graveyard under the Board's care.

Mr. Tully asked whether Tullagreaney was vested in the Council. This, he said, was the oldest burial place in Ireland.

Mr. Hopkins, Chairman of the Board of Public Health, said that £169 was a small item. They were not expending sufficient money.

Mr. Quinn, Chairman of the County Council, pointed out that any complaints with reference to this matter should be made to the Board of Health. He did not like the suggestion that they ought to spend more money.

HIGHEST TENDER ACCEPTED.

For the past two years, in spite of warnings from the Ministry of Home Affairs and threatened surcharges, the Enniskillen Guardians gave the milk contract to Mr. Thos. Conboy, Ratons, although his tender was the highest. At the meeting of the Enniskillen Guardians yesterday Mr. Conboy's tender was again the highest, and the Guardians, by a majority, gave the contract to Mr. Conboy, on the grounds that he had been satisfactory in the supply of milk to the institution.

DUBLIN STREETS' IMPROVEMENTS.

THE SMITH O'BRIEN STATUE.

A report to be submitted to the Dublin City Commissioners at their meeting on next Saturday by Commissioner Murphy states:—"The relief of the increasing congestion of traffic on O'Connell Bridge has for some time past engaged the attention of the police authorities and the Corporation. I consider that the removal of the Smith O'Brien statue from its present position, at the junction of D'Olier street and Westmoreland street, is the first necessary step in this direction. A suitable site to which the statue may be transferred has been selected in the centre of O'Connell street, approximately twenty feet south of the junction of that street with Lower Abbey street."

For the removal of the statue Mr. Murphy recommends the acceptance of the tender of Messrs. Maguire and Short, Phibsborough, Dublin, at £174 10s. Before removal the statue will have to be insured by the contractor to the value of £400 against injury during removal, transit and re-erection. The tender includes the provision of two new steps to raise the height of the statue.

For relaying of approximately 24,000 square yards of roadway in asphaltic concrete and sheet asphalt, Messrs. T. J. Moran and Co., 15 Nassau street, Dublin, and the South of Ireland Asphalt Company, Lower Abbey street, Dublin, quoted £10,507 and £10,523, respectively, to the Dublin City Commissioners.

Commissioner Seamus Murphy recommends the division of the contract equally between the two firms, a policy which has proved satisfactory on previous occasions.

CITY STREET WIDENING.

In a report to the Dublin City Commissioners, to be considered next Saturday, Commissioner Seamus Murphy states that he rejected plans lodged on behalf of the Donegal Tweed Company, Ltd., for the rebuilding of No. 3 South Great George's street, Dublin, and directed that the frontage line be set back a distance of fifteen feet from the present line. His reason for this action was that, as the street forms one of the principal business thoroughfares of the city, it is essential that no opportunity should be missed of improving the narrow portion where it joins Dame street. At present, the report says, there is serious congestion at this junction. Compensation amounting to £1,900 for loss of space and disturbance has been accepted by the company, the Corporation to bear costs.

NEW TOLKA BRIDGE.

The tender of Messrs. McNally and Co., East Wall road, Dublin, at £949 for constructing a bridge across the River Tolka near Colaiste Caoimhghin (formerly Marlborough Hall, Glasnevin), has been recommended to the Dublin City Commissioners for acceptance by Commissioner Seamus Murphy.

The erection of the bridge, which is to be in reinforced concrete, excluding abutments, road work and parapet walls, forms part of the construction of the by-pass road (Dean Swift avenue) which, when completed, will connect Botanic road (at Fairfield road) with Ballymun road.

£100,000 DRAINAGE SCHEME.

The tender of Messrs. Gray's Ferro-Concrete Co. (Ireland), Ltd., at £30,433, has been recommended to the Dublin City Commissioners for acceptance for drainage work at Chapelizod. This contract forms part of a scheme, the estimated cost of which is £100,000, for the completion of main drainage schemes for Chapelizod, North Lotts, Crumlin and Tolka Valley.

£20,813 HOUSING SCHEME

DEARTH OF ACCOMMODATION IN ROSCREA.

Mr. T. F. Strahan, Free State Local Government Inspector, held an inquiry at Roscrea yesterday with reference to the proposed erection of forty-eight new cottages in Roscrea town by the North Tipperary Board of Health, at an estimated cost of £20,813. There was no opposition on behalf of the owners of sites to be acquired.

Mr. John Meagher, Secretary of the North Tipperary Board of Health, said that on an ordinary fifteen years' loan from the banks the scheme would be impossible. With a long term loan, letting the houses at five shillings a week, and taking the grants into consideration, there would be a loss of threepence in the pound on the rates.

Mr. McEvoy, a member of the Board of Health, said that, at five shillings a week, sufficient tenants for the houses could be got. At present people were prepared to pay any price for houses, and even rooms in houses in Roscrea were very hard to get. The applicants for houses included a number of young couples who at present were living in lodgings, and some of them were thinking of emigrating, as they could not get a house to live in.

FISHERY PROTECTION ON THE LEE.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT OF BY-LAWS.

Mr. Charles Greene, Inspector to the Ministry of Fisheries, and Mr. R. Southern, in the Cork Courthouse yesterday, held an inquiry into an application by the Cork Board of Fishery Conservators for a by-law prohibiting the possession or use of nets for the capture of salmon or trout in any place adjoining the fresh-water part of the River Lee. Another branch of the inquiry concerned the revoking or varying of existing by-laws and orders for the protection and improvement of the fisheries of the river.

Mr. Greene explained that the Cork Board of Fishery Conservators had applied to have extended to the upper waters of the Lee the provisions of the by-laws relating to possession of nets in the tidal part of the river.

Mr. Henry E. Donegan, solicitor, for the Conservators, stated that, as the law stood, a person might have a net for taking salmon or trout in his house, or anywhere adjoining the river, but no prosecution could take place unless he was caught using it. At present a lot of netting was going on in the upper reaches of the river. The Conservators had expended a large sum of money in preserving this portion of the river, and desired to have a stop put to netting.

Mr. S. Haynes, Chairman of the Board of Conservators, spoke of the extent to which netting was practised. The Conservators knew where the nets were, but unless offenders were caught using them, nothing could be done. It was most important that the tributaries of the river should be preserved, because the Trout Anglers' Association had been re-stocking the rivers and putting a lot of trout into them, which in a few years' time would have grown to a considerable size. He had come across trout in the city markets with the marks of the nets on them. The poachers had become very audacious within the past twelve months. The proposed by-law was the only thing that would stop them.

The Inspector said that he would report to the Minister for Fisheries, and the Conservators might rest assured that he would give the matter his careful consideration.

MONAGHAN SURGEON RESIGNS.

Dr. James Campbell Hall, who has been surgeon of Monaghan County Hospital for thirty-nine years, has tendered his resignation to the Free State Minister for Local Government, who forwarded it to Monaghan Board of Health, where it was accepted, tribute being paid to the work done by Dr. Hall at the hospital. Surgeon John McArdle was appointed to act as temporary surgeon, pending the permanent appointment by the Appointments Commissioners.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE BRIGADE.

The St. John Ambulance Brigade competition for the Dublin Building Trades' Corps Cup, the gift of the late Sir Henry McLaughlin, was competed for by teams composed of novices. The competition was held in the Brigade Hall, 66 Great Strand street, Dublin.

The following teams competed:—City of Dublin No. 1, City of Dublin No. 2, Browne and Nolan, Jacob's, St. James's Gate Fire Brigade, Northern Counties Committee Railway.

The winners were Messrs. Browne and Nolan, the second and third being Messrs. Jacob and City of Dublin No. 1, respectively.

IRISH-MADE GOODS.

PROPOSED EXHIBITION AT BALLSBRIDGE.

AN INVITATION TO MANUFACTURERS.

Under the auspices of Aonach Tailteann and the several Industrial Development Associations, a meeting was held in Wynn's Hotel, Dublin, last night, to consider the project of holding an exhibition of Irish manufactures at the Horse Show and Tailteann Games of 1931.

The intention is to utilise all the space now given over at Ballsbridge to Irish and outside manufactures for a display of Irish manufactures; and manufacturers in every county in Ireland are to be asked to give their support to the proposal.

THE PROPOSAL.

AN IMPORTANT STEP.

Mr. J. J. Walsh, who presided, said that the meeting was convened as a consequence of the deputation representing the Industrial Development Associations and the Council of Aonach Tailteann, which waited on the Council of the Royal Dublin Society a fortnight ago, with the request that the entire space of the Show grounds should be reserved for Irish manufactured goods during the Horse Show and the Tailteann Games of 1931. Those who spoke for the deputation had no hesitation in giving a guarantee that, if their request was conceded, no difficulty would be experienced in having the whole space usually occupied for home and foreign products filled on this occasion by Irish exhibits. In the meantime the Council of Aonach Tailteann had received a communication from the Royal Dublin Society asking for names of potential exhibitors. In view of the fact that outside the Department of Industry and Commerce no up-to-date list of manufacturers was available, and that even here information was confined to the twenty-six counties, it was deemed necessary to take this public occasion of notifying manufacturers that when communicated with on this subject in a few weeks' time no one worthy of the name should fail to give prompt approval and support to the projected exhibition.

This was one of the most important steps yet taken to stimulate the development of Irish manufactured goods. The manufacturers would have here during this fortnight one of the greatest rallying grounds for sightseers in Europe. Apart from the steps proposed to be taken to bring the local public to the Show during the second week, which would be the first week of the games, they had during the Horse Show Week the certainty of an enormous concourse of home and foreign visitors. The value to Irish goods that must accrue from such an exhibition would be difficult to estimate. The mind of the country was firmly set on the building up of an industrial fabric which, with absolute certainty, will one day bring ample employment and much prosperity to their people. Already that upward trend was evident, and by 1931 it looked as if many new industries would have been added to the list.

CALL TO MANUFACTURERS.

Hitherto it was a subject of common comment that during the Horse Show Irish goods were out of the picture. Thanks to the opportunity now proposed to be given by the progressive council controlling this institution there was no longer justification for complaint, and in the name of that representative meeting he called upon every manufacturer in Ireland to respond promptly to the invitation and book his space.

They had it from a trustworthy source that the Shannon Board would erect a working demonstration on a considerable scale, and while the great majority of manufacturers would be confined to an exhibit of finished goods, there were many of the smaller and lighter types which could avail themselves of the Shannon Board facilities to contribute demonstrations on manufacture.

SUGGESTED IRISH FAIR.

Mr. L. Wickham, Treasurer of the Tailteann Games, said that, following the success of the Tailteann Games in 1924, they were determined to organise an exhibition of home industries in that great home of industry, the Royal Dublin Society's premises at Ballsbridge. They were out to help the manufacturers, but they asked, in return for that, their co-operation. He believed that if this matter were taken up seriously by the manufacturers, of which there were eleven hundred, there was nothing to stand between them and success. If they were able to do this they might be able to establish an Irish Fair on the lines of the Leipzig Fair, which was held twice a year, and was such an asset to Germany.

If they made a real endeavour to live within themselves they would have no unemployment, and could support at least three times the present population.

MANUFACTURER'S VIEWS.

Mr. Phelan, of the Irish Furniture Manufacturers' Association, said that they were in a hopeless position before the tax was imposed, and when the tariff was put on they were just as bad, until they started to show at Ballsbridge. Some people thought it unwise to show, but, as an association, the furniture manufacturers had taken 250 feet at Ballsbridge, and they now had applications from furniture people who had previously ignored the show. Personally they would not be out of Ballsbridge for anything. It was the best possible advertisement they could have. The Spring Show was now nearly as good as the Horse Show, and the manufacturer who did not try to be in an eighty thousand crowd was not doing himself justice.

Mr. Moore, Irish Woodworkers' Union, said they had the right to ask their employers, the manufacturers, to put their goods before the country. He deprecated the practice of Government representatives opening such fixtures as the Ideal Homes Exhibition, which was really a travelling tinkers' show, which did not encourage Irish manufacture.

Mr. Gallagher, Urney Chocolates, said that if something was not done quickly for Irish manufactures there would not be any country. Until the farmer had a home market he would get nowhere. The only way to save the farmer was to create a home market for him.

Mr. Andrew O'Shaughnessy, Cork, said that this was a very necessary movement in the country. He represented three industries which would be represented at the fair.

OUTSIDE MANUFACTURES.

Mr. Charles McGloughlin suggested that some space should be left for foreign firms. He knew no Irish manufacturer whose goods could not be placed beside the goods of any other country. Besides, Irish manufacturers might not be able to fill the grounds at Ballsbridge.

The Chairman said that there were 1,100 recorded industries in the 32 counties, and that number, they expected, would be larger by the year 1931. Only 200 exhibits were necessary to fill the available space at the last Horse Show, and two-thirds of these were foreign. There would be no difficulty about filling the available space. If there had been any question of having foreign goods exhibited he would not be present that night.

Mr. Shackleton promised support to the exhibition.

Mr. Joseph Milroy said that he welcomed this exhibition, and promised it every support.

DEPARTMENT'S SUPPORT.

Mr. Bradley, Chief Officer of the Department of Lands and Fisheries, said that the Minister would be a substantial exhibitor, and would use his influence to make the exhibition a success. He would be glad to see such an exhibition an annual affair.

Mr. McKnight, City Woollen Mills, promising support, said that there was a wide field for expansion just now, and this exhibition would tend to give them a larger market for their produce. He hoped that the North would be largely represented at the exhibition. He would like to see the border surmounted. They must stand or fall together, and for that reason he was anxious to see the Northern manufacturers present.

The Chairman said that in this matter they recognised no line of demarcation.

Mr. Michael Gorevan said that the manufacturers of Ireland were having the greatest opportunity of any manufacturers in the world to exhibit their goods. They had the finest grounds in the world for such an exhibition.

Mr. McKenna, Chairman Blackrock Urban Council, said that the organising of this exhibition was one of the most useful and practical steps taken for a long time.

RATEPAYERS CALL FOR COMMISSIONERS.

The Limerick Citizens' and Ratepayers' Society, at the annual meeting yesterday evening, Mr. M. D. Shaw presiding, unanimously adopted a resolution, viewing with alarm the increased rates, and the prospects of still further increased rates, which were already exorbitant and detrimental to the city's industries. In view of the continued failure to reduce the impost, the Society demanded the appointment of Commissioners without delay.

In moving the resolution, Mr. James Ray said that he was convinced that there could be no progress in civic administration under the present system. It was cumbersome, unwieldy, and unable to accomplish what it set out to do. The existing impost was 22s. 6d. in the pound, the poor rate accounting for 8s., which was inadequate, and he was informed that if the rate were struck it would be near thirty shillings. He reviewed what had been done by the Commissioner system in Dublin, Cork and Ennis and other places to reduce rates without impairing the public services. Limerick was admirably situated as an industrial and distributing centre, with a good harbour and railway and increasing bus service.

Mr. P. O'Donovan, in seconding the motion, commended the views of Mr. Ray, and emphasised that if the city were to progress the Commissioner system was not only essential but imperative.

Mr. A. E. Goodwin, supporting, said that, as a member of the Borough Council, he had realised that co-operation was absolutely powerless to reduce rates, and most of his colleagues held the same opinion.

The Chairman observed that the Committee of the Society had gone into the question of retrenchment with the Corporation a few years ago, and found that, although willing to effect a saving, the Borough Council were powerless where agreement with regard to salaries and wages were concerned.

Mr. Goodwin said that in regard to the reduction of salaries, the recommendation of the Corporation had been rejected by the Local Government Department, and that being so the Council could not very well reduce wages.

DERRY COUPLE KILLED IN MOTOR ACCIDENT.

MAGISTRATE AND UNCUT HEDGES.

"That the deceased man was distinctly on his wrong side of the road" was the statement made at Derry yesterday by Mr. Glass, R.M., when adjudicating in the case in which Sergeant Samuel H. Craig, Derry City "B" Special Constabulary, was charged with the manslaughter of Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant John Berry, 1st York and Lancaster Regiment, and Ellen Berry, his wife, and with causing grevious bodily harm to three children of the deceased man.

Berry and his wife were the victims of a road accident near Eglinton on Whit Monday. They were returning on a motor cycle combination from a picnic at Magilligan, when they collided with a motor driven by Craig. Mrs. Berry was killed instantly, and her husband died in the infirmary a few days later.

Refusing informations in all cases, Mr. Glass said that Berry was distinctly on his wrong side of the road. He was sorry to have to express that opinion, but he must do so in justice to the accused man. Apart from that, the main cause of the accident was that the hedge was not cut. He would like to see legislation introduced making it compulsory on owners of hedges on side roads debouching on a main road to keep the fences rigidly cut. The enforcement of legislation should come before tribunals in which the welfare of the public would not be subordinated to consideration of any private nature.

LIMERICK HORSE SHOW.

LORD DUNRAVEN'S HOPE.

The Earl of Dunraven presided at a large and representative meeting of the City and County Limerick people, held in the Chamber of Commerce, Limerick, yesterday afternoon, to promote the interests of the Limerick Horse Show, which is to be held on the 21st and 22nd August next, after a lapse of many years.

Lord Dunraven said that owing to the war and certain other causes the show had lapsed, but they were now quite confident that they should not only be able to revive it, but also to place it on a more satisfactory basis than it had hitherto occupied. The object of the meeting was mainly to obtain an expression of popular approval and sanction for the project. The times were propitious, as the country was very much more settled than it had been for a long time.

Limerick, his lordship proceeded, was the headquarters of a well-known breeding centre, and was, in addition, celebrated for the production of cattle and dairy produce. It had been famous for breeding hunters, carriage and hackney horses, but it claimed to be a great centre for the breeding of thoroughbreds. Unfortunately, during the war the country was drained of its mares to a certain extent, but an effort was being made to raise an animal of a better type, and no better method of doing that could be adopted than by bringing the animals into the prize-ring. (Hear, hear.)

SOME FAMOUS HORSES.

In the County Limerick they possessed stud farms equal to any in the Kingdom. There was not a classic race throughout the length and breadth of the United Kingdom that had not been won by an Irish horse. They had the reputation of breeding five Derby winners, two of them being Galteemore and Ardpatrick, bred and raced by the late Mr. John Gubbins, Brurea. Personally, if he expressed a modest wish, he hoped that in his own establishment at Adare would be produced a horse that would compare favourably with the great thoroughbreds of the past. (Hear, hear.)

As the show would be held in August, the height of the tourist season, he had reason to believe that there would be a great number of people coming to this country from cross-Channel. As a director of the Great Western Railway, he was aware that the bookings were never so heavy. That was a good augury, and would be of considerable financial benefit to Ireland. (Applause.)

MAYOR'S PROPOSAL.

The Mayor, having paid a tribute to the Earl of Dunraven for his spirited action in connection with the show, to which he had presented a challenge cup, proposed that the Limerick Horse, Cattle, and Agricultural Show was worthy of the support of everyone interested in the development of agriculture in the South of Ireland.

Mr. E. J. Mitchell seconded the motion, which was passed.

The Earl of Dunraven was elected President of the Show Committee; and Mr. J. McCormack, Chairman of the County Council, and the Mayor (Mr. J. Keyes) Vice-Presidents.

A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. White, to Lord Dunraven for presiding and for his deep interest in the welfare of the city and county, concluded the proceedings.

SEAMAN'S FATAL FALL.

INQUEST IN DUBLIN.

An inquest was held yesterday in Jervis street Hospital on Archibald Dougall, a seaman on the s.s. Thelma, who was admitted to hospital on the morning of the 27th inst., suffering from shock and collapse, and who died shortly after admission. Captain Fulgall identified the body.

H. McArthur, seaman, stated that he was standing on the deck of the Thelma, when Dougall, who was about to paint the funnel of the ship, was standing on a rim about four feet from the top of the funnel. The witness heard him call out that his hands were hot, and he slung him a rope, which he, apparently, failed to grasp, and he fell to the deck, a distance of thirty-two feet.

Dr. P. J. Russell, House Surgeon, said that, in his opinion, death was due to shock and hemorrhage, following fracture of the pelvis and rupture of the bladder.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death from the injuries described.

Major J. B. Hollwey, on behalf of Messrs. George Bell and Co., the owners of the ship, expressed sympathy with the relatives of the deceased.

THE BURNED YACHT.

EVIDENCE AT THE INQUEST.

JURY'S FINDING.

"We find that portion of the right foot and bones, we believe, are part of the body of Denis J. McCarthy-Morrogh, who accidentally met his death by suffocation and burning when his yacht took fire."

This was the jury's verdict at an investigation which Dr. Mortimer Walters, Coroner for North County Dublin, held in the licensed premises of Mr. Joseph Hogan, Malahide, yesterday, into the finding of human remains in the wreckage of the yacht, the Bezary, originally known as the Siren, which sank in flames while anchored in the estuary at Malahide early on Sunday morning.

THE MYSTERY OF THE FIRE.

The circumstances under which the yacht went on fire remain a mystery. No trace of the owner's dog has been found, but it is concluded that it met the same fate as its master, who, it was established at the inquest, was seen on board the yacht late on Saturday night.

A piece of brown cloth, which, with other small portions of clothing, was found in a further search of the wreckage yesterday, was identified by Mr. James Keith McCarthy-Morrogh, of Coolgrena, Rushbrooke, County Cork, a son of the yacht-owner, as part of a coat which belonged to his father.

THE WRECK LIFTED.

Although the diver who made the discovery went down several times, nothing further was found. During the day the wreck was lifted by the dredger which arrived in the estuary on Monday, and deposited on a sand-bank close to the shore. At low tide it would thus be possible to haul it ashore.

The remains found on Monday were removed, after the inquest yesterday evening, to the parish church, where they were received by the Rev. J. Sexton, C.C. The plate on the coffin bore the inscription:—"Denis James McCarthy-Morrogh, died 26th May, 1929, aged 58 years. R.I.P."

Mr. McCarthy-Morrogh's son, with Mr. Arthur Murphy, of Cork, a brother-in-law, and several inhabitants of Malahide, followed the motor hearse to the church. The coffin was borne into the church by men of the village.

Mass will be celebrated in the church this morning, and the funeral, which will be private, will take place to the New Cemetery, Malahide at 4.30 p.m.

THE INQUEST.

The next-of-kin were not legally represented at the inquest. Superintendent O'Halloran, Balbriggan, and Sergeant Kenny, Malahide, represented the Civic Guard.

The first witness to be called was the yacht-owner's son, James Keith McCarthy-Morrogh, who said that he had been shown the remains found in the wreckage of the yacht. He had also seen portions of clothing that had been recovered by the diver in a further search that morning. While he failed to recognise parts of under-garments shown to him, he was satisfied that another piece of cloth was part of a brown coat which belonged to his father, who was a solicitor, aged fifty-eight years.

The Coroner—When did you see your father last?

The Witness—As far as I remember, last January.

Was he then in good health? In fairly good health.

Superintendent O'Halloran—Did your father own this yacht?

The Witness—To the best of my knowledge, he did.

The Coroner—Was he competent to work a yacht?

The Witness—Eminently competent.

Superintendent O'Halloran—Was he in the habit of living in the yacht? Yes; for a long time past.

BOATMAN'S EVIDENCE.

Christopher Farrell, the boatman, said that he knew Mr. Denis McCarthy-Morrogh, who came to Malahide on his yacht on Whit Sunday evening. He had been in touch with the yachtsman several times during the week. He saw him last Saturday night at about ten o'clock beside The Green, near the bay, when they had a conversation.

The conversation concerned two yachts belonging to Mr. McCarthy Morrogh—the Stella and the Tropper—which were at Kingstown. The yacht-owner asked the witness to quote a price for them. After some further conversation the witness did quote a price.

The Superintendent—Did he ask you to take him over to his yacht?

Farrell—He did not, but, as the slip was rather slippery, I thought it best to see him across.

Was he well able to converse? Yes; he knew what he was talking about.

The witness went on to say that he accompanied the owner on board the yacht, and they sat talking in the cabin for some time. At about midnight he told Mr. McCarthy-Morrogh that he would have to get back to the shore. They shook hands, and the witness went back in the punt.

Continuing, Farrell said that he was to go back in the punt the next morning.

THE FIRE DISCOVERED.

At about 5 o'clock in the morning he was awakened by Peter Dunne, who told him that there was a yacht on fire in the estuary. On looking out he saw that it was Mr. McCarthy-Morrogh's yacht. He had a message sent to the Guards, and he and Dunne's brother, Thomas, went out in the punt, but could not get nearer to the yacht than ten yards. She was then a mass of fire—like a furnace.

In reply to the Coroner, the witness said that there was a swing candle-lamp in the saloon in its usual place, on a bulkhead just on a level with the bed. This Mr. McCarthy-Morrogh lighted when they went down.

The Coroner—Was there any other light?

Farrell—None, except for a small electric torch, which the yacht-owner ignited when we got on board to show us the way. There was another candle in a brass candlestick, but it was not lighted.

In answer to a juror, Farrell said that, as far as he knew, Mr. McCarthy-Morrogh did not smoke. Once he declined a cigarette which the witness offered him, saying that he had given up smoking for some time.

Peter Dunne, Malahide, gave evidence of seeing the yacht on fire about ten minutes to five on Sunday morning. It was a foggy morning, but he clearly saw a flame towards the bow of the vessel. The front portion then was burning fiercely.

THE SEARCH OF THE WRECK.

Guard Mark Sharkey said that the fire was reported to him at about 5.15 a.m. He called other Guards, and they went down to the shore. It was only a matter of minutes before the yacht sank.

Guard J. J. Clarke said that he had been present on the previous day when the diver had gone down and brought up the small portion of flesh and the few charred bones. He was again out in the estuary yesterday, when the diver discovered the portion of clothing which had been referred to previously.

HUMAN REMAINS.

Dr. Christopher Grimes, Malahide, said that on Monday evening Superintendent O'Halloran and Sergeant Kenny submitted to him portion of human remains. The main portion was a piece of flesh weighing half a pound, and was part of a human foot—the right foot. There were also some bones which were very badly burned, but still retained their form, and part of a long bone, apparently that of a shin. The piece of flesh was extensively charred, but there was a small portion of skin left on the upper surface of the foot.

In reply to the Coroner, the witness said that the evidence of the bones was consistent with the theory that the man was burned on board the yacht.

The Coroner—Do you think that he might have been suffocated first?

Dr. Grimes—Yes. Apparently he was first suffocated and then burned. There was no reddening or blisters on the portion of the skin which remained. That went to show that the burn was post-mortem.

CORONER'S ADDRESS.

The Coroner, addressing the jury, said that it was a terribly sad case. They had got evidence from the son of Mr. MacCarthy-Morrogh identifying part of clothing found in the wreckage of the yacht as belonging to his father, so that the jury would have no difficulty in finding that the yacht-owner lost his life in the fire. From the medical evidence they would have no difficulty either in finding that the unfortunate man probably was suffocated and then burned.

To its verdict the jury added a rider expressing sympathy with the relatives of the deceased man.

Joining in the expression of sympathy, the Coroner said that it was the saddest case that he had yet investigated.

Eggless Cake can be DELICIOUS

says Miss Florence Jack, famous cookery expert

TO make an economical cake that's light, delicious, you must have these two essentials — the right recipe and the right raising agent.

Miss Florence Jack, the famous cookery expert, has devised this excellent recipe for an eggless cake, and she makes it with Royal Baking Powder. For Royal makes the very best of every ingredient in your cake — it can be relied on to give perfect results every time.

EGGLESS CAKE

1 lb. flour, ½ teaspoonful salt, 4 level teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, ½ teaspoonful mixed spice, 6 oz. butter or margarine, 6 oz. sugar, grated rind of 1 lemon, 4 oz. currants, 4 oz. seedless raisins, 3 oz. candied peel, milk to mix, 1 oz. sweet almonds.

Sieve the flour, salt, Royal Baking Powder and spice into a basin. Add the butter or margarine, and rub it in with the tips of the fingers, until as fine as breadcrumbs. Then put in the sugar, grated lemon rind, and fruit carefully prepared, and mix all together. Make a well, and add by degrees enough milk (about ¼ pint) to form a dough that will just drop from the spoon. Put the mixture into a cake tin that has been lined with greased paper, cover the top with blanched and split almonds and bake in a moderate oven about 2 hours or until well risen and firm to the touch.

THE LATE MR. BERNARD J. O'FLAHERTY.

JUDGE DEVITT'S TRIBUTE.

At the opening of Wexford Circuit Court yesterday Judge Devitt spoke of the late Mr. Bernard J. O'Flaherty. He said that the county, and especially the legal profession, had suffered a very great loss in Mr. O'Flaherty's death. Personally it brought him a very keen sense of sorrow to have to express the regret of the county. Speaking for himself, and he thought also for his predecessors, they were often indebted to Mr. O'Flaherty for the clearness and simplicity with which he expounded the law.

Messrs. J. R. Brennan, solicitor; R. Brereton Barry, Barrister at Law; M. Dwyer, County Registrar, and Chief Superintendent M. McCarthy, Civic Guard, associated themselves with Judge Devitt's tribute.

RE-AFFORESTATION IN COUNTY KILKENNY.

DEPARTMENT'S SCHEME.

The Free State Department is carrying out an important scheme of re-afforestation in County Kilkenny. About five hundred acres are being planted at Woodstock, Inistioge, with larch, Scots and Corsican pines, Douglas fir and Sitka spruce. The total number of young trees already planted is one million.

The Department also has a nursery on the Woodstock estate, where about 500,000 young trees are being reared, so that the centre will be self-supporting as regards the number of young trees required for each season's planting.

Mr. M. B. Ryan is the forester-in-charge, and the work is giving much-needed employment to twenty men.

Reuter's Amsterdam Correspondent reports the death of Mr. Max Mossel, a distinguished violinist, who established himself in Birmingham many years ago, and has been a prominent figure in music in the English Midlands. He conducted for many years regular series of chamber music concerts.

The Irish Times.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1929.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The State opening of the Northern Ireland Parliament will take place to-day. It is expected that the Hon. H. Mulholland will be the new Speaker.—(Page 7.)

Mrs. Alice Stopford Green, the well-known historical writer and member of the Irish Free State Senate, died last evening at her residence in St. Stephen's Green, Dublin.—(Page 7.)

The coroner's jury at Malahide yesterday found that portion of a foot and bones which were taken by a diver from the burned and sunken yacht Bezary in the Malahide estuary on Monday were part of the body of Mr. D. J. McCarthy-Morrogh, the owner of the yacht.—(Page 5.)

A Local Government Board inquiry was held in Wexford yesterday into an application made by the county at the instance of the Corporation for an order to prevent the driving of mechanically-propelled vehicles in Main street, Wexford.—(Page 11.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Two stewards were injured during a disturbance at a political meeting in Liverpool last night.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

Chinese police raided the Russian Consulate-General at Harbin and arrested forty-five Russians, including three women and two Consuls. They found a meeting of the Third Internationale in the basement.—(Page 8.)

SPORTING

At York Sidonia won the Londesborough Plate.—(Page 13.)

At Hamilton Park Laird won the Middleward Plate.—(Page 10.)

London Stock Markets were irregular. Anglo-Americans were weak, following the break in New York. The Gilt-edged section rallied.—(Page 12.)

Conditions in Lombard street were more comfortable, and loans over the night were made at 5 to 5¼ per cent. Bill rates were not quite so firm.—(Page 12.)

Quis Custodiet?

Such words as "bloody" and "damn" are strange to these columns, and readers may have been startled by their appearance yesterday in our report of the Leitrim-Sligo election campaign. We admitted them deliberately, as text for a protest which, in our judgment, public decency demands. They were used—and not once only—by a deputy of the Free State Parliament in the course of abusive exchanges with a member of a rival party. Perhaps, he will plead the excuse that such words are commonplaces of the arena. Since the Free State was founded her standards of political manners have been lamentably low. The dignity of freedom, the possession of a Parliament that ranks, constitutionally, with the highest in the world, have produced no corresponding elevation of speech or behaviour. To-day, after six years of responsibility, Dáil Eireann still tolerates, almost daily, the manners of the public-house bar. Members hurl insults at one another; the most agrestic forms of buffoonery are accepted as wit—in a country that once had a character for wit—and the barbs of attack and retort are pointed with scurrilous terms. The word "damn" has free entry to the Dáil, and the use of God's name as an expletive is not infrequent. Of course, standards that are low in the Dáil are still lower on the hustings. There, as we have seen, the prevalent conditions of political controversy allow a deputy to suppose that the remark, "Talking about the Treaty is a bloody good joke," will convince, or at least will titillate, the electors. Unfortunately, neither of the two chief parties can afford to reproach the other, and on some occasions—though less often of late—Ministers have been flagrant offenders. We make our protest on behalf of decent citizens of all creeds and parties. In the first place, Parliament is setting a thoroughly bad example to a country that, in this matter, needs most urgently a good example from its elected legislators. The use of obscene and profane language is shockingly widespread among the uneducated classes throughout Ireland. People, otherwise respectable, interlard their speech with oaths, and few walkers through city slums escape the foul language that springs horribly to infant lips. Such language does not appear in the worst book that ever escaped censorship; yet the very Parliament that proposes a censorship of books refuses, for the discouragement of a revolting evil, to put a bridle on its own tongue. In the next place, the coarseness and vulgarity of political discussion injure the Free State in the world's eyes and fill her best sons with shame on her account. Finally, they degrade the native profession of politics—with two mischievous results. These are the natural reluctance of cultivated men to offer themselves for Parliament, and a growing dislike, and even contempt, among the educated classes, for all the noisy and ill-bred activities of Free State politics. We do not doubt that the low standard of political life, the insistence on stale controversies, the monotonous exchanges of abuse are responsible, in some measure, for the increasing apathy of the Free State electorate and for its increasing impulse to say, "A plague on both your houses." When will President Cosgrave and Mr. de Valera—who in this matter is personally blameless—begin to realise the danger and the need?

The Little Entente.

The conference of the Little Entente at Belgrade, which has just come to an end, has resulted in a re-affirmation of the solidarity of this important body. After the war Yugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia and Rumania formed themselves into the Little Entente for purposes of self-defence. It was founded as a stabilising force in Central Europe, and there is no doubt that it served a very useful purpose in those stormy days. The Entente was supported—indeed, was invented—by France, whose interests demanded stable conditions in that part of the world, and ever since it came into being the Quai d'Orsay has regarded it as one of the chief props of French foreign policy in Europe. For a time the three Powers of the Little Entente acted rather foolishly towards their neighbours. They cut themselves off entirely from Austria and Hungary, with the result that very bad blood was created among the Danubian States. Of recent years, however, there has been a distinct improvement. Economic forces have been at work. Trade restrictions have been modified, if not removed altogether. Attempts have been made to repair previous errors and to create a better atmosphere in Central Europe, and, although the situation still leaves much to be desired, it is more favourable from every point of view than it was three or four years ago.

Under the tutelage of France the constituent States of the Little Entente have become formidable Powers. France has made them loans for the purpose of armaments, and French officers have acted as military advisers to their armies. Naturally, this condition of affairs has provoked retaliation. Yugo-Slavia, being the most powerful member of the Little Entente, has become the spearhead of French policy in the Adriatic and the Balkans, with the inevitable result that Italy has become suspicious. Feeling between France and Italy has been somewhat strained since the seizure of power by the Fascist Government; and, some time ago, Signor Mussolini decided to form a counter bloc to the Little Entente—to which end he began to cultivate intimate relations with Hungary and Poland. Hungary has a distinct grievance against Rumania for the loss of Transylvania and the treatment of the Magyar minority in that area, and she is angry with France for the support which the latter has given to Rumanian policy. Although no formal alliance has been made, there is every reason to believe that Signor Mussolini will succeed in the formation of a second group in Central Europe; and, if he can win Poland to his side, he will have scored a real triumph of diplomacy.

Poland since the war has been the pampered child of France, but in politics gratitude plays a minor part. If Poland believes that she can gain more by alliance with Italy, she will not have the least scruple in deserting France, and events seem to be moving swiftly in that direction. Italy, Hungary and Poland all are Roman Catholic States—a fact of which Signor Mussolini may be trusted to take the fullest advantage. If he can weld them into an alliance, he will have discovered a highly effective reply to the Little Entente, even with France at its back. All experience teaches that when two rival groups of peoples are formed they come sooner or later into sharp opposition. When the League of Nations was established there was a hope that the bad, old system of alliance and counter-alliance would disappear; and, so far as the big Powers are concerned, it has been realised partially. So soon, however, as the smaller Powers begin to range themselves in opposing camps their bigger brethren will not be long behind them. At present the two great influences in Continental Europe are France and Italy. In the background are Germany and Soviet Russia, awaiting their chance to fall in on one side or the other, while the little States, now as ever, are being used as puppets. It is not a pleasing prospect; but it cannot be ignored, and the duty of every Power that desires peace is to discourage by every means the growing tendency towards the formation of rival groups.

Bruce and Wallace.

Yesterday the City of Edinburgh celebrated the six hundredth anniversary of the grant of its charter by King Robert the Bruce, and we may be sure that there was no other King of Scotland from whom the citizens would have preferred to receive it. This auspicious occasion was commemorated by the unveiling of two statues—one to King Robert, and the other to his forerunner, Sir William Wallace. The story of the dramatic meeting between these two, in which Bruce, upbraided by Wallace from the other side of a stream, was moved to abjure his allegiance to King Edward in order to undertake the salvation of his country, may not be authentic. It is, however, more agreeable than the, perhaps, more historical statement that Bruce's conversion was due to the awkward position in which he found himself after the murder of the Red Comyn. Yet there is no doubt that, if Wallace had not created a national sense in a society partly tribal and partly feudal, Bruce never would have been able to make Scotland truly a nation. Almost—to use a sporting parallel from Rugby football—one may compare them with Kershaw and Davies. Their work was interdependent, and without the other's that of neither would have fructified. Wallace had raised the nation, and Bruce, more exalted in birth, was able to make the unruly Scottish nobility espouse the national cause. Wallace was the greater man, but on such an occasion as this comparisons are more than usually odious. Across the lapse of time the three protagonists—Wallace, Bruce and Edward Plantagenet—stand out as great men whom to-day all must admire. Every one of them earned the gratitude of his country, and, if King Edward's work was more valuable as a law-giver than as a conqueror, it is not for us, wise after the event, to reproach him for his mistaken policy in that warlike age. The old King, dying at Burgh-on-Sands, asked to be held up that he might die with his face towards Scotland. In the person of his lineal descendant, the Duke of York, unveiling the statues of his foes, he has achieved a greater honour than that which, alive, he coveted.

Safety at Sea.

The International Conference on Safety at Sea is sitting in London. Fifteen years have passed since the last conference was held. The sinking of the Titanic had appalled the world, and the conference of 1914 was required to allay public alarm concerning the life-saving appliances carried aboard passenger ships. Upon the Titanic, when she struck the ice-floe, there had been 2,201 persons. Her boats could accommodate only 1,178 persons and in the event only 652 were saved. Not unnaturally, a popular demand was excited for international action to oblige all passenger ships to carry sufficient boats for all the passengers and crew, and the International Conference made provision accordingly. Experience since 1914, however, has shown that even this rule is insufficient to ensure safety; for, where boats are not readily available for launching, they become a source of danger rather than of security. A statement which has been issued by this year's Conference recommends a number of reforms. It is proposed that rules shall be made to ensure that all boats carried shall be readily launched, and that provision shall be made of buoyant apparatus to which persons can cling in the event of the sinking of the ship before boats can be floated. The Conference considers that where large numbers of lifeboats are carried, one or more should be motor boats with "wireless" installations and searchlights. Regular musters of crews for boat drill are recommended, and it is proposed that a uniform emergency signal for the summoning of passengers to muster stations shall be arranged by international agreement. Rules for the carrying of fire-extinguishing apparatus, which were drawn up by convention in 1914, were framed with reference to coal-burning ships. The advent of the oil-using ship has made desirable a new series of rules. Provision now must be made for the "blanketing" of fire by means of froth, foam or carbon dioxide.

GIFTS FOR EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY.

£55,000 FOR MEDICAL BUILDINGS.

Intimation has been made to the Edinburgh University Court that financial assistance for the proposed internal reconstruction of the medical buildings at Teviot place, Edinburgh, will include gifts of £20,000 from the trustees of the late Sir William Dunn and £35,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation, making in all £55,000. This, along with other money available, now secures the carrying out in its entirety of a scheme whereby the buildings, which were erected in 1880, will be reconstructed to bring them into conformity with the requirements of modern teaching and research.

The external aspect of the buildings, which were designed by the late Sir Rowand Anderson, will remain unaltered. The work is to be undertaken during the summer vacation.

Certain portions of the reconstructed buildings will be associated with the name of Sir William Dunn, in recognition of the generous gifts from his estate.

LINDBERGH WEDDING SIMPLICITY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
ENGLEWOOD, NEW JERSEY, Tuesday.

Colonel Lindbergh and his bride were married in the sunny drawingroom of the bride's summer home here late yesterday afternoon without even their most intimate neighbours being aware that such a ceremony was taking place.

There were no bridesmaids, and there was neither a best man nor any music.

There were only eight people present at the ceremony. Besides the bride and bridegroom and the clergyman, the Rev. William Adans Brown, a leading light of the Presbyterian Church, there were Mr. Morrow, father of the bride and United States Ambassador to Mexico, and Mrs. Morrow, with their two daughters, Elizabeth and Constance, and Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the bridegroom's mother.

The bride wore a simple white chiffon dress, with a short veil made for her by Miss Mary Smith, for years the family dressmaker. She did not wear gloves, but carried a bouquet of blue larkspur and white columbine, plucked from the family garden a few minutes before the ceremony.

Colonel Lindbergh went to the altar in the blue sit in which he always appeared on his visits to Englewood.

AEROPLANE HONEYMOON?

After the ceremony the newly-wedded pair drove away in the motor car, and the small army of newspaper men who had been standing guard at the gates, thought it was just another of their afternoon drives. They had no inkling that the wedding had actually taken place until the Ambassador made the announcement over two hours later through his secretary.

Like everything else, the plans for the honeymoon have been kept secret, although it is known that the bridegroom earlier in the day gave orders that his blue Falcon aeroplane at Roosevelt Field should be ready to take off at eight o'clock to-morrow morning or earlier.

The Rev. Mr. Brown says that it was not especially significant that the "obey" was omitted, as he has grown out of the habit of using it in his marriage services, unless it is desired by the bride and bridegroom themselves.

MR. MACDONALD'S BROADCAST.

A FAIR CHANCE FOR LABOUR.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, in a speech which was broadcast last night through London from all stations of the B.B.C., appealed to electors to "give Labour a fair chance." Mr. Macdonald spoke at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

"There can be no security," he said, "until the Great Powers have agreed to settle disputes, which have hitherto led to war, by conciliation and arbitration. That is the policy which the Labour Party was working out in 1924, and which it will pursue again when it is in office."

Unemployment could not be cured by relief work or patchwork of any kind. They must develop national resources and improve trade, so that there could be increased employment. He challenged anyone who had studied the facts to deny that one of the most characteristic features of up-to-date industrial development was the success of nationalisation in one or other of its several forms.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Yesterday the Duke and Duchess of York attended the sex-centenary celebrations of the granting of the Charter to the City of Edinburgh by King Robert the Bruce. After the Service in St. Giles's Cathedral, the Duke unveiled the memorial statues of King Robert and Sir William Wallace, which have been placed on the Castle Esplanade. Their Royal Highnesses were entertained at a civic luncheon in the Assembly Rooms, and later the Duchess witnessed the children's pageant in the West Prince's street Gardens, and, with the Duke, attended the "Masque of Edinburgh," which was given in Usher Hall last night.

Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles have returned to Chesterfield House, London, from Windsor Castle, where they spent a few days with the King and Queen, who have their grandchildren, Princess Elizabeth and the Hon. George and the Hon. Gerald Lascelles, staying with them.

Princess Beatrice, Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Marie Louise were among the visitors at the Royal Tournament at Olympia on Monday. Yesterday Princess Arthur of Connaught and a party occupied the Royal box, and witnessed an exceedingly interesting programme.

At the special Court held at Trinity House, Tower Hill, the Duke of Connaught was unanimously re-elected Master of Trinity House for the ensuing year. According to custom, accompanied by the Deputy Master and the members of the Corporation, he attended Service in the parish church of St. Olave, where the sermon was preached by Archdeacon Knight-Adkin, Chaplain of the Fleet.

Yesterday the Duke of Connaught presided at the annual general court of the Royal Cambridge House for Soldiers' widows, which was held in the Caxton Hall. On Saturday His Royal Highness will attend the Empire Day Service in St. Paul's Cathedral, and will take the salute as the contingents march into the Cathedral.

The Maharajah of Kapurthala, who is at present in Paris, gave a luncheon party at his residence in the Bois de Boulogne, in honour of the British Ambassador, Sir William Tyrrell. Many of the Indian notabilities now in Paris were present, including Prince Mohamed Ali, Prince and Princess Amarzit of Kapurthala and the Aga Khan. The Maharajah is one of the ruling Princes of India, and his distinctions include K.C.S.I., G.C.S.I., G.C.S.E., the Grand Cordon of the Nile, and the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour. His marriage with Senorita Delgardo, of Malaga, took place in 1908, and since then he has spent much of his time in Europe.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Sligo, who have been spending the past two months at Westport, will go to London next week. The Countess of Dunraven will go into residence at 5 Seymour street, London, this week, where she will shortly be joined by the Earl of Dunraven and Lady Olein Wyndham Quin. Captain and Lady Gweneth Cavendish have arrived in London for the season.

The Earl and Countess of Coventry have left Croome Court for London, and will spend the season at 1 Balfour place. Lady Patricia Miller, who has been paying visits in Co. Waterford, has returned to London. Lord and Lady Aberconway arrived in London yesterday from Antibes. Lord and Lady Farnham are now in residence at 16 Gloucester square, and will remain in London for the marriage of their elder daughter, the Hon. Marjory Maxwell, and Major Lancelot M. Gibbs, D.S.O., M.C., which will take place at St. Margaret's, Westminster, on Wednesday, July 10th.

The Earl of Balfour, who has been laid up with gastric trouble at his brother's residence, Fisher's Hill, Woking, is reported to be progressing favourably, but is to be kept very quiet for some days. Lord Plunket continues to make satisfactory progress after the operation which he underwent last week.

A marriage has been arranged, and will take place in July, between Dr. S. A. Furlong, Infirmary House, Wexford, son of Dr. N. Furlong and Mrs. Furlong, Lymington, Enniscorthy, and Maureen, daughter of Mr. W. Fitzgerald Barry, County Surveyor, Belmont, Wexford.

Dr. Geo. P. Cope has returned to 36 Harcourt street.

Dr. Robert de Courcy Wheeler has returned to Monkstown.

This week Switzers have received a new delivery of very attractive French "Pull-on" Gloves in Washable Kid and Suede, in the latest shades of Champagne, Beige, Fawn and Grey. They are suitable for all smart occasions, and are very moderately priced at 10s. 6d. per pair.

GIFT TO NATIONAL TRUST.

CASTLE BARROW, SILVERDALE.

Through the generosity of Mr. F. J. Dickens, of Silverdale, the National Trust has acquired further property in the neighbourhood of the Lake District. This is Castle Barrow, Silverdale, a bold headland overlooking Morecambe Bay, comprising about twenty-seven acres, and a favourite resort of tourists and visitors.

LONDON LETTER.

THE GENERAL ELECTION

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

In political circles it is expected that the general election will close on Thursday with the quietude which has been the characteristic of the present contest. This general election, while the quietest in the memory of most people, is also the largest, both as regards candidates and voters. Only in a few instances has there been anything in the nature of organised interruption at political meetings, while the exchange of personalities has been much less than usual. It is calculated that £600 will be the average expenditure for every candidate, and this, with seventeen hundred and thirty candidates, gives an expenditure of considerably over one million sterling. The costliest election of recent years was that of 1910, when the expenditure amounted to a million and a quarter. Another outstanding feature is the open character of the contest; for there are so many new electors that nobody ventures to give anything approaching a definite prophecy.

A Stalemate.

With the near approach of the general election the feeling is growing in political circles that it may end in a stalemate, with nobody securing the necessary majority to form an independent Government. In the circumstances, it is not surprising that there is much talk as to another election within a very short period, and in some quarters it is predicted that it will take place this year. It is not difficult to imagine the circumstances in which the Crown may grant a dissolution of the new Parliament, but it is certain that every avenue will be explored before any such step is taken. The three parties will certainly be anxious to avoid, if possible, a further appeal to the country, owing to the enormous expense involved; but, in the event of three parties of almost equal strength being returned, each with no desire to co-operate with any other, it will be difficult to resist the argument for another general election.

The Premier's Appeal.

With the polling cards of Conservative electors a letter is enclosed from the Prime Minister, making a personal appeal to voters to go to the poll on Thursday and vote for the Conservative candidate. This letter is headed 10 Downing street, and bears the Royal Arms, usually impressed upon Government stationery. The Liberals assume that this is an offence against the law, and columns are devoted to-day with a view to showing that the name and address of the printer must appear on the face of everything issued in connection with an election. They are making much ado about nothing; for the appeal was issued by the Conservative headquarters, and is perfectly legal. On the face of it, it is apparent that the Prime Minister is the writer, and that he lives at No. 10 Downing street. At the Conservative headquarters it was pointed out that the object of the law was to trace all election matter, and, although an imprint is necessary in the case of all posters and leaflets, in this case it is not deemed necessary.

The Results.

In 202 constituencies the votes will be counted immediately after the poll has been closed on Thursday evening, including 156 English boroughs and county divisions, thirty-four London boroughs, seven Welsh and five Scottish constituencies. At the last general election the first result to be received was that of Salford; but, on this occasion, it is expected that Bury will be the first result announced. Bury hopes to have its figures out by ten o'clock, and Salford, Manchester and Liverpool are expected to follow in an hour or so. As most of the polling stations will be open to about nine p.m., it will probably be four o'clock, or later, on Friday morning before some of the figures are announced.

Ministerial Contests.

The figures concerning the election of Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald will not be announced until Friday afternoon, but the fate of several Cabinet Ministers should be known on Thursday night, these being Sir Austen Chamberlain, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Sir Samuel Hoare, Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, and Sir L. Worthington Evans. The principal Opposition leaders whose polls will be announced on Thursday night are Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. Clynes, Sir Herbert Samuel, and Sir Robert Hutchison.

Royal Garden Party.

The Royal garden party at Buckingham Palace, the culmination and close of the London season, will take place on Thursday, June 25th. It will be of more remarkable character than usual, owing to the presence of a great number of young people, as all the débutantes of the season are to be invited. The function will be a "record" one, from the point of view of numbers, since the invitation to the young people will not interfere with the usual list.

Hiawatha.

Two seats in a loggia box at the Albert Hall for the Royal Choral Society's performance of "Hiawatha" on June 10th have been set apart for the Prime Minister; but, as his personality is at present unknown, the tickets have been reserved in the name of "Mr. X." The Royal Choral Society invites the Prime Minister only on very special occasions, and this will be one; for the forthcoming production of "Hiawatha" is to surpass that of last year. The arena and concert platform will be used as stage, and ten thousand square feet of mountain landscape, the biggest scenic back cloth on record, will be used, with a real waterfall, while the chorus will include one thousand Red Indians.

The Sultan of Zanzibar.

The visit of the Sultan of Zanzibar, which will start on Saturday, is of more than common interest; for, while it is one of courtesy, it has business associations. It is understood that the Sultan has been invited by the British Government in order that it may discuss with him the early cession of the ten-mile strip of littoral on the coast of the Kenya Protectorate. At present the British Government pays about £16,000 a year to Zanzibar as rent for this area; but embarrassing situations have arisen over this fact, and, since a revision of the Congo Basin Treaty of some thirty years old is due in 1930, it is hoped to reach an arrangement regarding this littoral during the Sultan's visit.

Absolute Zero.

The feat of Professor Keeson, who has succeeded in refrigerating helium to within less than a degree of absolute zero, is of great interest. Absolute zero is minus 273 degrees centigrade. For many years scientists have been endeavouring to reach this temperature, but it has so far proved impossible. It was thought at one time that the temperature would be reached, but it would be found that a different formula of contraction would have to be applied. Now it is held that the formula is accurate, but that the temperature never can be used.

LORD BALFOUR.

EXCEED

RIDDLE OF THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

CONSERVATIVES HOPE FOR A CLEAR MAJORITY OF FIFTY.

RIVAL PARTY VIEWS.

POLL TO-MORROW NOT EXPECTED TO EXCEED 70 % OF THE ELECTORATE.

Inquiries at the headquarters of the political parties in Great Britain and among highly skilled observers capable of forming an independent and impartial judgment, show that even in the most experienced quarters forecasts of the result of the election cover almost the whole range of Parliamentary possibilities.

There are experts who predict a Conservative majority of from twenty to fifty over all other parties combined, while other experts foresee a bare Labour majority over all other parties. On the Liberal side there are electioneering authorities, who, while not ruling out the possibility of a Liberal majority over the two other parties, expect the Liberals to be the strongest party in a house where no party has an independent majority.

The Three Views.

Here are, in summarised form, the views of the headquarters of the three parties, based in each case on the final estimates of the party's election agents throughout the country:—

CONSERVATIVE: We retain our confidence in the Prime Minister's forecast—a Conservative majority of about fifty over all other parties combined. There is no sign of a landslide against the Government in any quarter whatsoever.

LABOUR: We are out for a majority over all other parties put together, and even if we fail to get it there is a practical certainty that Labour will be the strongest party in the House.

LIBERAL: The Conservatives will lose two hundred seats, of which the greater proportion will come to us. It will not be astonishing if the Conservatives are the smallest party in the new House of Commons.

At the dissolution the strength of parties in the House of Commons was:—

CONSERVATIVE	400
LABOUR	162
LIBERAL	46
INDEPENDENTS	7

If the Conservative forecast is realised there will be about 330 Conservatives in the new House of Commons. Labour to get a bare majority over the other parties must return 308 members, and the Liberals, if they realise the headquarters' estimate, will have 150, or more, members in the new House.

What the Leaders Say.

The individual views of the party leaders are in harmony with the estimates worked out by their headquarters. Mr. Baldwin's forecast has already been quoted. The other leaders have said:—

MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD: One of the things I am sure of is the return of a Labour Government. My own belief is that Labour will have a majority over the other two parties.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE: I predict a complete overthrow of the present Government, and of its candidates.

Two entirely new factors are chiefly responsible for the wide differences of opinion among the experts—the enormous increase in the electorate and the unprecedented number of contests in which there are more than two candidates.

Triangular Contests.

The 1924 election was fought on a register of 21,700,000 electors; this time the electorate numbers 28,500,000.

Of the 589 constituencies where the election is being contested there are three or more candidates in 489.

According to one authority, the triangle works out differently in different places. In some places it helps the Conservative; in others the Labour or the Liberal candidate.

In general, the triangle is believed to operate most actively against the party which is least in favour in the constituency concerned. It told against the Liberals at the last election. Liberals and Labour think that this time Conservative candidates will suffer most from the triangle, but the Conservative opinion is that the Liberals will again be the chief sufferers.

The theory of the experts is that the average elector is most unwilling to give his vote to a candidate who appears likely to be at the bottom of the poll, even if that candidate should on party questions be the elector's own choice.

No "Cup Tie" Atmosphere.

Another factor which makes election prophecy exceptionally difficult at this election is the marked change in the temper of audiences. All who have taken an active part in the campaign have been impressed by the air of sweet reasonableness which has pervaded the constituencies. The "cup-tie atmosphere," to use Mr. Baldwin's descriptive phrase, has been conspicuous by its absence.

Conservatives claim that the harmless and apparent thoughtfulness of the electorate are largely attributable to the manner in which the Prime Minister, in appealing to reason and good judgment, has conducted the election as leader of the Conservative Party. His supporters consider that his deliberate avoidance of what he called "pre-war electioneering methods" has set the tone of the campaign for all parties, and has given the country the quietest, most orderly and most thoughtful election in its history.

Fewer Window Cards.

Personally, the Prime Minister has the most complete confidence that the method of reasoning appeal will give him the House of Commons he wants, but election experts lament the absence of the strong manifestations of feeling which foretell results. Even window cards are not so popular as they used to be when allowance is made for the great increase in the electorate.

All the old guides to the direction in which mass opinion is going at the election are missing.

The only reason that induces Conservatives to look for the loss of seats tomorrow is that no party with a record majority in the House of Commons can hope to retain the whole of its majority after nearly five years of office. Conservatives, however, will certainly be surprised if their losses exceed the normal penalties of a great majority and long term of office; for they can detect no sign of violence in the swing of the pendulum.

The party headquarters will also be surprised if the Liberals are not at the bottom of the poll. The Liberal survey admits the possibility of Labour successes in the industrial areas, but claims Liberal victories here, as well as in the county divisions.

It is estimated that 1924's poll of 16,640,741 voters will be exceeded because of the large number of new electors who will vote for the first time, but the voting percentage of the electorate is expected to be less than eighty per cent. of the last election. Most of the experts predict a seventy per cent. poll.

LABOUR APPEAL FALLS FLAT IN U.S.

From "The Times" Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Mr. Morris Hillquit, the American Socialist Party's representative on the Executive Committee of the Labour and Socialists' International, who has been collecting funds in America for the British Labour Party's campaign, states that the total sum collected up to now is 2,347 dollars, about £469. The largest individual donation was 200 dollars.

T.D.'S SUPPORT FOR LABOUR.

DEPUTY-SPEAKER ATTACKS MR. LLOYD GEORGE.

Mr. Dan Morrissy, Deputy-Speaker in the Irish Free State Parliament, spoke at Holyhead last night in support of Mr. William Edwards, Labour candidate in the Anglesey Division.

"Mr. Lloyd George," he said, "boasts of having made peace in Ireland, but we know quite well the conditions under which he made peace; and, if he claims this, we can claim that he prosecuted the worst and most barbarous tyranny against that country during the time of the 'Black and Tans' ever waged by any British Prime Minister or any Government."

This election, he added, was not a national struggle, but an international struggle, in that the result would have a great effect upon the Labour movement and the workers generally, not merely in Britain, but throughout Europe.

CATHOLICS AND THE ELECTION.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY CHEERED.

There were remarkable scenes at a monster demonstration of Roman Cathilics at Liverpool last night, after they had been addressed by the Rev. M. O'Ryan on the question of their duty at the general election in relation to the Catholic schools' question.

After the address there were cheers for the Conservative Party.

Father O'Ryan, speaking to the crowd, said:—"I want to make it clear from the very beginning that there is no better Labour man in Liverpool than Father O'Ryan. I am not a Conservative. I stand under no Red, White and Blue Flag, neither under the Red Flag, but only under the flag of Peter—the Roman Flag. There is no question of Toryism, Liberalism or Labour with me. I am simply reiterating what the bishops in England are asking you to do, and that is to vote for the man and the party who will guarantee the safety of our Catholic schools."

FREE FIGHT AT A MEETING.

TWO STEWARDS INJURED.

A disturbance occurred at a meeting held by Sir James P. Reynolds, Conservative candidate in the Exchange Division of Liverpool, last night, and two stewards were removed to hospital, one suffering from a deep cut behind the ear, and the other from a cut under the eye.

The nature of the wounds suggested that razors had been used. After the wounds were dressed the men were taken home.

On Monday night one of Sir James Reynolds's meetings had to be abandoned because of interruptions. As soon as Sir James appeared on the platform last night he was interrupted by a man. One of the thirty-four stewards approached a heckler, and asked him to give the candidate a fair hearing. The heckler, it is alleged, suddenly struck out. Other stewards went to their colleague's assistance, and in a moment the back of the Hall was in confusion.

After a fierce fight, in which fists and belts were used freely, the stewards succeeded in removing the hostile mob. Police reserves were brought to the scene by the police motor patrol and cleared the street, and a cordon was drawn fifty yards on each side of the building.

When the fight was over the two stewards were found bleeding on the ground. The police made no arrests. Sir James afterwards proceeded with his address without further interruption.

DEATH OF RUGBY LABOUR CANDIDATE.

TRIBUTES BY HIS POLITICAL OPPONENTS.

Rugby Conservative and Liberal candidates unite in paying tributes to Mr. Harry Yates, their Labour opponent for Rugby, who died last Monday evening.

Captain Margesson writes:—"Mr. Yates was a clean fighter, a fair opponent, and a man incapable of doing a mean or petty thing. I have lost a friend; Rugby has lost a citizen who has been tireless in his efforts to promote her welfare."

Mr. Bernays states:—"I recall an occasion when I was first in Rugby, and was attending a public function, and was feeling rather shy and strange. Mr. Yates came and introduced me all round, and, by his fair kindliness, made me feel immediately at home. In the public life of Rugby he played a distinguished part. He was an untiring and courageous fighter, a great public servant, and a resolute champion of his party."

THE NORTHERN PARLIAMENT.

STATE OPENING TO-DAY.

HON. H. MULHOLLAND AS SPEAKER.

FROM OUR BELFAST CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

The third Parliament of Northern Ireland will be opened in State at noon to-day by the Governor, the Duke of Abercorn.

The first business of the Commons will be the election of a Speaker. The Right Hon. Thomas Moles, M.P., who has been Deputy-Speaker since the Parliament's inception, was invited to succeed Sir Hugh O'Neill, who has retired from the office; but for personal reasons he declined the appointment.

It is understood that the election of Captain the Hon. Harry Mulholland as Speaker will be moved from the Government benches, and that he will be appointed without opposition. The Right Hon. Thomas Moles, it is understood, will be re-elected Deputy-Speaker and Chairman of Ways and Means.

THE NEW SPEAKER.

Captain the Hon. Harry Mulholland is the second surviving son of Lord Dunleath, of Ballywalter Park, Co. Down, and is one of the most popular members of the House, to which he was elected in 1921 as one of the members for County Down. He was highly esteemed by all sections of the last Parliament, and when he occupied the chair, as he not infrequently did during the temporary absence of the Speaker and Deputy-Speaker, he displayed qualities of tact, fairness and good humour, and his rulings were invariably respected.

At the recent election Captain Mulholland was returned for the Ards Division by a majority of 5,738, the largest of all the Unionist majorities.

Captain Mulholland, who was born in 1888, was educated at Eton, like his predecessor in the Speakership, and took his B.A. at Cambridge. He was reading for the Bar when war was declared in 1914, and he obtained a commission in the Royal Marines and served in Belgium. Afterwards he was a gunnery instructor in the Royal Air Force.

In the general election of 1918 Captain Mulholland stood as a Coalition Unionist candidate for Burnley, but was not successful. He was appointed Assistant Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Finance in the Northern Ireland Parliament in 1926, and has also acted as Junior Government Whip.

THE NEW COMMONS.

The personnel of the House of Commons has been altered considerably since the last session. The new members on the Government side are—Major Blakiston-Houston (Dock Division), Sir Basil Brooke (Lisnaskea), Lieutenant-Commander Chichester Clarke (South Derry), the Rev. Professor Corkey (Queen's), Colonel A. R. Gordon (East Down), Mr. A. W. Hungerford (Oldpark), Mr. J. Johnston (North Armagh), Major M'Cormick (St. Anne's), Mr. Hugh Minford (Antrim), Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C. (City of Derry); Major Hall Thompson (Clifton), Mr. G. C. G. Young (Bannside).

The only woman member of the House is Mrs. W. A. Waring, elected for the Iveagh Division of County Down. Mrs. Parker, the only woman member in the last Parliament, did not seek re-election, and her place in the representation of County Derry will be taken by her son-in-law, Lieutenant-Commander Chichester Clarke.

On the Nationalist benches the new members will be Alderman Richard Byrne (Falls), Mr. Joseph Connellon (South Down), Mr. H. K. McAleer (Mid-Tyrone), Mr. J. J. M'Carroll (Foyle) and Mr. J. Stewart (East Tyrone), while Alderman W. J. Nixon and Mr. R. N. McNeill are two new Independent Unionists, though it is possible that Mr. McNeill may sit on the Government side of the House.

On the Opposition side two prominent members of the Labour Party will be missing—Mr. Sam Kyle, who was the official leader of the Opposition, and Mr. William McMullen. Others who frequently took part in debates on the Opposition side, and who will be missed, are Colonel P. J. Woods, D.S.O.; Mr. J. Gyle, Mr. George Henderson, Mr. P. M'Hugh and Mr. T. J. S. Harbison.

At 3.30 p.m. to-day the State opening of Parliament will take place with the customary ceremonial. The Governor will read the King's Speech.

GIFTS TO FREE STATE.

MINISTER'S THANKS TO DONORS.

The Free State Minister for Finance announces the receipt of two further gifts to the State for the reduction of the National Debt from donors who desire that their identity should not be disclosed. The first gift is a sum of ten guineas, and, in accordance with the wishes of the donor, the money has been applied in the purchase of stock of the Second National Loan.

In the other case the gift takes the form of the transfer to the Minister for Finance of £500 stock of the First National Loan, and this stock has now been cancelled. The present value of each of these gifts is considerably enhanced by the accumulation of the dividends payable on the stock until the latter matures for payment.

SHAMROCK'S ILL-LUCK.

SAIL LOST DURING RACE.

Sir Thomas Lipton's cutter Shamrock, which retired in the chief event at the Royal Harwich Yacht Club's regatta on Monday, lost her foresail in yesterday's race from Harwich to Southend, and arrived half an hour after her four competitors.

The race was won by Sir A. Mortimer Singer's Astra in 3 hours 24 minutes 11 seconds, Mr. H. A. Andreae's Candida being second. Lord Waring's White Heather third, and Sir William Berry's Cambria fourth.

A seaplane followed the race. The five boats are due to compete to-day in the forty miles Thames Estuary race in connection with the Southend Yachting Week.

MISSING BANKER FOUND DEAD.

IN WOOD WITH PISTOL BY SIDE.

FAREWELL NOTE.

BULLET WOUND IN TEMPLE.

The body of Mr. John Edward Mounsey (49), the missing director of Barclay's Bank, was last night found at Chilmead Farm, Merstham, Surrey. He had been shot through the right temple.

The discovery was made about 8 p.m., and the body was taken to Bletchingley Mortuary. The inquest probably will be held to-morrow.

Chilmead Farm is at Nutfield, a village between Merstham and Oxted. Frederick Arnold, a farm labourer, was walking through a wood when he saw the body of a man lying in the undergrowth. He gave information to the police, and Superintendent Clayden, of Oxted, and other officers went to the spot with a police ambulance.

A pistol was near the body. Letters in the dead man's jacket pocket proved that the body was that of Mr. Mounsey.

THE DISAPPEARANCE.

The circumstances of the disappearance of Mr. Mounsey are as follows:—

On Wednesday morning last he left Glyndebourne, near Lewes, for London. He informed the chauffeur when he arrived in Lewes that he had calls to make, and that he would, therefore, not take the 8.33 train.

Mrs. Mounsey left for London in a motor car with a woman friend, in order to keep a dinner appointment with her husband at their Eaton place house. Mr. Mounsey failed to keep the appointment, and Scotland Yard and the Lewes police were informed.

It was later learned that, after dismissing his car, Mr. Mounsey visited his tailor and was fitted for an overcoat. After leaving the tailor's he visited a gunsmith and bought a double-barrelled sporting pistol, described by the gunsmith as "non lethal." The gunsmith was unable to provide ammunition for the weapon.

MANY FALSE TRAILS.

Mr. Mounsey was last seen on the Lewes station apparently waiting for the 10.32 train to Brighton, which would enable him to catch a fast train to London.

A widespread search was made, and the Downs were not only thoroughly scoured on foot, but Captain Christie, whose guest Mr. Mounsey was at Glyndebourne, conducted an aeroplane search. A reward of five hundred pounds was offered, and reports were received from people who were confident that they had seen the missing man in various places, but all these led on false trails.

FARMER INTERVIEWED.

Mr. Frank Durman, who lives at Chilmead Farm, told a Press representative that no one resembling Mr. Mounsey had been seen in the neighbourhood.

"The farm," he said, "is one of between three hundred and four hundred acres, and it would be possible for a body to lie in a remote spot for months without it being noticed. Arnold, one of my workmen, found the body shortly after eight o'clock. I know very few details at present, but the police are investigating.

"The farm is directly adjoining Redhill Station. A path leads directly through the farm to the station approach, and anyone could leave the station and walk on to the farm without being noticed. I was away from home at the time of the discovery."

The place where the body was found comes within the jurisdiction of the Oxted police, and inquiries were being made last night under the direction of Superintendent Claydon.

MAN WHO FOUND THE BODY.

Frederick Arnold, the farm worker, who found the body, in an interview, said that the body was lying in thick undergrowth. The man had a small double-barrelled pistol in his hand, and there was a wound in his temple. An attaché case, an umbrella, and a newspaper were lying beside him. The man was fully dressed, and was wearing a blue suit.

"I ran at once and told the police at Merstham," said Arnold. "They at once came to the spot with me. We examined the gun, and found that one cartridge was spent. The cartridge in the second barrel was loaded. There were some more cartridges in the attaché case beside him.

DEAD A WEEK?

"I could see the man had been dead for some time, and one of the officers told me that he had been dead for about a week.

"The body was about a hundred and fifty yards from the footpath which runs from Redhill Station through the farm. The spot is about three-quarters of a mile from Redhill Station. It is a very lonely place, and a man could reach it from the station without being seen. I wandered there while I was cutting firewood.

"It was just a chance that I went in that direction. The body might have remained there for months without being found. The man was lying flat on his back in a copse under an old tree. I did not notice the date of the newspaper. I did not notice any papers or letters."

A FAREWELL NOTE.

A number of personal effects were found on the body, including, it is stated, a farewell note, in which Mr. Mounsey referred to the state of his health.

BAN ON FOREIGN CHERRIES.

BRITISH ORDER.

A ban has been placed on foreign cherries by the British Minister of Agriculture.

It is announced in the London Gazette that an order has been made under the Destructive Insects and Pests Acts prohibiting the importation into England and Wales of raw cherries from Italy and France, and laying down that cherries from other European countries must be accompanied by a certificate of origin.

From June 10th cherries from the Apulia district of Italy will be excluded. The products of the Basilicata, Calabria and Campania regions will be affected on June 20th, and on June 30th the whole of Italy will come under the ban.

All France, with the exception of a small area in the North, will be involved from July 6th, but the order will apply to cherries from the southern area from June 15th, and to fruit grown in the central area from June 20th.

The reason for the order is not stated.

THE FAMOUS MARSHAL'S TABLE.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT ACTION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

The Minister of Fine Arts and Education has definitely exercised the right of pre-emption conferred on him by law, and a magnificent table, known as the Marshal's table, will go to the Malmaison National Museum.

NOTED IRISH WRITER.

DEATH OF MRS. A. STOPFORD GREEN.

HER GIFT TO FREE STATE SENATE.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Alice Stopford Green, which took place yesterday evening at her residence, 90 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, two days before her eighty-second birthday. Mrs. Green had been in failing health for some months, but she had only been confined to her room since Saturday week. Her death will be mourned by a wide circle of friends in this country and in England; both as a great personality and as a woman of very high attainments she had been the centre of a brilliant coterie in both countries.

She was the daughter of Archdeacon Stopford, of Kells, and married, in 1877, John Richard Green, the historian, who died in 1883. Sir Leslie Stephen, in his "Life and Letters of John Richard Green," deplores the inability of a biographer to give an adequate picture of the happiness of such a couple as the Greens; but there is enough and to spare in his record to stir the imagination to weave visions of what those few years of a great comradeship must have been.

Many years before the two had met, Mr. Green is quoted as writing to a friend of the ideal wife: "Someone who can read my horrible scrawl, and copy my manuscript for the printers." Then after a few years of marriage that had resulted in a partnership of work and dreams excelling even the highest he could have asked for, he is described as preventing his wife from destroying some notes she had made for him with her left hand while she was recovering from an attack of writer's cramp in both hands. "Whenever I think I can do no more," he told her, "I look at that, and go on." Towards the end of his long struggle to keep on with his work in the face of failing strength, he said that what had kept him alive was his dread of separation from her.

THE LATE MRS. STOPFORD GREEN

A DISTINGUISHED CIRCLE.

During their brief married life and the years she spent in London after his death, her drawingroom was the nearest approach to the salon of earlier days that London knew in her time. Her circle of friends included Gladstone, Tennyson, Browning, Mary Kingsley, Florence Nightingale, H. A. L. Fisher, E. A. Freeman, Lord Bryce, Henry James, Lord MacDonnell, Dr. Mandell Creighton, Dr. Davidson, the Sydney Webbs, Lady Airlie, the Humphrey Wards, Lord Haldane, and Kuno Meyer.

Mrs. Green came to live in Dublin some years before the setting up of the Irish Free State, but her influence had long been felt to a great degree in all matters connected with Irish culture. The School of Irish Learning owed much to her generous interest and sympathy. In political matters her great prestige was often valuable in bringing together men of Irish and English blood, whose meeting and co-operation helped in the solution of many problems.

She became one of the first Senators of the Irish Free State on the nomination of President Cosgrave, and was a regular attendant at the meetings of the Senate, though she was not a frequent speaker, and she took no part in any matters of controversy.

HER GIFT TO THE SENATE.

All parties of the Senate expressed their appreciation of her generosity and patriotism, when, on November 26, 1924, the Upper Chamber accepted from her a present in the form of a jewelled casket, beautifully designed in ancient workmanship. The casket was to be retained by the Senate as a shrine to hold a vellum scroll containing the names of the members of the first Senate. Through indisposition the donor was unable to attend and make the presentation herself, when the casket was accepted on behalf of the Senate by Senator S. L. Brown, K.C., and Senator James Douglas. By general consent of the Senate, expressed by Senator Sir Thomas Grattan Esmonde, it was decided that the eloquent message from Mrs. Green should have a permanent resting-place with the scroll in the casket. In the course of the message, which breathed the writer's love for Ireland in every line, she said:—

"Whether we are of ancient Irish descent, or of later Irish birth, we are united in one people, and we are bound by one lofty obligation to complete the building of our common nation. We have lived under the breadth of her skies, we have been fed by the fatness of her fields, and nourished by the civilisation of her dead. Our people lie in her earth, and we ourselves must in that earth await our doom. We have shared our country's sorrows, and we expect her joys. 'The mother that nursed us is she, and when we have looked on her she is not unlovely.' To Ireland we have given our faith. In Ireland is our hope."

Another instance of her remarkable generosity was her gift, in 1925, to the Library of University College, of a large part of the books accumulated by her husband.

LITERARY WORKS.

Mrs. Green's contributions to literature were acknowledged by the conferring on her of the honorary degree of D.Litt. by Liverpool University, and by the National University of Ireland.

Her first book was a life of Henry II., written in 1888 for the "Twelve English Statesmen" series; this was followed by "Town Life in the Fifteenth Century," and a contribution of hers to the Nineteenth Century described her experiences when she was the only civilian admitted to St. Helena during the Boer war; she remained on the island for some time, and was in constant communication with the prisoners. Her books on Ireland were:—"Irish Nationality," "The Making of Ireland and Its Undoing," "The Old Irish World," "Irish National Tradition," "History of the Irish State to 1014," "The Government of Ireland," and some pamphlets—"Ourselves Alone in Ulster," "Loyalty and Disloyalty—What it Means in Ireland," and Studies from Irish History." Her book, "Woman's Place in the World of Letters," embodies her literary tribute to her own sex. She also revised and edited several of her husband's historical works.

The dominating force of her later life was her passionate affection for Ireland and the Irish people; her aim, in all she wrote, was to do for the Irish, what her husband had done in his work for the English race.

LATE NEWS.

ROYAL BROTHERS IN BOMBAY.

FLOWERS AND FRUIT FOR KING AMANULLAH.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

BOMBAY, Tuesday.

King Amanullah, his half-brother, King Inayatullah, and their families have spent a busy day at the Taj Mahal Hotel receiving visitors. There was a constant stream of baskets of flowers and fruit, which were gratefully acknowledged by King Amanullah and Queen Surayya.

The Queen's condition—like her sister, Queen Kokab, the consort of King Inayatullah, she is expecting her confinement—does not permit of her removal to hospital. She will probably remain in the hotel.

King Amanullah did not leave the hotel, but took exercise by walking in the corridors. Some of the women of the party, including several in European dress, drove round the city in motor cars. Almost all the girls and women of the party had their hair bobbed or slingled to-day.

THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN.

FIGHTING FAIR AND FOUL.

In a leading article The Times observes: More and more as the election draws closer Mr. Baldwin stands out among the party leaders as the one man who has had the courage and the restraint to conduct his campaign in a manner worthy of a great democracy. He has acted throughout in the full spirit of the confidence—expressed before the dissolution in his speech at Drury Lane—that "the people think; they are thirsting for knowledge, and above all they want to do the right thing." His election policy has been framed on the assumption that the electorate are capable of putting national before individual interests, of preferring a sober to a boastful record of the past, and of distinguishing between practicable and bombastic promises for the future.

His advocacy has been void of any trace of recrimination against politicians, and replete with reasoned criticisms of policies. Even in the thick of an election campaign he has kept constantly before him the ideal of peace in the family of British industry, and has said nothing which might endanger it. He has recalled, as it was his duty to recall, the memories of "old unhappy far-off things;" but he has used even his opponents' record during 1926 as a means, not so much to castigate their weakness, as to welcome the new spirit of co-operation which he has seen during his term of office—first struggling, then eclipsed, and finally in strong and hopeful growth. His whole effort has been to convince and not to prejudice the electorate.

In melancholy contrast to this clean fighting are some of the publications being circulated in the constituencies by both the Liberal and the Socialist Parties; for the Conservative leaflets, inspired by Mr. Baldwin's example, seem on a broad survey to be limited, for the most part, to a record of facts. The White Paper, no doubt, was a serious blunder in form, but its substance was unimpeachable, and the latest outcry—that Mr. Baldwin (who, after all, is still Prime Minister) should have used a sheet of official Downing street notepaper for an autograph election message—only illustrates the real difficulty of his opponents in finding causes of offence. The scurrilous attack upon Mr. Baldwin's personal character contained in the second pamphlet of the so-called British Public Men series has, indeed, very properly been repudiated and condemned by the Liberal Party, whose interests it purported to promote.

THE GERMAN MARKS QUESTION.

BELGIUM'S ATTITUDE.

BRUSSELS, Tuesday.

In the light of information received from an authoritative source on the subject of the repayment of the marks left in Belgium by the Germans after the armistice, I am able to state that the Belgian Government entirely excludes the possibility of a separate arrangement between Belgium and Germany.

The Belgian position at the Conference of Experts is quite clear. Belgium will not accept any solution put forward by the Conference that would not link repayment of the marks with the general settlement of the reparations problem, as it was included in the memorandum of April 12th, and in the latest Note fixing the demands of the creditors.

FOREIGNERS IN FRANCE.

SAME FOOTING AS FRENCH FOR EX-SOLDIERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

There was a vote in the Chamber of Deputies to-day of particular interest to foreigners in France.

The Chamber had begun the real business of the new session by taking up again the Rent Restriction Bill, which it had started to discuss before the Recess. The bill extends the privileges of holders of pre-war leases to 1934 or later, according to rentals, but qualifies the extension by allowing a gradual increase of rentals on a fixed scale.

The bill proposed to grant foreigners the same privileges as Frenchmen. To-day, however, a Right Wing amendment was moved, denying the extension of the privileges to foreigners other than those who had fought in the Allied Forces during the war.

Although the Government opposed the amendment it was carried by 318 votes to 266.

LAST SEEN OFF TRISTAN.

Lloyd's state that the following message has been received by the owners of the steamer Halesius from the master, dated May 27:—

Report from Tristan, January 21, "small ship, four-five masts, sighted west Tristan. Seemed evident in distress. Only small jib sail set. Thought would strike reef as well inside beds kelp. As neither wreckage, anything else washed up presumed must have cleared island. Sea very rough. Islanders unable launch boat find out her name destination." May 13.—"Gough Island examined under perfect weather conditions. Explosive signals used. No trace of Danish Kobenhavn survivors."

[Note.—The Halesius, bound from Calcutta to the Plate, was due to call at Tristan da Cunha with provisions for the islanders and was directed to search for the Kobenhavn. The Kobenhavn is a five-masted barque with an auxiliary oil engine, and had not been seen since she left Buenos Aires on December 14 for Melbourne. She carried a number of naval cadets. Search for her in the southern seas has hitherto been in vain.]

ATTACKED BY A BEAR.

MAN BADLY INJURED.

Attacked by a small bear in a private zoo belonging to Mr. Albert Sutcliffe, of Grimsby, a friend of the latter, Mr. R. Suggitt, of Cleethorpes, is in bed unable to walk.

The animal had been friendly to Mr. Suggitt, but on this occasion it turned on him when he entered its cage. Excited onlookers shut the cage door on the struggling pair, and, as it could not be opened from the inside, Mr. Suggitt was unable to escape until attendants had arrived and beaten the animal off.

Mr. Suggitt is recovering, but his legs were badly bitten.

Mr. W. E. Wilder, Vice-President of Wood, Grundy and Company, and a prominent Canadian financier, died in Toronta yesterday, aged forty.

IRISH TOURIST TRAFFIC.

GOVERNMENT STEP IN FREE STATE.

SUPERVISION OF THE ASSOCIATION.

The Irish Tourist Association, according to an announcement in last night's issue of the Dublin Gazette, is now officially recognised by the Free State Government, under certain conditions, one of which is that its accounts are audited by an auditor of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health.

The Minister for Industry and Commerce, it is stated, has approved of a scheme under which every contribution made under sub-section 2 of section 67 of the Local Government Act, 1925, to the funds of the Association shall be expended during the financial year 1929-1930.

DETAILS OF THE SCHEME.

This scheme provides that the Association shall retain not more than 12½ per cent. of all contributions for administrative purposes in connection with the expenditure of such contributions and for the recoupment to members of the Executive Committee of the amount of any personal expenses incurred in connection with their attendance at meetings of that body.

Subject to the retention of this percentage, all contributions are to be expended on publicity and tourist bureaux. Lecture tours also may be organised, subject to the sanction of the Minister for Industry and Commerce being obtained for each tour.

PUBLICITY PROVISIONS.

Publicity, both national and local, is provided for as follows:—

LOCAL—For areas of individual contributing authorities.

NATIONAL—Provided that such publicity shall be limited to recognised forms of advertisement, and that in the preparation, purchase and circulation of material for such publicity expenditure will be limited to certain amounts allotted for this purpose under the headings Editorial, Art, Tourist Bureaux and Lecture Tours.

A contribution of £100 to the Travel Association of Great Britain and Ireland also is included under the heading of Publicity.

EXPENDITURE ALLOWED.

The expenditure under the different heads—which may be increased with the sanction of the Minister for Industry and Commerce—and the nature of the work involved is set out as follows:—

EDITORIAL (£600)—In the preparation of literary matter (i) for publication in maps, brochures, guides, and similar forms of advertisement; (ii) for insertion in newspapers.

ART (£400)—In the production or purchase and circulation of pictorial illustrations, films and lantern slides.

TOURIST BUREAUX (£2,000)—In the organisation, establishment and maintenance of Tourist Information Bureaux for the purpose of distributing advertising literature and giving personal information.

It is provided that the Association shall submit to each contributing authority a detailed scheme showing the objects on which it is proposed to expend the aggregate of the contributions, after retention of not more than 12½ per cent. for administrative purposes.

"GUILLOTINE" IN THE DAIL.

PROMISE OF LIVELY DEBATE TO-DAY.

FROM OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

The motion of Mr. Ernest Blythe, Minister of Finance, to introduce the "guillotine" in the debate on the Juries (Protection) Bill will come before Dail Eireann to-day.

He proposes that the debate on the bill should be confined to the following periods:—

Committee stage—Six hours.
Report stage—Three hours.
Final stage—One hour.

The second reading debate took place a fortnight ago, and since then the Opposition has been submitting amendments by the score for the Committee stage, which was "ordered" to come before the Dail to-day. It is the Government's opinion that most of the 110 amendments tabled were designed rather to obstruct the passage of the bill than to improve its provisions in any respect, the attitude of the Opposition, apparently, being that since the measure is obnoxious to the Republicans outside the House, its enactment should be resisted demonstratively, and at as great length as possible.

COMPROMISE EFFORT FAILS.

The Ministry was not prepared to tolerate a repetition of the obstructionist tactics pursued in connection with the passage of the Public Safety Act; hence Mr. Blythe's motion.

I believe that the Executive Council would have been willing to allocate at least two sittings to each stage of the bill if it had received any assurance of "sweet reasonableness" on the part of the Opposition, but since Mr. de Valera and his colleagues have made no secret of their grim determination to resist every clause and stage of the bill, the Government has decided to take other measures.

Mr. Blythe's motion is expected to provoke a spirited debate, and not improbably the Ministry will use the weapon of the closure to terminate it within the period of the sitting.

SUBMARINE IN COLLISION.

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE.

After being in collision with the steamer Vale of Mowbray, bound from Ghent for Newport, the British submarine H28 was able to proceed to Ghent. Neither vessel was seriously damaged.

The submarine belongs to a flotilla which arrived at Ghent on May 25th, and is due back at Harwich within the next few days.

RUSSIAN PLOTS IN CHINA.

EXCITING RAID ON CONSULATE.

THREE WOMEN AMONG THE PRISONERS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PEKING, Tuesday.

Following the precedent set by his father, Chang Hsiao-liang has raided the Russian Consulate-General's headquarters at Harbin. Employing the civil police, he has removed a truck load of documents and arrested the staff of forty-five men and three women.

Simultaneously the Russian Consulate at Pograni Chenaia was attacked and secret documents seized. The Manchurian authorities allege that information received from documentary evidence at the Consulates show that General Feng Yu-hsiang is in conspiracy with the Russians to deliver China to the Bolsheviks.

EXECUTIONS FEARED.

Vice-President Tilkin, of the Chinese Eastern Railway, has lodged a protest with Chang Ching-hui, the Civil Administrator of Harbin. The latter has replied that the cellars of the Consulates were used as meeting-places for the Third Internationale, where a scheme was being developed to plunge Manchuria into revolution.

The raids recall the sensational attack on the Russian Consulate at Peking by Marshal Chang Tso-lin, which was followed by the execution of a score of Communists. Soviet officials in China are frantically cabling to Moscow fearing possible executions in Harbin.

ATTEMPT TO BURN DOCUMENTS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PEKING, Tuesday.

According to more detailed messages from Harbin the raid on the Soviet Consulate there was carried out by a force of over a hundred Chinese police. The raid was planned with great thoroughness, and the police swooped down unexpectedly on the Consulate buildings.

At the time of the raid a secret meeting of members of the Third Internationale was being held in the basement.

Barred doors had to be broken down in order to gain access to some parts of the building.

In the meantime the Russian officials employed at the Consulate endeavoured to burn a large quantity of documents. In their efforts to destroy their papers they set fire to the building, and the fire brigade had to be called in, amid a scene of great confusion, to quell the outbreak.

RUSSIAN WOMEN ARRESTED.

The police arrested everyone present, including forty-five Russians. Among the prisoners were M. Meriukoff, the Russian Consul-General at Harbin; M. Riznechoff, the Russian Consul-General at Mukden, and three Russian women. The police also impounded a lorry load of documents.

The Chinese police at Harbin have issued a statement saying that the raid was carried out because they suspected that a secret meeting of members of the Third Internationale was being held at the Consulate. They also declare that they discovered arms and opium in the course of the raid.

THE BRITISH BEEF MARKET.

ARGENTINE'S STRONG POSITION.

La Nacion, Buenos Aires, publishes an interview by its London correspondent with Sir Edmund Vestey in regard to the recent articles by Sir William Haldane in The Times. Sir Edmund Vestey said: "The Argentine, with its wonderful grazing lands and open climate, that enables cattle to be carried out of doors the whole year round, will always be able to produce the best quality of beef far more cheaply than the English, Continental, and American farmers can possibly do, with their huge expenses for winter feeding. In my opinion, it is very wrong of Sir William Haldane to broadcast ideas that might induce the English farmer to venture into raising increased numbers of cattle on the idea that America will take Argentine beef in such quantities that famine prices for beef are going to prevail in England.

"Nowhere in the world is there a body of men engaged in cattle-production more alive to the probable future of prices than the Argentine estancieros. Sir William Haldane would be the first to admit that the frigorifico companies, with their wonderful installations for placing the meat and by-products on the world's markets in the best possible condition, and their world-wide selling organisation, with the experience of a lifetime behind them, are far more capable of advising Argentine estancieros upon the world outlook for beef than ever any private individual could be. The Argentine estanciero has always available the friendly advice of the frigorificos every hour of the day the whole year round.

THE WORLD OUTLOOK.

"Argentina has the capacity to produce an unlimited quantity of cattle of a quality that pleases the British public, at a cost lower than in any other country in the world. The English farmer can, therefore, be sure that the joint interests of estanciero and frigorifico will see that cattle are produced at prices fair both to the estanciero and the British consumer, and in any numbers that the markets of the world will take.

"In my opinion, the world outlook for cattle prices during the coming years is for prices that will be remunerative to the cattle growing interests of Argentina. Owing, however, to the cost of stall-feeding through the long winter months in Great Britain, those prices will not enable the British farmer to compete, any more in the future than in the past, in the British market, except for the usual small proportion of Britain's requirements that call for the best home-killed without regard to price."

THE BRANSON MURDER.

BLOOD ANALYSIS RESULT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
MARSEILLES, Tuesday.

The Examining Magistrate who had instructed Dr. Beroud, the head of the Police Laboratory here, to examine the nature of the stains on the wall and the floor of the late Miss Branson's bedroom, as well as those found on her mattress to-day, received the doctor's report.

Dr. Beroud makes it clear that the stains in question were of blood, but not human blood.

NEW SOVIET EXECUTIVE.

132 WOMEN OUT OF 568 MEMBERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
MOSCOW, Tuesday.

The Congress of Soviets of the U.S.S.R. closed to-day. The Congress elected a Central Executive Committee consisting of 586 members, including 132 women.

Among those elected to the Central Executive Committee were Kalinin, Rykov, Stalin, Molotov, Chicherin, Litvinov, Voroshilov, Mikoyan, Bukharin and Tomsky.

Mixim Gorky, who was not a delegate to the Congress, was also elected by a special decision of the delegates.

The Congress approved a five-year plan of economic development, which provides for various new measures for stimulating agriculture.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
MARSEILLES, Tuesday.

The Sultan of Zanzibar, with his suite, arrived here to-day in the British India liner Matiana. He will leave for Paris in the Blue train this evening, and will afterwards proceed to London.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

ROYAL ARMS ON PRIME MINISTER'S LETTER.

CONSERVATIVE ATTITUDE TO CRITICISMS.

The Press Association states that when the new Parliament assembles the Labour members will protest against the appearance of the Royal Arms on the Downing street notepaper used by Mr. Baldwin in the facsimile letter to individual electors, appealing for their support. Mr. Snowden's criticism of the letter caused a stir in political circles in London yesterday. The Conservative Party headquarters officials, who were responsible for distributing the letter, maintained that the Prime Minister, being still the official occupant of No. 10 Downing street, had every right to use his accustomed form of notepaper.

In regard to the technical point that the lithographed letter, although a political leaflet, bore no name of publisher, or printer, the Conservative reply was that legal advice had been taken, and, in view of the obviousness of the source and name of the writer, the usual imprint was unnecessary.

At the Liberal headquarters it was stated: "At the moment we are not taking the matter up at all." A spokesman at the Labour Party headquarters said: "The Labour Party fully supports Mr. Snowden's protest. The use of the Royal Arms on a letter written for party purposes is wholly indefensible. Indeed, there is very strong belief among those familiar with election law that a document of this kind is illegal, because it bears no imprint. Not satisfied with having used an official White Paper for party purposes, the Conservative Party must needs go and use the Royal Arms in the letter to the electors. Mr. Baldwin is not appealing as Prime Minister, but as the head of a political party. What right, therefore, has he to use the Royal Arms?"

MR. BALDWIN'S MIXED DAY.

CHEERED AND BOOED IN THE MIDLANDS.

Mr. Baldwin yesterday spoke at Birmingham, Runcorn and Widnes, as a prelude to his whirlwind tour of Lancashire to-day, when he is expected to make about twelve speeches. It was a day of mixed experiences for him. When he left New Street Station, Birmingham, for Runcorn, after addressing an enthusiastic crowd outside the Birmingham Unionist headquarters, an even larger crowd swarmed on to the platform, cheering wildly and singing patriotic songs.

Earlier in the day his car was surrounded by a jeering and boohing crowd in a working-class district, and when Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who was with him, asked a woman with a baby, "How is the baby?" the woman shouted, "A fat lot you care about the baby; it was you who took the milk away from them."

At Widnes the Premier's speech was frequently interrupted

Points from his speeches:—

"We are not going to have a dictatorship. We have got to govern ourselves or burst."

"So long as we are on this earth we shall never all be equal, but I do want to get equality of opportunity."

"I am the leader of a united party, and in my party what I say goes."

POINTS FROM SPEECHES.

MR. CHURCHILL, in the Epping Division—"What did Mr. Ramsay Macdonald do in those two crises? (the war and the general strike). He took a line that would have left the country prostrate, first under the heels of the Germans, and, secondly, under the heels of the general strikers. Ought the disposition of the offices of the Crown, the settlement of all our affairs, to be confided to this man, who on those two occasions lapsed and slid into a position absolutely unhelpful, if not actually hostile to the vital interests of the State?"

SIR AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN, at West Birmingham—"I have been greatly fortunate in the work of appeasement in which I have been engaged in, having had the help of two men with such courage, such liberality of mind and such a genuine desire for peace as M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann. It does not lie with our foreign and domestic critics to lay against us charges that we have been slow to show our earnest desire for peace or to express in practical deductions our confidence in it."

LORD BIRKENHEAD, at Portsmouth, replying to interrupters, after a reference to Bolshevism—"I cannot understand it. A gentleman says 'bunkum.' What did Mr. Cook say? He said, 'Lenin is my hero. Moscow is my spiritual home.' I hope that you are not intending to repudiate Mr. Cook, because Moscow has already repudiated him since he had the good sense to praise the Prince of Wales. If you are going to repudiate him, too, you will leave Mr. Cook absolutely naked." (Laughter.)

MR. NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, in the Edgbaston Division:—"I will say on behalf of the Unionist Party that we are not going to accept domination or dictation from Mr. Lloyd George, whatever the circumstances may be after Thursday. We have our own principles and our own policy. We are convinced that the policy which Mr. Lloyd George has put before the country is impracticable, and where it is impracticable it would not be in the interests of the country. For practical purposes we may put the Liberal Party and Liberal policy outside the picture altogether."

COLONEL WILFRID ASHLEY, at Christchurch, Hants:—"Mr. Lloyd George's unemployment scheme is the craziest, most improvident, most impossible, and most generally to be condemned scheme for helping the unemployed, or anyone else, that I have ever come across. Probably under this scheme you would nearly double the mileage of roads in this country. Suppose they are made in twenty-four months, every one of those roads will have to be kept up out of your wages."

MR. LLOYD GEORGE, at Llandudno—Neither he nor any of his Ministers promised that they would hang the Kaiser. Referring to his Wolverhampton speech in 1918, Mr. Lloyd George said:—"I repeat that what I did was to make an appeal that we should all combine to make this a land fit for heroes. I am not boasting. I can do it if forty millions make up their minds to do it. It can be done. It is because I want to see it done that I am pleading with you to get rid, once and for all, of the scandal and inhumanity of unemployment."

MR. RUNCIMAN, in St. Ives—"Safeguarding has aroused no enthusiasm, for you cannot make a nation's trade and commerce great by peddling in gas mantles, buttons and cutlery. The attempt to accredit safeguarding with the result of motor and silk duties has failed, and the country will decide this week in many a constituency emphatically against the attempt to enrich the nation by taxing it."

MR. PHILIP SNOWDEN, in Colne Valley (referring to the application for a safeguarding duty for light textile fabrics)—"For a week a Yorkshire newspaper has given prominence to a statement that the committee has recommended that the application for a duty should be granted. I am in a position to say that that statement is not true. The committee has not recommended that the application should be granted, and the statement that it had been is a sort of red letter—a political move—used, but I think quite mistakenly, for the purpose of securing votes. There has not been a single case where the effect of a duty upon imports has not resulted in a reduction of exports, and anybody who understands the theory of trade knows that that must be the inevitable result."

MR. J. R. CLYNES, in the Platting Division—"A Labour victory is being foretold, and not merely by Labour leaders. The Prime Minister and his colleagues are repeating their admissions of prospective defeat. They agree that three-fourths of their majority has gone, and that they might get back with a majority of forty or fifty in place of two hundred. Labour is confident that it can shatter that fifty, and emerge from the fight the strongest political force in Britain."

MR. ARTHUR HENDERSON, at Burnley—"None of the Party leaders is prepared to deny the failure of our present system of industrial organisation, or to justify the unbalanced and chaotic condition of society, with its surplus wealth at one end of the scale, and a workless million suffering from semi-starvation and relentless poverty at the other. Labour refuses to acquiesce in conditions which are in conflict with high ethical ideas."

HOW DIAMONDS ARE SMUGGLED.

CLEVER CAPTURE AT NEW YORK.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

With not less than ten million pounds worth of unset diamonds being smuggled into the United States every year, American importers and dealers in precious stones and diamond-cutters have petitioned Congress to reduce the duties on diamonds to such an extent as to remove the incentive to smuggle.

The present duty on uncut diamonds is ten per cent. ad valorem; the duty on cut, but unset, diamonds is twenty per cent. The object of the appeal is to put uncut diamonds on the free list and reduce the duty on unset diamonds to ten per cent. The petitioners, when before the Ways and Means Committee, estimated that, with the premium on smuggling reduced, a ten per cent. duty on unset diamonds would yield a larger amount of revenue than the £1,800,000 collected annually from the fifty per cent. of diamond importations that come in legally and duty-paid.

Customs officials, who have been baffled in the effort to stop wholesale diamond-smuggling, have also joined in the plea, but the Ways and Means Committee in framing the Tariff Revision Bill rejected the recommendation. Thus was observed one of the fundamental theories of tariff-making—that all luxuries should be taxed.

SPECIAL DETECTIVES.

To such proportions has diamond-smuggling grown since the war, that the Treasury Department has created a trained force of specialists in the detection of this particular species of Customs duty evasion. The new force operates chiefly in New York, and is under the direction of Mr. John W. Roberts, a Customs special agent, who has spent his life in this work, and has effected many notable captures of diamond smugglers.

Since July 1 last Roberts and his men have uncovered half-a-dozen large diamond smuggling plots, and captured a score of the professional smugglers engaged in bringing in the £10,000,000 worth of illicit gems annually. But so difficult is the detection of the carriers employed that the total value of smuggled diamonds intercepted and seized does not exceed £20,000.

In the biggest case of the year up to date, John T. McIntyre, New York traffic policeman at the Cunard dock; William Ballyn, chief steward of the Berengaria; Morris Landau and Barnet Snapiro, jewellers, and John S. Steel, a Gloucester, Mass., lace manufacturer, were indicted. The diamond squad estimated that this group had smuggled in £200,000 worth of diamonds in the last three years. McIntyre was tried. The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury; the second in an acquittal. The other four defendants pleaded guilty, and testified that McIntyre was the medium for delivery of the smuggled gems.

Antwerp, Belgium, is the headquarters of the American diamond smuggling traffic. It has grown up since the war, as the result of the exceptional prosperity of the United States. The American market offers choice pickings. Millions of wage-earners are wearing silk shirts and silk stockings, and buying automobiles and "sparklers." Antwerp is not bothering about the European diamond market now. Only Americans are rich enough to buy diamonds by the quart nowadays. The big diamond smugglers of Antwerp are well known, not only to their fellow-brokers on the diamond bourse, but to the American Consul-General, and they know that he knows them. But they are too "slick" to get caught.

THE BROKERS' METHODS.

One of the three clubs of diamond brokers in Antwerp is composed almost entirely of well-known smugglers in the American traffic. Any one of these diamond smugglers will undertake the safe delivery of any amount of diamonds in the United States, without payment of duty, for a commission of six to eight per cent. This means in the case of cut, but unset, diamonds, a saving of twelve to fourteen per cent. in the duty. This is a regular, systematised business. These brokers are able to insure safe delivery of the gems in America. Belgian banks carry the insurance, and the six to eight per cent. charge by the broker for smuggling includes the premium he pays for his insurance.

An American diamond dealer goes abroad and buys, say, £100,000 worth of diamonds in various places. He takes them to Antwerp and turns them over to a smuggling-broker. The broker insures the gems for £106,000, payable to the dealer if delivery be not made. The broker takes a plain, white card and cuts it in two on a saw-tooth line. He hands one half of the card to the dealer, and tells him that the carrier of the diamonds with the other half of the card will be at the entrance of the Woolworth Building, say, at 10 p.m. on such a date, and will deliver the package of gems to whoever presents the complementary half of the card. The carrier is to bring back the two halves of the card, fitted together, as evidence that he has delivered the goods.

The identity of the carriers is the big secret. In ten years' development of this business only one such carrier has been identified. The smuggling broker does not meet his carriers in Antwerp, but in Paris or London. Rarely do carriers abscond. They are highly paid, and prefer steady employment.

INGENIOUS SCHEMES.

The members of the Diamond Squad are full of stories of the detection of ingenious smuggling schemes. One of the most diverting is an account of the smuggling of £6,000 worth of diamonds by two unconscious smugglers. One night Chief Roberts, of the Diamond Squad, was awaiting the docking of a transAtlantic liner. As he glanced at the faces of the people waiting on the dock outside the barrier, he saw a man whom he had suspected for some time of diamond-smuggling—Isaacs, let us call him—for that was not his name. Roberts noted that Isaacs knew he had been recognised by the diamond sleuth, and that Isaacs was waxing nervous thereat. Roberts decided that there was something in the wind, and that Isaacs would bear watching.

Roberts soon observed that Isaacs was trying to attract the attention of a woman, who, with the dock-pass inside the barrier, was awaiting the docking of the ship. But the woman either did not see, or did not understand, Isaacs' frantic signals. Roberts now transferred his interest to the woman. When the ship docked, the woman stationed herself at letter R. of the benches for second-class baggage examination, and presently made herself known to two second-cabin passengers whose names evidently began with R. As Roberts bore down on the trio he perceived, out of the corner of his eye, that Isaacs, watching from beyond the paling, was fairly beside himself with anxiety.

Intervening in the Customs examination, Roberts learned that the elderly passengers—whom we will call Mr. and Mrs. Rosalsky, of Warsaw—had in their baggage a feather pillow, which they had been asked to bring over for Mr. Isaacs. A cousin of Mr. Isaacs in Warsaw had brought them the pillow, saying that it was made of feathers from the geese on Grandpa Isaacs's farm, and that grandpa wished to send it with love to grandson Isaacs in New York. The woman who met the passengers was Mrs. Isaacs, wife of the nervous man outside the grating.

CAUGHT.

Roberts pounced on the pillow and proceeded to dissect it. After sifting the feathers, he found a dozen diamonds sewed into a strip of cloth. The two passengers were greatly astonished at this proceeding and protested their innocence. Roberts sent for Isaacs, who, when admitted, rushed up, exclaiming: "Let me declare my diamonds." "We have them already," said Roberts, holding up the string he had found. "Oh, but there are two strings," cried Isaacs, in alarm, lest he should lose the other string. Roberts searched the feathers again, and found the other string—£6,000 worth in all.

The plot was then revealed. A young plumber named Rosalsky had done some work for Isaacs. He told Isaacs that he was soon to bring over his father and mother from Poland. Isaacs said that he had a cousin in Warsaw who would help them with their passport. Isaacs then went to Europe, bought his diamonds, sewed them in a pillow, and entrusted it to his confederate, who, in the guise of his cousin, cultivated and aided the Rosalskys, and eventually made them the innocent bearers of the pillow. Isaacs's frantic signals to his wife on the dock had been designed to warn her that Roberts smelled a rat. The Government was unable to convict Isaacs, who, however, lost his diamonds, and the United States Treasury sold them at public auction.

DRASTIC TARIFF INCREASES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, May 28.

The House of Representatives to-day passed the Tariff Bill.

Among the principal changes made by the bill are an increase of 3 cents per pound on raw sugar, with a preference to Cuban sugar; the doubling of the duty on beef imports, and heavy taxes on agricultural imports of certain classes. The duty on maize is increased by from 15 to 25 cents a bushel; the duty on raw wool is increased to 34 cents per pound instead of 31 cents.

Cream has to pay 48 cents a gallon, instead of 20; fresh milk 5 cents, instead of 2½; margarine 12 cents, instead of 8; cheese 7 cents, instead of 5; and condensed milk 2¼ cents, as compared with 1½. These duties on agricultural products have caused considerable feeling among producers in both Canada and Australia.

DEARER CHERRIES.

The bill covers in its increases a large range of articles, including cherries, Maraschino cherries, grape fruit, hydraulic cement, mushrooms, tomatoes, onions, beans, almonds, and monkey nuts.

The bill also imposes slightly higher duties on other raw materials besides wool. There is an increase of roughly 50 per cent. in the duty on flax, flax seed and flax hackle, and on hemp.

Higher duties are imposed on certain articles, including manufactured cotton and cotton threads, and also upon such cloths as velveteens, corduroys, plushes or chenilles.

THE DUTIES ON MEATS.

The duties on meat increase the rate on fresh meat and veal to 6 cents per pound, as compared with 3 on fresh lamb to 7, instead of 4 cents, and on fresh pork to 2½ cents instead of ¾ cents. The duty on hogs is also increased.

The 25 per cent. duty on motor cars is retained, but with a proviso for the imposition of a duty in excess of this figure up to 50 per cent. in the case of countries (like Great Britain) which impose a higher rate than 25 per cent. on American cars.

The tariff on certain steel products is altered in an upward direction, while earthenware crockery and decorated ware are subject to a 50 per cent. ad valorem duty.

During its passage through the House some of the duties were stiffened up, and new duties, affecting such articles as window glass, boots and shoes, were added.

THE PUBLIC TO PAY MORE.

It has been stated by importers that the effect of the bill is that the public will be taxed 15 per cent. more for goods on the dutiable list, and that in many cases the duties have been raised to such a high figure that imports would be practically prohibited.

The actual voting on the bill was 264 for the bill, and 147 against.

A number of minor changes were introduced into the bill during its discussion in the House of Representatives, but none of them materially affect Great Britain or the Dominions.

THE INNISKILLING DRAGOONS.

GUIDON TO BE GIVEN TO ENNISKILLEN.

In March, 1927, Lieutenant-Colonel Brooke, Commanding the Inniskilling Dragoon Guards, offered to the Enniskillen Urban Council the care and keeping of the Guidon of the 6th Inniskilling Dragoons, and the Council unanimously accepted the offer. Nothing more was heard of the matter until recently, when it was published that the Guidon was to be presented to Enniskillen Cathedral, and the 2nd of August next was fixed as the date most suitable for the Church authorities. The party to bear the Guidon to Enniskillen was also chosen.

At the last meeting of the Urban Council, arising out of a letter from the Band President of the Inniskilling Fusiliers in Belfast, expressing a desire to be present on the occasion and stating that the 2nd of August did not suit, as the band would be in England, the Council expressed surprise at the changed arrangement, and wrote to Colonel Brooke asking him when he would be sending the Guidon to the Enniskillen Urban Council for safe keeping.

The Town Clerk received a letter on Monday morning from Lieutenant-Colonel Brooke stating: "I am sorry that any misunderstanding has arisen over the proposed ceremony, as I thought that the Urban District Council had concurred in the arrangements."

SIR CHARLES FALLS'S LETTER.

Sir Charles Falls wrote to Major Netterfield on the 7th April, 1929, saying: "I consulted the Rector and some others about the date of the visit, and they all agree that Friday, 2nd August, would be most suitable. I hope you will confirm that August 2nd is a suitable date. In no correspondence that I have seen so far has any other date been mentioned. The question of whether the Guidon was to be placed in the Cathedral or not appears to have been discussed. As far as I am aware, it will be placed in the Council Chamber. Your letter of 20th June, 1927, says: "The Guidon, needless to say, will be carefully preserved in the Council Chamber." I have had no correspondence with anybody which in any way alters that decision. The Guidon is not a consecrated colour, and should, in my opinion, not be hung in the Cathedral. The Council Chamber, on the other hand, is an eminently suitable place for it to be deposited.

As a result of this a new date will be arranged to meet the wishes of the Inniskilling Fusiliers to be present at the ceremony with the band.

GUARDSMAN DROWNED IN SWIMMING BATH.

Guardsman Arthur Elgie (27), was drowned in the Windsor Corporation Swimming Baths yesterday. He was bathing with another Coldstream Guardsman and got into difficulties and sank.

Elgie, who belonged to Darlington, had gone to the assistance of his companion, who was in difficulties. They clutched one another and sank.

Corporal J. Beasley, of the Royal Horse Guards, stationed at Windsor, said in an interview: "At first I thought that they were skylarking, as neither of them called for help. Seeing that something was wrong, I dived in and swam to the men. I got hold of Elgie, and brought him nearly to the bank, when he slipped from my grasp and went under. One of the bath attendants got the other man."

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND.

The parishioners of Tara and Skryne have made a presentation to the Rev. C. A. Handy to mark their appreciation of his thirty-two years' ministry among them.

The Rev. R. M. Byrn, incumbent of Santry, has been elected chairman of the local school attendance committee, on the resignation of the Rev. Father Quinn, who has been appointed parish priest of Castledermot. Mr. Byrn has occupied the post of vice-chairman for eighteen years.

The Select Vestry of Clontarf have passed a resolution congratulating the Rev. J. L. Morrow, the Moderator-Elect of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, on his election to that office.

The Rev. G. B. Fairbrother has been appointed to a canonry in Cork Cathedral, and the Rev. L. R. Fleming has been appointed Rural Dean of Collimore and Collibeg by the Bishop of Cork.

The Board of Nomination will meet soon to elect an incumbent for the Union of Killeshandra and Killegar.

THE REPARATIONS EXPERTS.

MOVING TOWARDS AN AGREEMENT.

GERMAN REQUEST FOR A MORATORIUM.

PARIS, Tuesday.

A compromise on the date of application of the Young plan, a possible compromise on figures, and a compromise on the more important German reservations, with the German suggestion for payments from the succession States, and, possibly, the question of distribution left to the Governments—these seem to be the lines on which the Committee of Experts on Reparations is moving towards an agreement.

Informal discussions continued to-day, and no meeting of the Committee was held.

It is officially stated that the Belgian claim for marks left in Belgium after the Armistice has been tentatively excluded from the present calculation of figures in the hope that it may be settled by separate negotiation. There is, however, no confirmation as yet of the suggestion made yesterday that the German Government was about to open separate negotiations on this point, though such a course is thought likely in German quarters.

THE BELGIAN QUESTION.

In any case, the Belgian delegates would insist on the settlement of the marks question being signed concurrently with the Experts' report. The Belgian Government points out that the original and larger claim was admitted by the German Government so long ago as 1919, and insists that the modified claim must now be satisfied.

The calculations of the Committee are now based on the entry into force of the Young plan on September 1 next, the end of the present Dawes year, without any overlapping of the two plans, and the figures are being worked out again on this assumption.

By this arrangement the Germans would have to pay rather more than they expected, but the additional payment of three-quarters of a Young annuity spread over the first thirty-seven years would disappear.

If the Allies can agree on this arrangement the Germans are apparently willing to accept it.

A FRENCH CANARD.

The French Press to-day reproduced a report published in Germany that the British delegates had been authorised by the British Government to make a further large concession of their claims in order to secure an immediate agreement. The British delegates stated this afternoon that there was no foundation for this statement.

As regards the German request for a moratorium for payments, it is understood that a compromise involving some form of moratorium for half the period which they asked for may be offered to them.

LIMERICK'S TRADE.

NEED OF COLD STORAGE PLANT.

At a meeting of the Limerick Harbour Board, the Mayor (Councillor M. J. Keyes) presiding, a report was read from a committee with regard to the necessity of erecting a cold storage plant at the docks for butter and eggs. The engineer submitted the opinions of several authorities on the question.

Mr. Hegarty, Secretary, Irish Associated Creameries, said that cold storage would justify its cost. Creameries within a radius of twenty-five miles of Limerick sent all exported butter through Limerick port, and very few of them had a chilling plant.

The committee recommended that a refrigerator plant be constructed at the docks at a cost of £4,000, conditional on being let at a rental of £725 a year, preferably to one of the shipping companies.

Several members did not consider that any one shipping company should get a monopoly of control, but it was stated that provision could be embodied in the terms of letting to prevent this.

On the suggestion of Mr. Ryan, C.E., who considered the Board was entitled to further particulars as to cost, it was agreed to adjourn the matter to obtain these particulars.

In reply to a member, the Harbour Engineer stated that the export of butter from the port was 3,400 tons for a period of five months last year. e

It was agreed to invest a further surplus of funds—£1,000 in Great Southern Railways 4 per cent. Debentures.

DUBLIN LABOURER'S DEATH.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST.

A verdict of "Death from toxæmia and heart failure, following tetanus, as a result of an accident received in the course of his employment," was returned at an inquest held in Jervis Street Hospital, Dublin, by Dr. Oswald Murphy, Deputy City Coroner, on the body of Edward Dunne (36), of 13 Queen's square, who died in the institution last Saturday evening. Dr. Murphy sat without a jury.

The deceased man, it appeared, was a labourer and was working in a house at Vernon avenue, Clontarf, when he received a slight wound in the groin as a result of slipping on some sharp object. He was attended to promptly, but the wound turned septic and death took place six days after the accident.

Evidence of identification was given by Mrs. Catherine Dunne, who said that her husband left for work on the morning of May 18th and returned at about 12 o'clock on the same day, when he informed her that he had met with a slight accident. As his condition did not improve during the day she sent for a doctor, who, having treated him for a few days, ordered his removal to hospital. He was taken to Jervis Street Hospital last Friday and detained a patient.

Mrs. Dunne added that on the day of the accident her husband told her that he was lifting either barbed wire or a piece of wood in the garden of the house in Vernon avenue when the nettles and grass under his feet "gave way," and he fell to the ground. The injury did not appear to be serious. He was the sole supporter of the witness and their four children.

Dr. Russell, house surgeon, Jervis Street Hospital, stated that the deceased man was treated as an out-patient on May 18th. His next visit was on May 24th, when, on examination, he was detained, suffering from tetanus and put under the care of two of the visiting surgeons. He died the next evening.

Replying to the Coroner, the witness said that the wound appeared to be "of a slight nature."

NEW OILFIELD FIND.

PROSPECTING TO BEGIN IN BRITISH GUIANA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
GEORGETOWN, BRITISH GUIANA, Tuesday.

Extensive oil prospecting is expected to begin here soon, under the supervision of experts and drillers from Trinidad and from the United States, in consequence of the announcement by the Governor that oil has been discovered in the Corentyne district. Already sixty-eight blocks of land have been leased for the exploitation of oil and minerals.

CLOSE SEASON FOR EELS.

District Justice Hannan marked summonses "proved, but dismissed," against John William and Robert Campbell, natives of Lurgan, for fishing at Emy lake for eels in the close season; and an order was sought for the forfeiture of nets.

Both the men said that they never heard of a close season for eels.

Justice Hannan explained that the close season varied in different districts, and in the Ballyshannon area, which included Monaghan, fixed or other engines for catching eels could not be used between January 10 and July 1. Rod and line might be used, and, in addition, fixed or other engines must not be used between sunrise and sunset from July 1 to January 10.

U.S. MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSE STRONG

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.
NEW YORK, Tuesday.

The Stock Market opened irregular. The wave of selling apparently has spent its force, at least temporarily, prices rebounding briskly; but opinion is sharply diverse as to whether the rally marks the end of the decline, or is merely temporary relief. A few weak spots cropped out, presumably reflecting liquidation of impaired marginal accounts. Call money ruled at 6 per cent., and it is believed that the recent liquidation released a large volume of credit, and probably obviated a month-end squeeze. Barring a sharp revival in bullish activity during the next two days Wall street expects a sizeable reduction in brokers' loans this week. Support, which was given to Industrial favourites and Investment Railroads, caused a hurried retreat by the short interest, while traders, who had been uncertain regarding the trend of the market, joined in the buying movement which resulted in numerous advances of 3 to 15 points being recorded. Federal Mining and Smelting rose 15 and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe 14 to 218, its "record." United Aircraft, General Electric and Commonwealth Power advanced 7 to 10 points. Westinghouse Electric, Curtiss Aero, American Can, Case Threshing Machine and Johns Manville 5 to 6, and Chicago, Rock Island, New York, New Haven, New York Central, Delaware Hudson, and Chesapeake and Ohio 4 to 7 points. The close was strong. Government Bonds steady; Railroad Bonds easy. The day's sales amounted to 3,932,000 shares.

Money on call closed firm at 6 per cent. bid and 6¼ asked. All business was done at 6 per cent. Sterling exchange steady. Silver ½c. lower at 53¼c.

WHEAT opened weak, 1⅛c. to 1⅝c. down on weak Liverpool cables and reports of larger Canadian offerings to Europe at lower prices. A decline in Argentine freights to Europe and reports that seeding is completed in the Prairie provinces caused further weakness. Subsequent covering brought partial rallies, but the market closed weak at declines of 2¼ to 2¾. Opening options—May, 109⅛; July, 110½; October, 108⅜. Closing options—May, 108¼; July, 109⅜; October, 107⅜. Rye easy, 3⅛c. to 3⅝c. lower. Closing options—May, 77⅛; July, 79⅛. Oats barely steady, unchanged to ⅜c. down. Closing options—May, 46; July, 46½; October, 46⅛. Barley easy, 1⅛c. to 1⅜c. down. Closing options—May, 65; July, 65⅞; October, 64¼. Flaxseed weak, 4c. to 5¼c. lower. Closing options—May, 207; July, 204.

NEW YORK COTTON.

COTTON opened steady, but 12 to 5 points lower. The market eased for a while on July liquidation and local selling owing to easier Liverpool cables and a further decline in grains; then rallied on a forecast for continued showers. Increased complaints regarding bollweevil and reports of heavy rains in Texas assisted the advance. The market closed very steady. Old contracts 10 to 23 points and Southern contracts 21 to 14 points up. Spot quiet and 10 points higher. New Orleans futures opened 8 points to 1 point lower. Prices rallied afterwards, and around 11.45 July was quoted 18.46, October 18.45, December 18.54, and January 18.55. At 1.45 July touched 18.59, October 18.57, December 18.67, and January 18.67, and the market closed 10 to 20 points up. Spot advanced 8 points.

To-day's receipts—Atlantic ports, 1,000 bales; Gulf, 7,000; Pacific nil; interior towns, 3,000.

Tin dull. Closing options—July, 43.25; September, 43.40 to 43.55; October, 43.50.

CHICAGO, Tuesday.

WHEAT was easy at the opening, ½c. to ⅝c. lower, on liquidation of May and July and reports of wheat looking splendid in North Dakota. Further declines followed owing to an absence of export demand and weakness of markets in the North-West and South-West, but later partial rallies occurred on a forecast for unfavourable rains over the South-West area. The closing, however, was weak, with futures 1⅞c. to 1⅛c. down.

MAIZE at the opening was easy and ¼c. to ⅝c. lower. Reports of seeding being rushed in Illinois and the weakness of cable advices influenced early recessions, and reports of increased Argentine offerings to the United Kingdom at lower prices brought further easiness. PROVISIONS—Lard was easy at the opening, and values eased off in sympathy with the weakness of grain. The easiness of hogs, coupled with lower foreign markets, had a depressing influence, and the close was easy, with futures 10 to 5 and spot 10 points down. Prime Western steam spot, 11.45.

AGRICULTURE IN ITALY.

SUCCESSFUL FASCIST METHODS.

COMPULSORY FARMING.

ROME, Tuesday.

The drastic Fascist methods inaugurated last autumn of sequestering farms which were badly cultivated, or not cultivated at all, and turning them over to agricultural syndicates to manage, have given successful results, it is officially announced. Thousands of acres were taken over in Northern Italy and in Sicily, notably from Prince Pignatelli and his sister.

In Northern Italy the Prefect of Rovigo, last October, took over the management of a 150 acres farm from its proprietor and confided its management to the President of the Provincial Federation of Agriculture. This official employed six families to sow and cultivate crops, which they did with such efficiency that the 150 acre farm will now produce a crop the pre-estimated value of which is 150,000 lire, it is now announced.

ESTABLISHING A PRINCIPLE.

On the basis of these results the Prefect has decided to sell the farm to a capable agricultural proprietor, and turn the proceeds over to the original owner, establishing the principle that farm proprietors in Italy have no right to own lands unless they make them productive. In the present case the preempted owner will get the proceeds of the cultivation of his lands, minus the labour and administration costs.

Similar results have been obtained in Sicily and in the Province of Marches, it is said. The Fascists are urging that this revolutionary novelty in agricultural administration and land-owning must be more widely adopted next year, which will probably be the case in view of Premier Mussolini's "Battle of Grain" and efforts to increase production.

FIGHT AGAINST INDOLENCE.

"Liberty to own land and not to cultivate it is intolerable to Fascist principles," says the Naples paper Mattino, which continues: "Fascism fights indolence and parisitism in whatever form it is found, and refuses to confuse this with liberty, which in its old sense may cover a multitude of excesses. Refusing to cultivate land on the part of the proprietor is exactly the same as sabotage on the part of the workmen."

It must be said, however, that a partial reason for some proprietors refusing to cultivate their lands was because Fascist authorities wished to dictate to them the proportion of their lands which must be sown in wheat and other essential crops.

BRITISH REVENUE.

FLOATING FUND RAISED.

The latest Treasury returns shows that revenue for the past week amounted to only £8,700,000, of which £2,700,000 was contributed by estates duties and a further £3,000,000 by Customs. Estate duties are again displaying remarkable buoyancy, the inflow to date being £3,375,000 above that of the corresponding period of last year. The Post Office, too, is doing well, the net receipt under this head amounting to £4,650,000, against £3,700,000 at this stage in 1928.

On the expenditure side the total of £8,300,000 is accounted for largely by nearly £4,000,000 in respect of supply services, and the application of £1,500,000 to sinking fund. Among other issues redemption of National Savings Certificates called for £900,000, against £800,000 received from sales; while a further £350,000 was applied to depreciation fund under the Finance Act, 1917. The net effect of these operations is to raise the floating debt by roughly £500,000. Against a rise of over £6,000,000 in the volume of outstanding Treasury bills, advances by public departments have contracted by £5,560,000.

BEAUTIFUL LEGS

Only the favoured few have been endowed by Nature with perfect legs. With many it is but a slight divergence of line which spoils the symmetry of an otherwise beautiful limb. Perhaps the ankles are too thick, the calf too fat, or the instep lacks the elegance which imparts to the leg its well-bred, fascinating appearance. Slightly rounded hips ensure that graceful carriage without which your appearance cannot assume the nobility of the beautiful, and it is just on the hips that undesirable adipose tissue is so easily formed. Slimming cures and gymnastics may reduce your weight, but they cannot give you that graceful line nor model just that part of your body—your legs—which you wish improved.

Only a PUNKT-ROLLER can do this.

The action of its many suction cups causes a natural flow of blood in the part of the body massaged—its gentle but insistent combination of kneading and suction loosens fat deposits to be carried away for ever by the livened blood circulation. Use of the Punkt-Roller leaves you with a pleasant sensation of energetic, pulsing circulation. Ten minutes daily with the Punkt-Roller is the ideal figure treatment. You can watch, day by day, your legs, hips, body, breast, arms, any part you treat with the Punkt-Roller, become slimmer and slimmer, and aglow with healthy colour. Your skin becomes youthfully taut and elastic—and you will feel fitter in every way.

Buy a Punkt-Roller to-day. But be sure it bears the Trade Mark—"Mark on the Brow"—No imitations are as effective.

SIR H. D. SEGRAVE.

COMING VISIT TO IRELAND.

Sir H. D. Segrave, who won the world's motor speed "record" at Daytona Beach, and who spent his early years at Belleisle House, Portumna, has been congratulated by the directors of the Portumna Electric Light and Power Company on his achievement, has written the following letter to Mr. M. C. Stronge, Secretary of the company:—

"Many thanks for your kind letter. Would you, on my behalf, convey to your directors my very sincere appreciation of their kind congratulations? I want to go to Ireland in the near future, and will certainly try to go to Portumna, where I spent so many of my early days."

WOMAN RATE COLLECTOR.

Miss Margaret Kelleher was appointed rate collector for Ardagh West division at Longford County Council meeting by seventeen votes to four for Mr. M. Farrell.

Eleven people were rendered homeless through a fire which destroyed two cottages at Frodsham yesterday.

AFFORESTATION IN COUNTY WEXFORD.

The Free State Department of Agriculture has written to the Wexford County Committee of Agriculture stating that the steps to be taken under the Forestry Acts of 1919 and 1928, with a view to the acquisition of portions of the mountain of Forth for afforestation, were under consideration.

The Secretary informed the Committee that a malicious injury claim lodged by the Department for damage to their forestry station at Camolin had been withdrawn.

Mr. A. McCann stated that a man who had been employed at Camolin station for nineteen years had been dismissed.

GRANTS FOR IRISH INSTRUCTION.

Wexford County Committee of Agriculture and Technical Instruction has appointed a deputation to wait upon the Free State Minister for Education to discuss the question of the payment of grants for Irish instruction, the status of Wexford Irish College, and the necessity for the Department agreeing to an official examination of pupils at the end of the scholarship term.

Holidays for the Kiddies

You can be sure they will get them if you choose one of the many safe holiday resorts in the Irish Free State served by the Great Southern Railways with miles of beautiful sandy beaches and safe bathing. Ample Hotel and boarding house accommodation

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

SMALL FIELDS AT YORK.

SIDONIA'S SUCCESS.

TALPA WINS ON THE POST.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

YORK, Tuesday Night.

There was a sharp drop to-day in the temperature from the tropical conditions we have been having lately here, but no rain had fallen to improve the conditions, so fields were on the small side—that is, for this meeting—throughout the afternoon, and they are likely to be even smaller to-morrow.

The Londesborough Plate, a weight-for-age event, produced six runners, and Mr. Anthony de Rothschild's Sidonia won this. He had not run in public since he brought off an outside chance in the Greenham Stakes at Newbury which saw the downfall of Costaki Pasha. To-day he made all the running, and won very comfortably by a length from Peradventure. Lion's Lair finished three lengths behind the second.

Sidonia is a gelding, and so is not in any of the classic races, but he should be winning good handicaps later in the season.

The Flying Dutchman Handicap fell to Talpa, an Irish-bred son of Grosvenor, whom Mr. Parkinson had when he first ran, and then sold to Sir Frederick Eley, through Donoghue. Mr. C. Gulliver, a newcomer to racing, owns him now, but he is still in the Shrewton stable, and he won a good race here by a head, getting up in the last hundred yards to beat Monk Bar.

PACE AGAINST THE FAVOURITE.

The latter was in with bottom weight, and S. Wragg made the running. The pace, however, was a bad one in the early stages and all against the favourite, Trelawny, who took a good place half-way up the straight, but then could not accelerate and dropped back again. Pictoralas came on the scene inside the distance, but Talpa, on the outside, was always going the stronger. Pictoralas finished third, three-parts of a length behind.

That seasoned plater, Cragford, still has a good turn of foot, and he won the Ainsty Selling Plate by two necks from Sundown and Joliment. The performance may not have been up to Cragford's old form, but he still was good enough to land the odds laid on him.

A North Country stable, that of Walter Pollock, at Malton, won two races, the Zetland Plate with Quartrain and the Glasgow Selling Welter with Scottish Fusilier. Quartrain is a fine good-looking colt by Tetrameter out of Proud Mary, a half bred mare who won a race here for the late Mr. Adam Scott some years ago.

STAMINA TELLS.

Blue Mermaid, a daughter of Milesius, was one of several more fancied for the race than Quartrain, but she had to be put under pressure after she had led for more than four furlongs. Quartrain then stayed on much the better, and, resisting a late challenge from Accra, a Soulouque colt, beat him by a head, Blue Mermaid losing second money by half a length.

Scottish Fusilier, who is by Royal Lancer, won his race, like a useful staying three-year-old, by a length and a half from Ferry Maid, a daughter of Bachelor's Craft.

The Newcastle owner, Mr. T. Davidson, took the last race of the day, the Knavesmire Maiden Plate, with First Shot, after the well-backed Algiers had run very green and lost a lot of ground by not keeping a straight course. Mr. Davidson bred the winner, who is by Tangiers out of Well Shot, an Irish mare who won him several races in her time.

SOME FANCIES.

The Yorkshire Cup is the chief attraction here to-morrow, and Mr. Davidson fancies the chance of his Constant Son in this, though he did not show to great advantage in the Manchester Cup. Ballynahinch has been running well recently, and is not out of it, while Mountain Lad should have come on as the result of his race at Gatwick. First Flight is set with more to do than he had in the Chester Cup, and though I expect him to run well, he may not give away the weight to MOUNTAIN LAD, who is my selection.

In the Eglinton Stakes, there is not much in it between ASPIRATION and Pirate Princess, but the preference is for the former.

FLANGE, who has won his last races in good style, may give the weight to Flittermere in the Hambleton Maiden Plate and beat Lord Derbys' filly.

West Wicklow is to make his first appearance of the season in the Somersetshire Stakes at Bath, but he may not be ready yet, and KING'S OVEN may beat him.

THE CURRAGH, Tuesday.

A fine morning.

BRABAZON'S Flying Essex went seven furlongs at a steady pace. Ballyfinaghy and others of the team were usefully employed.

BURNS'S General O'Malley and Sir Crispin went six furlongs at a smart pace.

COOMBS'S Juva travelled a fast five furlongs. Bachelor's Thrush, Lady Polly, and the two-year-olds covered a like distance steadily.

DAWSON'S Cornafulla and Lare covered a mile and a half. Vixen's Charm and Milennis went a sharp five furlongs.

DOYLE'S Homeward, Brawlie, and Battle Bridge went five furlongs sharply. White Mixture covered the same distance.

GRUNDY'S Star Eagle traversed five furlongs sharply. Golden Monarch was similarly employed. Flower Song, Prosperity, and the two-year-olds had good bouts of healthy exercise.

HUNTER'S Nell Gwynne and Stormproof cantered five furlongs.

HARTIGAN'S Duke of Athlone, Tullovin, Misanna, G.O.M., and the two-year-olds were usefully employed.

PARKINSON'S Red Fruit and Bower of Roses travelled a mile and a quarter steadily. Others covered five furlongs at a useful rate.

THE CURRAGH.

MANY CLOSE FINISHES.

J. CANTY RIDES THREE WINNERS.

DOUBLE FOR MR. PARKINSON.

Not for some time back was the attendance on the first day of the Curragh better than yesterday. This was only to be expected, for it was a perfect summer day, and the famous plain never showed to greater advantage, the recent rains, followed by the heat wave, having freshened up the country round in surprising style. It was a capital afternoon's racing, marked by the dual success of horses trained by Mr. J. J. Parkinson, and a remarkable riding feat by Joseph Canty, who rode home three winners, and only failed by a matter of a short head in another race.

Commencing with the Hamilton Hurdle Race, which attracted a field of seven runners, and was an attractive event, the interest never flagged throughout the carrying through of the full programme. Achates, the favourite for this race, gave anything but a generous display. She was well placed throughout, but failed to hold her position as they approached the second last flight of hurdles. It was at this stage that Crow Falloch drew into the lead, and, though Canty moved up Some Power from the rear to offer a challenge, the effort was of no avail, and the son of Jackdaw scored in comfortable style.

A CONSISTENT PERFORMER.

Another disappointing favourite was De Courcy, who, in the Scurry Plate, never appeared with a winning chance. It was, in fact, for most of the way a match between Tomas Minden and Princess Argosy, and the latter, always travelling the easier of the two, pulled out in the last furlong to secure a half-length victory. This daughter of Argosy has proved a very useful performer for Mr. John Farrell, and her career has been marked by consistency. Last season she won three races, as well as finishing in the first three on six occasions, and already this season she has won one hurdle race, finished second in another, and now capped these performances by a Scurries win.

BARNSTEP'S SHORT HEAD DEFEAT.

Neither Poor Lad nor Amor Vincit, the first and second in the Patriotic Plate at Baldoyle, put in an appearance for the Beginners' Stakes, and P. Behan's stable was without a representative. Barnstep, the property of Mr. H. M. Hartigan, upon whom J. Canty had the mount, was considered to hold a big chance, judging by the support accorded him, and he only failed by the narrowest margin to justify the confidence of his connections. Not being too well placed in the early stages, the favourite was left with a lot of ground to make up to overhaul Mr. Parkinson's Tyroe Lady, and he did it yard by yard, but the latter, refusing to be shaken off, held on just sufficiently long to gain the judge's verdict of a short head. In his failure to win this race Canty probably put in a finer piece of riding than in any of his successful exploits.

One is always pleased to see a member of the Dixon family win a race, for these North of Ireland sportsmen are the best supporters of racing. Crafty Captain, which belongs to Sir Thomas Dixon, and is trained by Mr. J. J. Parkinson, gave backers of favourites their first turn of luck when he won the Ballymany Plate, but it took all the ingenuity of Canty to keep Little Bob from appropriating the spoils for Mr. W. P. Gill.

FLOWER SONG'S FAILURE.

Amongst the runners for the Walsh's Hill Stakes was Montigny, who will also be amongst the field for the Two Thousand Guineas to-day. He ran extremely well up to a point, but when tackled by Lemnahye in the closing furlong sprawled badly, and, though coming at the other again, was unable to make up the leeway, and was beaten by half a length. Flower Song ran in disappointing fashion, finishing some four lengths behind the pair, and the form, if correct, rather takes away from the value of the Irish Thousand Guineas running, where Flower Song finished second to Soloptic. Lemnahye was in that race also, and was well beaten by Flower Song, who now met her at a disadvantage of 9 lbs. It may be that Lemnahye has come on a lot in the meantime, for she readily turned the tables on this occasion.

That good mare, Bannie, the property of Mr. B. O'Donnell, gave another example of her usefulness when she won the Maddenstown Handicap, in which she was set to give weight away to all the others. Riding a waiting race, Canty kept her in the rear for most of the journey, but once he set her out to catch the leaders in the straight she passed them one by one in the easiest manner, and, finally tackling Bayview, she had the latter's pretensions settled in a few strides. Bannie always runs better over the Curragh course than any other, and this was about her best performance. Details:—

Betting—6 to 4 agst. Achates, 3 to 1 CROW FALLOCH, 4 to 1 Reilly, 6 to 1 each Some Power and Another Craft, 100 to 1 any other.

Some Power dwelt at the start and Brighter Bird bolted after two furlongs. Achates carried on the running from Reilly, Crow Falloch and Another Craft to the second last hurdle. Crow Falloch then assumed command, and, holding off the challenge of Some Power, won by three lengths; two lengths divided second and third. Achates was fourth and Another Craft next. Time—2 mins. 50 secs.

After the race the Stewards called upon J. Lenehan, the rider of Brighter Bird, to explain why he continued in the race after missing a hurdle. Having heard his explanation, they cautioned him as to his future conduct.

Mr. W. J. Parkinson's Billy Kelly, 3, 7-11 ...W. Howard 0
(Winner trained by M. Arnott.)

Betting—2 to 1 agst. De Courcy, 5 to 2 Tomas Minden, 5 to 1 Helena's Gem, 6 to 1 PRINCESS ARGOSY, 10 to 1 each Some Bridge and Billy Kelly, 20 to 1 any other.

To a good start Tomas Minden went away in front of Princess Argosy, the pair soon going away clear of the others, at whose head were Some Bridge, Rattling Toi and Stratford Rock. At the distance Tomas Minden weakened and Princess Argosy heading him won by half a length; three lengths divided second and third. Some Bridge was fourth, Rattling Toi fifth, Stratford Rock sixth, Billy Kelly seventh and De Courcy next. Time, 21 2-5 secs.

3.25—BEGINNERS' STAKES of 200 sovs. Second 30 sovs., third 20 sovs. For two years old. 5 f.
Mr. J. J. Parkinson's ch. f. TYROE LADY, by Soldennis—Skehanna Maid, 8-5 ...M. Barrett 1

Sir B. Mahon's Beneventum, 8-9 ...W. Hamill 0
Mr. D. J. Cogan's Sylvan Beauty, 8-5 ...D. Ward 0
(Winner trained by Owner.)

Betting—6 to 4 agst. Barnstep, 4 to 1 Princess Isolda, 5 to 1 Tetract, 8 to 1 Overall, 100 to 8 each TYROE LADY, Fairy Flower or any other.

Tyroe Lady went off in front of Barnstep, Sylvan Beauty and Princess Isolda, with Fairy Flower and Overall at the head of the others. Inside the distance Barnstep began to close with Tyroe Lady, but in a splendid finish the latter held on to the lead, and won by a short head; a length and a half divided second and third. Overall was fourth, Ornavista fifth, Sylvan Beauty sixth and Princess Isolda next.

3.55—BALLYMANY PLATE of 100 sovs. For three years old and upwards that have never won a race value 100 sovs. 1¼ m.

Mr. F. S. Myerscough's Shrike, 3, 7-10 ...W. Hamill 0
(Winner trained by J. J. Parkinson.)

Betting—6 to 4 agst. CRAFTY CAPTAIN, 3 to 1 Bray Beau, 4 to 1 Dreamy Knight, 5 to 1 Little Bob, 10 to 1 Alison, 20 to 1 Shrike.

Alison led from Crafty Captain, Little Bob and Dreamy Knight, with Bray Beau last for about half-way. Crafty Captain then took up the running from Little Bob and Bray Beau, and went on to win by a length and a half; three lengths divided second and third. Dreamy Knight was fourth and Alison fifth. Time—2 mins. 12 4-5 secs.

4.25—WALSH'S HILL STAKES of 200 sovs. Second 30 sovs., third 20 sovs. For three years old which have not up to time of starting won a race (selling races excepted) value 100 sovs. 6 f.

Mr. P. J. Corbett's Saint Senan, 5, 8-9 ...P. Lynch 0
Mr. J. T. Rogers's Nice Token, 5, 8-6 ...M. Wing 0
(Winner trained by McCraith.)

Betting—2 to 1 agst. Bayview, 4 to 1 Lagonda, 5 to 1 each Melleray's Page, Nice Token and Sylvia Lloyd, 7 to 1 BANNIE, 50 to 1 Saint Senan.

Bayview set the pace to Saint Senan, Nice Token, Lagonda and Sylvia Lloyd, with Bannie last. Approaching the straight Bannie improved her position, and, heading Bayview inside the distance, Mr. O'Donnell's mare won by two lengths; three lengths divided second and third. Lagonda was fourth, Nice Token fifth and Melleray's Page next.

IRISH 2,000 GUINEAS.

TO-DAY'S RACE.

As befits its importance, to-day's race for the Irish 2,000 Guineas promises to provide a particularly fine contest, for though the field will not be numerically strong class is well represented, and the majority of the runners have shown good form. The following are the PROBABLE STARTERS AND JOCKEYS.

EMPIRE BUILDER (Maj. McCalmont), bl. or gr. c., by Son-in-Law—Fourfold (Persse), 9-4 ...H. Beasley
STAR EAGLE (Mr. F. Myerscough), ch. c., by White Eagle — Herod's Joy (Grundy), 9-0 ...M. Wing
MONTIGNY (Captain Harding), b. c., by Hainault—La Huppe (Rogers), 9-0 ...J. Moylan

On the strength of his performance in the Baldoyle Derby, Star Eagle is fancied by his connections, and he is, undoubtedly, a cut above the average. He has obviously come on a lot since winning the Madrid Plate last month, in which Salisbury, who was conceding 15lb., ran him to a length. To-day the pair meet on level terms, and, granted that Mrs. Mackean's representative is at his best, he should turn the tables on his erstwhile conqueror. Whether he will be good enough to win is another matter, for the opposition from across the Channel is pretty strong. Empire Builder, who is a stable companion of Mr. Jinks at Stockbridge, ran well enough early in the season to give him a chance here; while Heremon and Aroostook also boast useful credentials, the latter having won his last three races in good style. If none the worse for his effort yesterday Montigny will be started, but I have no fancy for him nor for Red Clover. It is a very open race, and it may be won by

EMPIRE BUILDER.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Closing of Entries

Owners and trainers should note that entries close to-day for the Phœnix Park and Powerstown Park (Clonmel) meetings.

Jockey's Licence Withdrawn.

At the Tramore meeting on Whit Monday C. Murphy, the rider of Chevally in the Stewards' Steeplechase, lodged a complaint against J. Lombard, rider of the winner, Brackbawn, for foul riding and putting him over the last fence. The local Stewards reported Lombard to the Stewards of the I.N.H.S., who, on investigating the case yesterday at the Curragh, withdrew his licence.

Hunter's Moon at Work Again.

Lord Derby's colt, Hunter's Moon, was given exercise yesterday on the private sand track, and was sent a mile and two furlongs at a steady pace. The colt, who developed shin-soreness as a result of his good gallop on Saturday, pulled up sound, and appears to be yielding well to treatment.

Osiris at Exercise.

Cragadour in his Best Form.

J. Lawson, the Manton trainer, yesterday gave Cragadour (J. Brennan riding) a good striding gallop over one mile and three furlongs. He was accompanied by Lucky, and Double Barrel took them along the last six furlongs. Cragadour again gave satisfaction, moving freely and in his best form.

Sales at York.

A few lots of bloodstock were offered at Walker's Sales at York yesterday. The six-year-old Wings of the Morning made 175 guineas to Captain Prior Palmer, and the three-year-old Tranwell 50 guineas to Mr. F. Myerscough. Barcaple, 3 years, sold to dissolve a partnership, was disposed of to Mr. Auckland at 11 guineas.

Trainer's First Winner.

Bernard Carslake saddled his first winner since he took up training at Bath yesterday. This was Mrs. Edgar Wallace's Benedictus, who gained a four lengths' victory in the Tradesman's Selling Plate.

Golden Lullaby.

Golden Lullaby will not be saddled for the Trial Plate at the Curragh to-day, but will fulfil her Epsom and Ascot engagements.

WEXFORD'S NARROW MAIN STREET.

MOTOR-TRAFFIC ON SATURDAY NIGHTS.

Mr. James Quigley, Chief Engineering Inspector of Roads, Local Government Department, held an inquiry at the Wexford Council offices on Tuesday into the application of the Wexford County Council for an order preventing the driving of mechanically-propelled vehicles in Main street, Wexford.

Mr. M. J. O'Connor, solicitor, for the Corporation, intimated that that body would modify their application for the order which was made through the County Council to have the use of mechanically-propelled vehicles prohibited on the Main street from 6 p.m. till midnight on Saturdays.

Mr. J. Elgee, solicitor for Wexford County Council, said that that was the first that they had heard of the modification of the application.

A FIASCO.

The Inspector said that he wanted to make it clear that the County Council or their officials were not responsible for the fiasco with which the inquiry was faced by the modification of the Corporation's attitude. The order for the prohibition of the traffic as now sought could have been obtained otherwise than by a formal inquiry such as that. It did not seem very consistent for the Corporation to back out of their request at the last moment.

Mr. O'Connor said that it was only on Saturday last that he came to have anything to do with the inquiry, and on that day, after consultation with the Civic Guards they decided to make the smallest application possible. He agreed with Mr. Elgee that the County Council should have been notified of the change.

MAYOR'S STATEMENT.

Alderman Corish, T.D., Mayor, said that it was not fair to suggest that the whole expense of the inquiry would fall on the County Council, as he made it clear to the latter body that the Corporation would bear their share, and it was only fair also to state that an inquiry into another matter was being held that day too.

Proceeding, the Mayor stated that the Corporation were forced to take steps to deal with motor traffic in consequence of the complaints of the citizens, and in order to relieve the congestion which existed in various parts of the main street, especially on Saturday nights. In view of the danger of accidents, the Corporation felt that it was their bounden duty to make representation to the County Council. The Corporation were anxious to facilitate traders and shopkeepers in their business, but with the positive danger to pedestrians, they had found it necessary to take some action.

THE EVIDENCE.

Evidence in support of the application was given by Alderman Corish, Alderman Rossiter, Mr. J. T. O'Donnell, Borough Surveyor; and Mr. T. Walsh, T.C., all of whom stated that owing to the narrowness of the Main street and the congested traffic, the lives of pedestrians were endangered by the vehicular traffic.

Messrs. A. G. Haddon (W. and G. Haddon, Ltd.), J. H. Martin (William Walker and Co., Ltd.), J. M. McCormack, and P. S. E. McCarthy (White's Hotel), opposed the amended application on the ground that business would be interfered with, and the trade of the town would be diverted to other centres.

COAST EROSION.

Mr. Quigley also held an inquiry into an application of the County Council for an order closing portion of the Rosslare-Tagoat road, which, the County Surveyor stated, had been slipping away owing to coast erosion. The application was opposed by Messrs. Wickham and James, Rosslare.

Mr. Quigley intimated that in regard to this application the order would have to issue.

NO FOOD OR CLOTHING FOR CHILD.

MONAGHAN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE CASE.

In the Monaghan District Court, when Catherine Treanor, Glenbeg, was summoned for not sending her child to school, Superintendent Mackin said that it was not a case in which the Justice should penalise at all.

Michael Treanor, the husband of the defendant, said that he worked for 2s. 6d. per day; earned 7s. 6d. last week. His wife had 40 acres of mountain land. They had seven children, and he had not food or clothing to send the child to school.

SEQUEL TO MONAGHAN APPOINTMENT.

ALLEGED INTIMIDATION.

Since the appointment as Home Assistance Officer for Clones district of Mr. John T. Finnegan, of Newbliss, trouble has arisen in connection with his residence. Mr. John McGahey, a member of the Board of Health, moved, at a meeting of that body last Monday, that the resolution appointing Mr. Finnegan be rescinded, as he did not live in the district.

Miss Duffy, the Acting Superintendent Assistance Officer, told the Board that a woman in Rockcorry informed her that Mr. Finnegan had taken up residence in her premises, and on the next day the woman said that he had not taken up residence.

Mr. Finnegan, the newly-appointed officer, in a statement made to the Board, said that he had taken up residence, and mentioned that he had got four letters purporting to be signed by Mr. McGahey, a member of the Board, threatening gunmen on him. He knew that they were not from Mr. McGahey, as he would not stoop to such a thing.

Mr. Brady suggested that the matter should be referred to the Free State Local Government Department, as he did not think Mr. Finnegan had been fairly treated in this matter.

Mr. Finnegan said that he could take care of himself anywhere.

Mr. Loughran did not believe the statements about Mr. Finnegan being threatened by gunmen. Those days were past.

Mr. McGahey—Now he comes along with this statement about four letters from me that he was going to be shot.

Mr. Brady—It appears to me there has been an amount of intimidation in this matter. We must put a stop to that kind of thing.

By five votes to three, Mr. McGahey's motion to rescind the appointment was lost, and subsequently a letter was read from Mr. Finnegan stating that he had a residence in the district and that he would carry on "in spite of all opposition."

A motion that he be given the books in order that he might take up duty at once also was carried by five votes to three.

PIG PRICES.

ENGINEERS IN THE FREE STATE.

FACILITIES FOR TRAINING.

Is there a dearth of mechanical engineers in the Irish Free State? Apparently there is not, judging from the result of inquiries made by an Irish Times representative yesterday. Every year a number of young men are trained at Bolton street, Dublin, Technical School in mechanical, motor and electrical engineering. Some of these qualify as technical instructors, while others receive a practical experience in engineering. Similar work is also done in the Pembroke Technical School, Ringsend.

The matter arises from a discussion at the Monaghan Technical Instruction Committee, at which it was stated that Irish mechanics were not available, and that the services of a full-time engineering instructor would be necessary for the next school session. One member of the Committee, in support of this, said that the last mechanic he had employed was a Scotsman.

In the School of Mechanical Engineering, at the College of Science, Dublin, young men receive a practical training in their future work, and become qualified for highly technical positions. No fewer than a hundred graduates of this school are now engaged with the Shannon Electrical Supply Board, while a number of others are engaged on the Shannon scheme construction work.

No difficulty is found in placing graduates in positions either at home or elsewhere, and at times an institution or firm may have difficulty in finding a particular type of man available.

THE PORTUMNA SKELETON.

IRELAND'S FIRST RIVERBED TYPE.

The human skeleton found by three men who were cutting turf on Stoney Island Bog, about two miles from Portumna, near Lough Derg, is believed to be the only one of that specimen of human remains ever found in Ireland. The skeleton was found resting on the original surface, with fourteen feet of bog on top.

Professor Shea, Galway University College, has pronounced them to be a riverbed skeleton of early Neolithic, or possibly of Paleolithic, man. It is the first specimen of riverbed type found in Ireland. The teeth in the skull were perfect.

The remains are those of a man, about five feet five inches in height. At the place where the remains were found there was also discovered charcoal, showing that a fire had been kindled there at some period.

The remains are now in the possession of Professor Shea, University College, Galway.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK IN DERRY.

At the annual meeting of Derry Chamber of Commerce, Mr. William M. Irons (President) in the chair, the annual report—the forty-fourth—stated:—"We have confidence in the trade revival which has so long proved elusive, and one of the most promising features of this is the absence of trade disputes. It is being realised that production is not alone sufficient, but that distribution, salesmanship, advertising, personal representation and scientific methods are going to be some of the main factors in stimulating business, provided that the goods offered are up to standard. The spirit of determination and tenacity, so characteristic of our people, will eventually triumph by paying more attention to details and organisation. The great national problem of to-day is the serious nature of the unemployment situation, which constitutes a heavy burden."

The report went on to deal with the activities of the Chamber for the year, and on the subject of the shirt and collar industry stated:—

"During the year the shirt trade showed a marked improvement over the previous year. Cotton remained fairly steady, but the expected improvement in trade on that score was not fully realised. The shipping trade was fairly good, although competition with Colonial manufacturers is becoming keener as the years pass.

"Competition from English and Scotch firms still remains keen; but buyers of better-class goods, for which Derry is famous, must come here for their supplies. Derry must see to it that this standard is maintained. It is her best weapon in meeting competition, although price also is a great factor. Detail enters greatly into the manufacture of shirts and collars to-day. Customers are increasingly demanding goods to be made to their own specification. As a result, the day of the large wholesale order is past.

"A feature worth noting is the prevailing harmony which exists between employé and employer. To this, and to the general peace in industry, can be attributed most of the steady improvement noticeable in trade generally. Prospects for 1929 appear quite good; the year has opened up well, and the hope of all manufacturers is that it may continue."

In moving the adoption of the annual report and financial statement for the past year, Mr. Irons said that, although commerce and trading had, on the whole, been satisfactory, they had to bear a share of the burden of unemployment.

"We are living in the hope, however," he went on, "that we may see the man-power of our country gradually absorbed into employment.

"In this connection we are pleased to know that the numbers of unemployed workers in the shirt and collar industry in our city at the present time are considerably under the average of past years, and we are confident that the Derry factories, constituted as they are at present, will be able to keep a firm hold on the business of which they may justly be termed the pioneers. The trades allied to the shirt and collar industry, such as box-making and laundry work, are being continued in constant employment. Hosiery manufacture seems to have got away from the depression it had to encounter for a number of years, and the outlook would indicate a return to prosperity for this important industry.

"Most of our other manufacturing businesses have been kept in average employment, and a new industry in fish-curing and kippering has been established at Pennyburn, with good prospect for a measure of prosperity."

Capt. J. Desmond, J.P., seconded the adoption of the report, and the motion was passed.

Mr. Wallace Edmiston was elected president, and Mr. John McVeigh vice-president.

TYPHUS OUTBREAK IN STRABANE.

TRIBUTE TO WORK OF HOSPITAL STAFF.

At the meeting of the Committee of Management of Strabane District Hospital, Mr. W. B. Smyth, J.P. (Chairman) presiding, Dr. J. McAdam Hill, Medical Officer of the hospital, reported that a serious epidemic of typhus had occurred in the town of Strabane during last month, eighteen cases having been admitted to hospital. A satisfactory feature of the outbreak was its mild type, there being only four deaths.

Dr. Hill expressed appreciation of the fine work of the nursing staff during a very difficult situation.

A resolution of appreciation of the work of the hospital staff was passed. It was also decided, subject to the approval of the Northern Ministry of Home Affairs, to grant the staff a bonus of £50 in acknowledgment of their devoted services.

VACCINATION DEFAULTERS IN ENNISKILLEN.

There are more than 460 vaccination defaulters in Enniskillen Union, and in a letter to the Guardians the Ministry of Home Affairs stated that, in view of the epidemic prevailing in Great Britain and the recent severe cases in Glasgow of smallpox, the risk of disease appearing in Northern Ireland was more than usually great, and the necessity for efficient administration of the Vaccination Act was most pressing. The Guardians were urged to take immediate steps to have the number of defaulters reduced.

TYPES OF ETHICAL OPINION.

LIGHT STRUCK IN THE CLASH OF VIEWS.

THE DONNELLAN LECTURES.

Dr. D. C. Broad, Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, well known by his philosophical writings, and one of the leading exponents of the "New Realism," delivered the first of this year's series of Donnellan Lectures in the Graduates' Memorial Buildings, Trinity College, Dublin, yesterday afternoon. The subject of the series is "Three types of Ethical Theory: Spinoza, Hume and Kant."

Dr. Broad, who was introduced by the Provost (who occupied the chair), said that he proposed in the course of his lectures to expound and criticise three typical theories of ethics—viz., those of Spinoza, of Hume, and of Kant. His choice of these three systems was largely determined by the following considerations. In the first place, they were extremely unlike one another, so that between them they give a very fair idea of the range of possible views on the subject, though they by no means exhausted the alternatives. Secondly, these three philosophers were thinkers of the highest order, so that it was reasonable to suppose that the types of ethical theory which they favoured would be worth very serious consideration.

Since their views differed fundamentally, they could not all be true in all respects; and it was, of course, unlikely that any of them contained the whole truth and nothing but the truth about ethics. It seemed likely, however, that each of these great men would have seen some important aspect of the truth, and that the mistake of each would have been to emphasise this aspect to the exclusion of others that were equally relevant. It appeared to him that the best preparation for original work on any philosophic problem was the study of the solutions of it which had been proposed by men of genius whose views differed from each other as much as possible. The clash of their opinions might strike a light which would enable students of ethical problems to avoid the mistakes into which these thinkers have fallen, and by noticing the strong and weak points of each theory they might discover the direction in which further progress could be made.

This afternoon the subject will be Hume.

BAPTIST UNION.

THE TEMPERANCE PROBLEM.

The proceedings in connection with the annual assembly of the Baptist Union of Ireland were continued in the Harcourt street Chapel, Dublin, yesterday.

The annual meeting of the Irish Baptist Total Abstinence Society was held in the afternoon, Pastor D. Henderson, vice-president, presiding.

Mr. W. R. Wigham, in the course of an address, said that in the Irish Free State last year nearly 14 million pounds worth of alcoholic liquor was consumed, which was a very considerable amount to be spent in a country like this, and was a very serious thing. So far as he could find out, about one-half of the people of Ireland were drinking, and one-half could be put down as teetotallers. To the credit of the Roman Catholic Church, they should remember that that Church administered the total abstinence pledge to children until they were twenty-one years old, and after that they had the Pioneer pledge. Science was on the side of temperance, and so were the insurance companies. For a hundred years there had been temperance societies in Ireland fighting against intemperance, but, if the public did not mind much whether there was a public-house at every corner or not, the Government would never stop the evil. What they would get from their Parliament depended on what members of the public said to the Government.

Pastor E. H. Grant, Shankhill road, Belfast, said that total abstinence was not something invented by the ingenuity of man, but something that God Himself had set His seal upon. All through the Scripture they would find abundant evidence of the dreadful effect of alcohol on the bodies of men and women. The question of total abstinence had not, he thought, penetrated the Churches as it ought.

PUBLIC MEETING.

A public meeting was held at night, when the chair was occupied by Mr. A. W. Tweedall, the retiring president, who introduced his successor, Pastor D. Henderson, of Victoria street, Belfast.

Pastor Henderson addressed the congregation on the subject of science and the Bible, pointing out that the Bible in some respects supplemented science, and that the Gospel was not a weak, emasculated message of modernists, but a strong, life-giving message. Both the Book of Science and the Bible, he said, deserved to be carefully studied and mastered as time and opportunity permitted. Both were brimful of most vital and useful knowledge.

The meeting was also addressed by Pastor H. Tydeman Chilvers, of the Tabernacle, London.

FINES FOR CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

DONEGAL JUSTICE'S STATEMENT.

At Raphoe District Court yesterday Justice O'Hanrahan said that he had been requested by the All-Ireland Donkey Protection Society to present the Society's certificate to Guard Beirne, of the Convoy Civic Guard Station, for his humane efforts in the protection of those much abused animals in Ireland, donkeys. He utilised the opportunity to enter a protest on his own behalf and on behalf of his colleagues throughout the country against certain ill-informed strictures made by members or supporters of the kindred society, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, upon district justices for their alleged leniency in the enforcement of the Protection of Animals Act, and against their enforced attempts to bring moral pressure to bear upon the justices so as to influence them in the discharge of their duty under that Act.

If these good people of whom he complained gave him a certain amount of credit for consideration for these poor dumb animals, they would not be led away into those foolish observations which from time to time were made in the Press. Amid laughter he said that he would consider whether it would be possible to form a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to District Justices. Those who knew his views on the protection of poor dumb animals knew how he felt on any injustice done to them.

LOST HER TEMPER.

WOMAN WHO ATTACKED RELIEVING OFFICER.

A Drogheda relieving officer who was assaulted by a woman to whom he refused to give home assistance summoned his assailant to the Drogheda District Court yesterday, when the woman was fined 6d., with 20s. costs.

Mathew Kavanagh, the home assistance officer, swore that he was paying out relief at the dispensary on April 17 last, when Mrs. Bridget Smith approached him and asked him for relief. He told her that he could not give her any relief that week, as her husband was working, and Mrs. Smith then struck him on the face twice and scattered money and papers on the floor. He had to seek the assistance of the Guards to have her removed. On three previous occasions witness had to call in the Guards over the same woman.

The defendant said that she had six hungry children waiting for food. She lost her temper when Mr. Kavanagh told her that he would not give her any relief. She struck him with a book, but not on the face. It must have been the baby she had in her arms that struck him on the face. (Laughter.)

Cross-examined by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, solicitor (for the complainant), defendant said that she had a bad temper, but never vented it on anyone but Mr. Kavanagh, who "had great spite in for her." She had seen another woman with a hold of him by the throat. (Laughter.)

Justice Conner told the defendant that it was a very serious matter, as public officials had to be protected in the discharge of their duty. He asked Mr. O'Connell what remedy he wanted.

Mr. O'Connell said that on that occasion he did not want to ask the Justice to send the woman to jail, although his instructions were to press the case.

The Justice fined the woman as stated, and allowed her six weeks to pay the fine and costs.

GRANARD COUNCIL'S PROBLEM.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES.

The financial difficulties of the Granard Urban Council were discussed at a special meeting of that body last Monday night. Recently, owing to the fact that the striking of the rate was a year and a half in arrears, an order was made that the Free State Minister for Local Government be requested to de-urbanise the township, but the Minister replied that he could not do so until the arrears were collected, and not sooner than the end of the present financial year.

Mr. Monahan proposed that a deputation be appointed to wait on the Free State Minister for Local Government for the purpose of obtaining a loan or overdraft of £1,200 or £1,500 to tide them over their present financial difficulties.

The Chairman (Mr. L. D. Kiernan)—As the proposal to de-urbanise the Council has been turned down the matter requires serious consideration. There is £1,600 or £1,700 due to the County Council, and we have no money to meet that liability.

Mr. O'Connor—There was £1,700 due up to September last, and £550 for the half-year ending March 31.

Mr. O'Connor, replying to a statement that the County Council was issuing a writ against the Council, said that the Urban Council was at present only collecting the rate for the half-year ending September, 1927, and had yet to collect for March, 1928. The debt due to the County Council was merely a paper debt, as they were the unpaid collectors for the County Council, and when the money was not collected it was not due.

The Chairman proposed an addition to the resolution: "That the advice and assistance of the Minister be sought as to the best means to adopt to get over the difficulty."

This was passed and a deputation appointed to wait on the Minister.

A TOWN RATE REDUCED.

The town rate of Mountmellick for the coming year has been struck at 1s. 2d. in the £, a reduction of 4d. on last year's rate.

A successful whist drive and dance were held under the auspices of Armagh Ladies of Charity, in Armagh City Hall, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the clothing fund for the poor of Armagh.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE FRENCH TITLES.

THE MIXED DOUBLES RETAINED.

England had varied luck yesterday in the French Hard Courts Championships at Auteuil. As generally anticipated, H. Cochet and Miss Eileen Bennett retained the mixed doubles title, beating F. T. Hunter and Miss Helen Wills in straight sets, and thus improving on their last year's performance when they lost a set against the same pair in the final.

Miss Bennett played magnificently, even her partner, Cochet, being a mere spectator, while she drove down to her opponents' feet, smashed, volleyed and placed her shots in the true Cochet fashion. With Cochet also finding his magic style again they outplayed their opponents, who showed signs of nervousness at the critical moments.

The men's singles, however, proved disastrous. Gregory, once he became accustomed to Aeschlimann's deliberately soft game, had no further difficulty, but both Austin and Collins were claimed as victims. Austin's defeat was, however, particularly honourable, Von Kehrling showing himself both a clever and forceful player. The young Cambridge Blue took some time to get going, and even his back-hand played him false, whereas Von Kehrling's back-hand strokes were continual winners. The third set was a display of particularly magnificent strokes on the part of the Britisher, who used his pace most judiciously, but Von Kehrling continued to play to the weak back-hand. The fifth set was enthralling. With the games 5-4 against him Austin equalised with a swift passing shot, but in the eleventh game he fell flat on his back while chasing a net-cord shot. This probably shook him, for the last two games went easily in favour of the Hungarian. A gallery of noted players watched the match throughout—a tribute to Austin's stylish game.

Collins' defeat by Coen was totally unexpected. The young American played consistently throughout, wearing his opponent down by steady stone-walling. It was rarely that he sent in a real winning shot, but when he did there was a Tilden touch about it. Collins was obviously exasperated by the type of game played by Coen, and finally committed many errors.

Miss Joan Ridley, who was down to meet Mlle. Bouman in the first round of the women's singles, obtained an unexpected walk-over, the Dutch lady champion having fallen ill. It was at first feared that she was suffering from ptomaine poisoning, but, fortunately, her indisposition is only slight, and she hopes to recover in a few days.

Men's Singles (holder, H. Cochet)—Second Round—H. Kleinschroth (Germany) beat A. Ernst (Switzerland)—6-1, 7-5, 6-0. Third Round—H. L. de Morpurgo (Italy) beat L. Bouzi (Italy)—6-3, 6-1, 6-1; Dr. J. C. Gregory (Great Britain) beat G. F. Aeschlimann (Switzerland)—4-6, 6-0, 6-0, 7-5; W. T. Tilden (U.S.A.) beat E. du Plaix (France)—6-3, 6-4, 6-0; W. F. Coen, jun. (U.S.A.) beat I. G. Collins (Great Britain)—2-6, 8-6, 6-2, 6-0; Baron von Kehrling (Hungary) beat H. W. Austin (Great Britain)—4-6, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2, 7-5; R. Lacoste (France) beat H. Dannon (Egypt)—6-2, 6-0, 6-0; J. Borotra (France) beat V. Landau (France)—6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Women's Singles (holder, Miss Helen Wills)—First Round — Miss J. Ridley (Great Britain) w.o., Mlle. K. Bouman (Holland) scratched. Second Round — Miss J. Ridley (Great Britain) beat Fraulein A. Loewenthal (Germany)—6-4, 6-1; Mme. Mathieu (France) beat Signorina Valerio (Italy)—6-4, 6-3; Mlle. R. Berthet (France) beat Miss E. Cross (U.S.A.)—6-3, 10-8; Fraulein A. Peitz (Germany) beat Miss Cole (South Africa)—6-4, 3-6, 7-5; Fraulein C. Aussem (Germany) beat Mlle. Payot (France)—6-2, 6-4; Mrs. M. Watson (Great Britain) beat Miss M. Morrill (U.S.A.)—6-0, 6-3.

Mixed Doubles (holders, H. Cochet and Miss Eileen Bennett)—Final—H. Cochet (France) and Miss Eileen Bennett (Great Britain) beat F. T. Hunter and Miss Helen Wills (U.S.A.)—6-3, 6-2.

GERMANY'S DAVIS CUP TEAM.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

The German Tennis Federation has selected Dr. Preun, H. Molden Hauer, H. Kleinschroth and Dr. Landmann to represent Germany in the Davis Cup match against Italy at Hamburg, June 7 to 9. Which of the four is to be reserve man will be decided twenty-four hours before the contest.

MISS NUTHALL TO PARTNER MISS JACOBS.

Miss Betty Nuthall has arranged to partner Miss Helen Jacobs, of America, in the Doubles event of the Middlesex Championships at Chiswick this week. Miss Nuthall was to have partnered Miss E. Ryan at this meeting, but the latter, who is in bed with a chill, has had to scratch. Last year in the Wightman Cup contest with America Miss Jacobs defeated Miss Nuthall.

SOUTH AFRICANS BEATEN.

Roy Malcolm, one of the South African Davis Cup team, was beaten on his first appearance on a grass court by Norman Latchford in the Middlesex Lawn Tennis Championship yesterday, but his captain, Louis Raymond, won two matches, to enter the third round.

Mrs. Molla Mallory beat Mrs. V. Burr in two sets.

EGG-LAYING COMPETITION.

CHANGES IN REGULATIONS.

The Department of Agriculture directs the attention of intending entrants to certain changes in the regulations governing the next egg-laying competition at the Munster Institute, Cork. Owing to the number of entries for recent competitions being in excess of the accommodation available, the Department have made provision for twenty additional pens for the forthcoming test.

The competition will include three open sections for (a) any non-sitting breed; (b) white wyandotte; and (c) any sitting breed other than white wyandotte. Three additional corresponding sections will be confined to holders of egg distributing (hen and duck) stations in the Irish Free State in 1929. Station-holders will not, however, be allowed to compete in the open sections with the pen entered for competition in confined sections, but may enter a second pen in one of the open sections on payment of the required fee.

A special grade for eggs is being introduced in the pullet section, and the minimum weight limits for first and second grade eggs in the duck section have been increased. During this competition the Department hopes to be in a position to furnish each competitor at the end of each four-week period with a record of each pen for that period.

Copies of the regulations may be obtained from the Department.

FERMANAGH CROWN SOLICITORSHIP.

Mr. James Cooper, solicitor, Enniskillen, has been appointed Crown Solicitor for the County of Fermanagh, and will take up the duties of his office forthwith. Mr. Cooper is one of the most prominent public men in County Fermanagh. A member of the Ulster Unionist Council, he contested South Fermanagh in the Unionist interest at the general election of 1918. He was returned to the Northern Parliament as member for Fermanagh-Tyrone in April, 1925, but retired from Parliamentary life at the end of the last Parliament.

THE POOR AND THEIR TEA.

Some time ago Enniskillen Board of Guardians passed a resolution ruling that recipients of out-door relief should not buy tea at more than 2s. 6d. per pound, and at the meeting of the Board yesterday the Clerk said that one woman was getting tea at 3s. 4d. a pound and others at 3s.

Mr. Dundas said that old maids were fond of good tea. They should tell the traders not to supply tea at more than 2s. 6d. per pound.

The Assistant Clerk stated that the tea supplied to the workhouse was only 1s. 10d. per pound.

It was suggested that in future people in receipt of relief who purchased tea at high rates should have their relief reduced.

FUNERAL OF MR. W. H. JOHNSON

A NATIVE OF LIMERICK CITY.

The death of Mr. Patrick Joseph Macnamara, one of the best known inhabitants of the Northern Rivers district of New South Wales, occurred on April 12th at his residence there at Coff's Harbour. The late Mr. Macnamara was a native of the City of Limerick, and went to Australia forty-two years ago at the age of 21, where he secured a position on the staff of the Bank of Australasia, in the State of Victoria. He made remarkable progress in the service of the bank, becoming manager of the Mirboo branch, where he resigned and entered into private business pursuits in that State. In 1905, hearing of the wonderful North Coast district of New South Wales, he journeyed thither and settled at Coff's Harbour, where he continued to reside down to the time of his death.

He was the moving spirit in all the progress connected with the district, where he fought unceasingly for harbour and railway improvements. He was the first President of the Railway League and of the Chamber of Commerce, and was engaged in many pursuits.

INTERNAL BATHING.

Constipation, biliousness, and their attendant train of other disorders, such as headache, dizziness, muddy complexion, indigestion and impure blood, are all due to an inactive or torpid liver. Drugs and powerful poisons, such as calomel, can give only temporary relief, simply because while they stimulate the liver to violent action they do not cleanse and strengthen the delicate network of secretory ducts and glands. For this latter purpose there is nothing equal to Alkia Saltrates, the deposits of certain natural medicinal waters obtainable from any chemist. One or two level teaspoonfuls should be taken in a glass of water three times a day, and continued until all signs of constipation, which is the first evidence of liver trouble, have entirely disappeared. At the same time the headaches, mental depression, floating specks before the eyes, biliousness, bad complexion and stomach trouble will vanish, and you will again experience the pleasure of enjoying life as Nature intended you should. Avoid strong pills, drugs or alcoholic stimulants, eat moderately, and drink liberally of water, in which you should occasionally dissolve a teaspoonful of Alkia Saltrates—Nature's liver clarifier—and you need never fear a return of the trouble.

NEW AGRICULTURAL SCHEMES WANTED.

The Louth Agricultural Committee has adopted a resolution asking that the Department of Agriculture should call a conference of all the agricultural committees within the Free State, to consider the agricultural schemes at present in force in the country. The resolution declared that the schemes were thirty years in existence and required to be brought more into touch with the needs of the agricultural population of the country.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN STILL DOUBTFUL.

MARCONIS OVER LOWEST.

The general election uncertainty has given a further shake-out to securities in certain directions, and caution is clearly enjoined on operators in consequence pending the result, a couple of days hence. New York Stock and Share markets are once more causing much anxiety to many by the abnormal speculation passing in securities, which has carried up both reliable and unreliable shares to dangerous heights, despite stringent monetary conditions. Government National Loans varied. War Loan 5 p.c. Stocks closed firm, but Consols and India Stocks mark a decline. Corporation and Township issues were idle, and Banks were dull and erratic. Guinness Ordinary closed under best, but others in the Brewery and Distillery group were well held. British and Irish Steam Preference were steady to firm, as the present price includes the July half-year's dividend. Marconi 10s. Shares opened flat and then tended to recover. Rails closed steady to firm. Alliance Gas gave way, as did Parent Trust Deferred and Bolands Bakery Debentures, while the Ordinary of the latter were offered under last price, but the probable price was withheld. Among Drapery Shares, Pim Bros. Preference were better, but Switzers Ordinary and Todd Burns Debentures were easier in tendency. British-American and Imperial Tobaccos eased. Coats, Courtaulds, Chemicals and especially Margarine Shares were all dull and lower, but the latter closed well over lowest. Burke Debentures were harder.

LONDON IRREGULAR.

GILT-EDGED RALLY.

The volume of business transacted in the London Stock Markets, as a whole, yesterday continued on a rather small scale, while the general tone was decidedly irregular. American advices exercised a depressing influence, some heavy depreciations being registered in Wall Street on the preceding day, and, as a consequence, international issues, such as "Can-Pacs," Radio Corps., Talking Machines, and Nicklets displayed a heavy appearance. The Gilt-edged section, on the other hand, displayed a distinctly firmer tendency, and some appreciable improvements were recorded, it being considered that the present trend of events in America is likely to benefit international monetary conditions eventually. Foreign Government Stocks experienced another extremely idle session, but quotations showed little alteration. A steadier tendency developed in Home Rails. Colonial and Foreign Rails moved irregularly; for while "Fags" marked a substantial advance, and "Bags" and Central Argentine were the turn firmer, "Can-Pacs" and Ireas went off sharply. American Rails presented a heavy appearance, some further heavy losses being recorded at the close.

The Industrial sections, as a whole, made an irregular showing, the weakness of Anglo-American issues providing the outstanding feature. In these, however, there was some recovery from the worst, though the final values were usually below those of the previous close. Artsilks and Textiles went off in several directions, but Tobaccos presented a steadier appearance. Oil Shares displayed a reactionary tendency, and Rubbers were dull, though without much alteration in values. In the Mining sections, Rhodesians continued in good request, and further improvements were marked, South Rhodesia Base Metals and Congo Borders providing exceptionally firm markets. Tins, on the other hand, showed little change, and Kaffirs remained idle.

FREE STATE NATIONAL LOANS.

In accordance with the terms of issue of the undermentioned Loans, the following amounts have recently been written off and cancelled through the operation of the Sinking Funds, leaving the present amount of the Loans at the figures as stated:—

	Amount Cancelled.	Amount Outstanding.
5 per cent. National Loan, 1935-45	£157,865	... £8,538,574
5 per cent. Second National Loan, 1950-60 (including Bonds of the External Issue at par of exchange)	£42,946	... £6,957,634

BIG CONTINENTAL ARTIFICIAL SILK FUSION FORESHADOWED.

An Amsterdam telegram of Tuesday states that it was announced at the annual general meeting of shareholders of the Netherlands Artificial Silk Company—otherwise known as "Enka"—that negotiations were proceeding favourably for the fusion to the utmost possible extent of the company's interests with those of the Vereinigte Glanzstoff Fabriken of Elberfeld.

THE SPECULATION IN AMERICA.

Definite conclusions in regard to the speculation in securities in America cannot be drawn from the market movements of one day only, and present indications may possibly be misleading, but it does look as though the psychology of speculators on the other side is undergoing a change. Until lately the apparently anomalous condition was being witnessed of the payment of excessively high loan rates for the purpose of carrying stocks, the interest yield upon which was anything from 5 per cent. down to 3 per cent. or less. The procedure was not quite anomalous, because the speculators looked for their return in capital appreciation through a rise in prices, and, while the market was a bull one, the process was likely to continue. But when the shares in question, which cost so much to carry, especially in relation to the dividend yield, fall several points instead of rising, even the American speculator is apt to get tired, and recent reports indicate that he is now selling. If the impression or belief became widespread that this is now the better policy, we might see a really substantial decline in stocks on the other side.

A BETTER FEELING.

In view of the close connection between money rates and security values, it is satisfactory that Lombard street now takes a more reassured view of the monetary outlook. It was suggested some days ago that the apprehension aroused by the threat of higher rediscount rates in America was exaggerated. The better feeling mentioned was largely due to the fact that the Bank of England obtained virtually the whole of the bar gold offering in the open market, and at a price ⅛d. per ounce less than it had to pay a week ago, when the figure was within ½d. of its statutory selling quotation. Last week, too, it may be recalled, an amount of about £150,000 was acquired for Germany. Since then the German exchange has continued low, and even yesterday was almost at the worst point (from our standpoint) since the present decline commenced, but no gold was acquired for that country. On the other hand, the American exchange quoted more for sterling, and the impression appeared to be growing in Lombard street that London is not likely to be unduly disturbed by any untoward development in New York. As also foreign houses reappeared as buyers of sterling, bills discount rates gave way slightly. The more assured feeling was reflected in prices of Gilt-edged securities.

MONTEVIDEO GAS.

It was announced at yesterday's meeting that the directors of the Montevideo Gas and Dry Dock Company propose to issue at par to the stockholders the balance of the Ordinary capital (£58,080) in the proportion of £1 for every £10 held. As the existing stock is quoted about 108, proprietors will, doubtless, readily take up the new issue.

ROYAL AND LIVERPOOL AND GLOBE INSURANCE.

The Directors of the Royal Insurance Co., Ltd., and of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Co., Ltd., announce that Mr. F. J. Williams, at present a sub-manager of the Royal Insurance Co., Ltd., and Mr. J. Dyer Simpson, at present London Manager of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Co., Ltd., have been appointed Assistant General Managers of both companys at the head offices in Liverpool, as from 1st June, 1929.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

AN AFTERNOON RECOVERY.

MARCONIS EASIER.

The shake-out in Wall street over-night caused general uneasiness in the Industrial market at the opening yesterday. However, as the session progressed prices steadied somewhat, and with New York sending better advices in the afternoon a further recovery was witnessed.

After opening at 85 Radio Corporations rallied at the close to 88, and further improved after official hours in the "street" to 89½, which left them with a net loss of 1½ on balance. Other Wireless issues had an uncertain appearance, Marconis further declining to the extent of 1s. 6d. to 78s. 3d., with the Pref. on offer at 4⅜, and Marines at 3¼. The Cables Securities remained quietly steady throughout.

The Mechanical Music section reflected American tendencies. Columbia Graphophones displayed hesitation at first, but after dipping to 14¼ a steady improvement was seen and they finished buyers at 14½, with Gramophones finally 16 11/16. Vocalions proved a better market in the late dealings at 2¼. Among the cheaper shares Metropoles recovered 9d. to 8s.

International Nickels weakened to 45¾ at the opening. Support, however, was forthcoming at this level, and the price gradually recovered to 47. Iron and Steel shares generally developed a harder tendency, but changes on balance did not amount to much.

Motor shares generally displayed a drooping tendency. Further profit-taking sales from the Provinces caused a decline of 1s. in Leylands to 56s. 3d., with Rolls-Royce on offer at 2⅜.

The Canadian-American group felt the effects of Wall street. Brazilian Traction Common came back to 50¼ at first, but rallied late, closing with a net decline of ¾ at 51. Hydro-Electrics closed unaltered at 34, but International Holdings shed a further fraction at 7¼.

Little disposition was shown to enter into fresh commitments among Electricals, though here and there moderate support was given. Of the Equipments, British Insulated found favour at 3⅞, but Associated Electrics receded to 50s. 6d., and General Electrics to 52s. 6d. Banks and Insurance issues generally maintained a fairly steady appearance.

Furness Withys came on offer in the Shipping section, and lost 6d. to 39s., while Cairn Lines and Peninsular and Oriental Deferred eased by a few pence to 10s. and 57s. 9d., respectively.

Trading in Breweries and Tobaccos remained on a small scale. Distillers met with moderate inquiry around 78s. 4½d., and Guinness changed hands up to 91s., though finishing without alteration on balance at 90s. Watney Deferred Units gave way 1s. to 61s. 6d.

Apart from "Bats," which gained the turn at 6 7/16, there was not a great deal doing among Tobaccos. Carreras "A" Shares hardened at first to 15 on the maintenance of the interim dividend on a larger capital, but reacted later to 14⅞.

Warings were again the firmest spot in the Stores group, the Ordinary further advancing 6d. to 23s. 6d., with the Preference inquired for at 18s. 3d.

Among the Catering and Food Supply Shares, Margarine issues continued on offer at first, but improved later, the Unions closing at 88s. 6d. after 86s. 9d., and the Unies at 90s. 6d. after 89s. Lipton Ordinary rallied 10½d. to 3s. 6d., and Crosse and Blackwell Ordinary stiffened to 4s.

Artificial Silks and Textiles proved very quiet throughout. British Celanese Ord. lost a fraction at 2 1/16 and Canadian Celanese at 4. Americans and Courtaulds closing unchanged. Textiles were practically stationary, except for J. and P. Coats, which eased a trifle to 69s. 3d.

The Swedish group shared in the general uneasiness, closing, however, above the lowest. Kreuger and Toll finished at 33¾ after 33¼. Swedish Match "B" shares at 19 15/16 after 19½. United Molasses gave way to 6⅜. Imperial Chemicals sagged somewhat, the Ord. to 35s. 6d. and the Deferred to 14s. 4½d. Dunlops were also on the dull side at 19s. 7½d.

RECENT ISSUE DEALINGS.

Dealings commenced in the 1s. Ord. shares of Rubber Processes, a few transactions taking place at a trifle above par. Associated Automatics eased to 10s. 3d., as did Automade Sales to 4s. 10½d., Kleenglas to 5s. 1½d. and Lancashire Electric New to 27s. 9d. Decca Records proved a dull spot, falling in the later dealings to 12s., at which they closed with a loss of 1s. 7½d. Brownlacs shed 6d. to 8s., while Continental Tintex gained 3d. to 4s., with Sphinx Electric Ords. a similar amount better at 2s. 7½d. N. C. Metals receded ⅛ to 5⅞, and Equitable Office Building Common finished a point lower at 39.

OIL SHARES FINISH BETTER.

At the commencement of business in the Oil Share Market yesterday the tendency was dull, transactions being on an extremely small scale, and prices of a few specialities quoted easier. Later, however, a better tendency developed. The Eagle issues were on offer at the start, but came into request later, a fair demand being reported on Paris account, while option buying on a good scale was also in progress, more particularly of Mexicans. Shells also opened easier, but were a better market in the afternoon, Paris buying of these shares also being reported, while a fair local demand arose and the price quickly responded. A fair option business took place in British Controlled Common, but it failed to influence the quotation. Price movements in other directions were of an unimportant character.

RUBBER SHARES NEGLECTED.

Interest remained on an extremely small scale in the Rubber Share Market yesterday, but, despite the paucity of business and the rather easier tendency prevailing in the commodity market, share values were well maintained. In the commodity market a somewhat easier tendency was apparent at the outset, but a steadier tone developed later. Spot and June was sold down to 10¼d. per lb. and July to September to 10⅝d. per lb., while October to December, after touching 10⅞d., finished at 11d. per lb.

FREE STATE EXCHEQUER RETURN.

CUSTOMS CONTINUE GOOD.

The Free State Exchequer Return from April 1 to May 25, 1929, shows that Revenue is £26,333 more and Expenditure £41,741 less than in the same period of 1928. The figures are:—

REVENUE.		EXPENDITURE.

MEXICAN CORPORATION, LTD.

The directors propose to cancel 10s. of each of the £1 issued shares by reducing the nominal value to 10s. per share. This means a reduction in the nominal value of the issued capital of £500,000. Subject to the resolutions being passed by the shareholders and the reduction of capital being confirmed by the Court, the Corporation, the circular states, would be in a position to commence the payment of dividends in respect of the current year.

LONDON MINING MARKET GENERALLY IDLE.

NORTHERN RHODESIANS VERY ACTIVE.

The Mining Market as a whole yesterday was idle, though the almost boomlike conditions prevailing in the corner devoted to Northern Rhodesians imparted an air of cheerfulness and activity to this part of the house. Kaffirs were again featureless, the few irregular changes indicating fairly accurately the amount of business passing. The Northern Rhodesian issues were again very active, and Congo Border was a strong feature. These shares were depressed some little time ago owing to the fact that a fairly large line was overhanging the market, but since these have been absorbed into strong hands the market has never looked back. Naturally, after the sustained rise of the past few days some substantial profit-taking was indulged in, but the shares on offer were readily taken, and although the final quotation was well below the best point touched, a further substantial gain on balance was recorded. Diamonds were hardly mentioned, and the only quotable alteration was a small shrinkage in Consolidated Diamond shares. The price of tin was fractionally harder at £196 3s. 9d. per ton, but the share market remained indifferent. Although there was a slight drop in the price of copper to £72 7s. 6d. per ton, the share market was distinctly harder under the lead of Rio Tinto, which, after relapsing heavily in the morning, recovered and left off nearly a point to the good. Tharsis and one or two others moved up, but Namaqua were dullish. Elsewhere, Minerals Separation were strong in sympathy with Congo Borders, and San Francisco moved up, but Ellyou were flat, despite the latest encouraging news from the property, and Burma Corporation lost the turn. Closing prices:—

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

ANTOFAGASTA (CHILI) AND BOLIVIA RAILWAY.—The directors will call a general meeting for 11th proximo for the purpose of increasing the total of the Ordinary capital, which now stands at £5,578,560. The amount is not named, but it is added that it is recommended that the capital proportion of the cost of the change of gauge be adjusted by the free issue to the Ordinary stockholders of £15 stock for every £100 held. This new stock is to rank for dividend as from January 1 last. The company's accounts are made up to the end of December.

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA.—Dividend of 4 per cent. on paid-up capital stock for quarter ending 30th June, 1929.

BROWNLEE AND CO.—Dividend on Ord. shares of 10 per cent. for year, free of tax. (Usual rate.)

BARNAGORE JUTE FACTORY. — Final dividends for the year ended March 31, 1929, of 2½ per cent. on the Preference Shares and 50 per cent. on the Ordinary Shares, both less tax, making 5 per cent. and 75 per cent. for the year respectively. (Same.)

BRANDON SHIPPING.—A dividend of 5 per cent., less tax; carry forward, £517.

DOLOO TEA—Final dividend of 10 per cent., less tax, making 15 per cent. for the year.

ELECTRIC CONSTRUCTION CO.—The following dividends recommended:—Final dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum on the Pref. shares, and a final dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the Ord. shares, both under deduction of tax.

FREDERICK SMITH—Final dividend on Pref. shares at 6 per cent. per annum to March 31st, 1929, and final dividend on Ord. shares at 10 per cent. per annum, and a bonus of 7½ per cent. on Ord. shares, all subject to tax; carry forward £9,042.

GLENSHIEL RUBBER.—A dividend of 7½ per cent. for the year, less tax, against 5 per cent.

JALINGA TEA—Final dividend of 15 per cent., less tax, making 20 per cent. for the year.

KURAU RUBBER.—A dividend of 5 per cent. for the year, less tax, against 4 per cent.; carry forward, £7,359.

LAW UNION AND ROCK INSURANCE—Dividend for half-year of 6/- per share, less tax.

MEXICAN RAILWAY CO.—For the half-year there is a total credit to net revenue of £70,093. Deducting differences in exchange, £9,342; Debenture interest, £82,869, and Mexican income tax, £7,275, there is a debit to net revenue of £29,394, raising total debit of net revenue from £861,252 to £890,646. Although the accounts for the half-year showed a loss, and no payment is due to the trustees, the company was able to redeem 10 per cent. of the original amount of the registered "A" Stock as on January 1, 1929, and it is proposed to redeem a further 10 per cent. on July 1 next, thereby reducing the amount outstanding to £313,485.

STANTON IRONWORKS—Final dividend of 6 per cent., tax free, making 10 per cent., tax free, for year. (Unchanged.)

STEWARTS AND LLOYDS OF SOUTH AFRICA—Dividend declared at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the First Cum. Pref. shares for the half-year to 30th June, 1929.

SHAKOMATO TEA ESTATES—Dividend for the year 1928 of 10 per cent., less tax. (Same.)

THE DECCA RECORD COMPANY, LIMITED.

INITIAL PROGRESS.

The statutory meeting of the Decca Record Company, Ltd., was held yesterday at Winchester House, Old Broad street, London, E.C.

Sir Sigismund Mendl, K.B.E. (the Chairman), who presided, said—Since the incorporation of the company very considerable progress has been made in completing the installations of the record factory at New Malden. The necessary recording in preparation for the first release of records has been carried on expeditiously. A number of prominent artists have placed themselves under contract with the company, and negotiations are well advanced for the addition to our catalogue of other artists of international repute.

Records are now in production, and the Board have decided to release a comprehensive supplement of Decca records on the 1st July. This release will be followed by regular supplements each month, and, in addition, with the expert and rapid facilities your company have for recording, special releases will be made of up-to-date numbers from time to time.

Your company has acquired practically the whole of the shares in the Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd. Certain of the directors of that company have retired, and the directors of the Decca Record Company, Ltd., have been co-opted. We have, therefore, unified the control of the two companies, and this will enable your directors to formulate a progressive policy for both Decca records and machines, and to amalgamate departments of both companies as necessary, so as to give a maximum of efficiency with the utmost economy in administration and organisation.

With the connections and goodwill established by the Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd., in all parts of the world, there exists both at home and abroad a very large demand for Decca records, and dealers and agents are alive to the important position which the Decca record will hold in the gramophone world.

It will be the policy of your directors first to establish the home trade, and, in the meantime, to make the necessary preparations for the supply of the various countries of recordings both of international and local character, which will build up a world-wide reputation for Decca records.

The proceedings closed with a cordial vote of thanks to the Chairman and confidence in the Board.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS EASIER.

There was less pressure for money, and, while old loans were renewed at 5 per cent., fresh advances over the night were usually obtainable at 5 to 5¼ per cent. Weekly fixtures went on at 4½ per cent.

Bank Rate Discount changed February 7, 1929: 5½%

The tendency of bill rates was not quite so firm. Fine three months' bills were quoted at 5⅜ to 5 7/16 per cent., and the new Treasuries were not better than 5⅜ per cent.

Of the £560,000 of South African bar gold available in the open market yesterday, £80,000 was divided between India and the home and Continental trades, while the Bank of England announced the purchase of £489,211. It was also announced that 8,000 sovereigns had been received from abroad. The net influx to date is £443,153. Selling of a general character caused fresh weakness in silver, the spot price falling ⅛d. further to 24⅝d., while forward was fixed 1/16d. lower at 24 11/16d. per ounce. No demand is reported at the lower level. Gold fell ½d. to 84s. 11d. per fine ounce.

The German exchange finished at about the lowest level yet reached, namely, 20.34½, showing a movement adverse to sterling of ½. There was an appreciation also in Belgian belgas, Italian lire, Dutch guilders and Swedish kroner, the Amsterdam rate falling back to 12.06 7/16. Swiss francs, the Austrian and Hungarian currencies and Danish kroner were all cheaper. The New York exchange moved more favourably to sterling, closing at 4.85. Montreal was ⅛ lower at under 4.88⅞. Apart from a recovery in the Japanese exchange to 1s. 10 1/16d., the Eastern exchanges were steady.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE DIRECTORATE.

The Directors of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Co., Ltd., announce that Mr. A. Kentish Barnes and Mr. R. Q. Wilson have resigned their offices of Chairman and Deputy Chairman, respectively, of the company. Mr. W. R. Glazebrook has been elected Chairman and Mr. A. Kentish Barnes, Mr. A. A. Patton, C.B., and Mr. A. E. Pattison have been elected Deputy Chairmen. The following gentlemen have been elected to a seat on the Board of Direction of the company:—Mr. Frederick Alan Bates, Sir Edward Fleming Bushby, Mr. Philip Remington England, Mr. Frederick Hynde Fox, Mr. George Bevan Heyworth, Mr. Hugh Lewis, Mr. Maxwell Hyslop Maxwell, C.B.E.

SOUTH AFRICAN R.O.P.

A scheme has been provisionally arranged whereby the controlling interest in Atlas Petroleum, which has been exploiting Russian Oil Products in South Africa with considerable success, yielding a profit of £80,000 in the first year, will pass to Messrs. Carlis and Donaldson, a syndicate which has been prominently identified on a large scale with alluvial diamond operations in the Lichtenburg district, with Tanganyika Diamonds, with kinemas and with other recent flotations. It is suggested that the company's capital be increased by £200,000 to £350,000.

MEXICAN CORPORATION CAPITAL RECONSTRUCTION.

It is proposed that the capital be reduced from £1,400,000 divided into 1,400,000 shares of £1 each—of which 1,000,000 have been issued and are now outstanding and are fully paid up, and 400,000 are unissued—to £900,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of 10/- each and 400,000 shares of £1 each, and that such reduction of capital be effected by cancelling paid up capital which has been lost or is unrepresented by available assets to the extent of 10/- per share upon each of the 1,000,000 issued shares and by reducing the nominal amount of each of the said 1,000,000 issued shares to 10/- accordingly; that subject to the confirmation by the court of the said reduction of capital, and immediately upon such reduction taking effect, each of the 400,000 unissued shares of the company of £1 be subdivided into two shares of 10/- each; that subject to confirmation by the court of the said reduction of capital, and immediately upon such reduction taking effect, the capital of the company be again increased to £1,400,000 by the creation of 1,000,000 new shares of 10/- each.

LEGAL TENDER NOTE FUND.

The amount of legal tender notes in circulation shows a further fall of £434,489 10s. The total amount outstanding on May 25 was £5,677,497 10s., consisting of £692,847 10s. in 10s. notes, £2,188,950 of £1, £1,945,540 of £5, £815,770 of £10, £13,840 of £20, £11,750 of £50, and £8,800 of £100.

GOLF.

THE SENIOR CUP.

CLOSE MATCHES IN THE SECOND ROUND.

The second round matches in the Senior Cup were played last evening at Dollymount, and to-day at 5.15 Milltown and Royal Dublin will meet in the Leinster final.

In the first match yesterday Milltown had an easy passage, beating Castle by five to one, the other being halved; while Portmarnock experienced an unexpected set-back, losing to Royal Dublin by 4-3.

E. F. Kilduff and H. Thrift gave Milltown a good start against Castle by winning their matches; but Thrift had to go to the home green to beat C. Blood-Smyth, although he won the first four holes. The Castle player had equalised matters going to the ninth, which Thrift won, and then ensued a ding-dong struggle homeward; but Thrift at the 18th literally banged the ball into the hole from the edge of the green for a 3 and the match. The one Castle victory was secured by R. Beattie, who played almost to scratch to beat H. J. Moore by 4 and 3.

J. D. McCormack and Cecil West played scrappy golf as leaders of Portmarnock and Royal Dublin; but it was a close match to the 17th, where MacCormack pulled it off. On the way out he won the 1st, 2nd and 5th, West taking the 6th and 9th, and MacCormack turned with a bare lead. They were on a level footing at the 12th, where MacCormack accidentally moved his ball on the green; but West required three putts at the 13th, and he had a similar lapse at the 15th. The match looked like ending at the 16th, over which the Portmarnock man drove, West being short on the left; but MacCormack's chip did not get him up, and he lost the hole to a 4. However, West's well-played second to the 17th was also over the fast green, and 4 gave MacCormack a hard-earned win.

Walter Carroll and C. S. Wallis also had a stern set-to to the 17th, where Wallis balanced the score for Royal Dublin, after having the worse of it to the 12th, being 3 down at the 4th, square at the turn and two down at the 12th.

The match between J. F. Jameson and H. S. Watson was decided at the 19th in Watson's favour. It was the closest of the series. Watson was one up turning for home, and the first hole won on the inward half was the 18th, where Jameson squared, a 4 at the tie hole giving Watson the match. T. Healy did not give W. J. Gill a chance on the way in. He was putting beautifully, his figures from the 9th being 5, 4, 3, 4, 4.

BANK OF IRELAND G.S.

COMPETITION AT FOXROCK.

The Foxrock course was in splendid condition yesterday for the annual outing of the Bank of Ireland Golfing Society. The weather also was delightfully fine, and about 90 members of the Society thoroughly enjoyed the day. The competition was for the handsome trophy presented by the President, Mr. Jos. X. Murphy, and the result was a very popular win for Major W. N. Foster, D.S.O., who has been captain of the Society since its inception. The putting competition resulted in a tie.

A large number dined in the clubhouse. Amongst those present were the following directors:—Capt. A. R. S. Nutting, Sir Lingard Goulding, the Right Hon. Andrew Jameson, Mr. H. J. Millar, and Mr. T. S. Martin.

President's Cup—Major W. N. Foster (10), 3 up; D W. Harris (18), 1 up; E. A. Doyle (24) and J. M. Diver (9), all square; E. L. Warren (13), 1 down; W. R. Egan (16) and R. Eaton (20), 2 down.

Putting Competition (9 holes)—Tie for first prize between J. W. Lyndon and C. W. Gibson with 16.

HERMITAGE OPEN WEEK.

The Hermitage Open Week will begin on June 4, and will extend over the 8th. The first day (Tuesday) will be devoted to ladies singles and foursomes. The popular mixed foursomes for the President's prizes will be held on Wednesday. On Thursday there will be the men's singles, and the week will close on Saturday with the men's four-ball against bogey.

FARRELL AND DUDLEY AT HERMITAGE.

It was inadvertently stated yesterday that Johnny Farrell, the American Open Champion, and Ed. Dudley, another of the U.S. Ryder Cup team, would play one match at Castle next Saturday. Both forenoon and evening matches are fixed for Hermitage. Dr. J. D. MacCormack and Matt McDermott being paired against the visitors in the morning and William Holley and William Nolan being the local couple for the second match. The Americans will arrive to-morrow. Farrell, it will be recalled, was runner-up to Hagen for the Open Championship, and he has been showing excellent form in the big tournaments in the meantime.

WHITSUNTIDE MEETING AT LAHINCH.

The Whitsuntide Open Week at Lahinch concluded last Saturday. The meeting was a most enjoyable one, the weather being favourable, and the competitions were most attractive. The club annual general meeting was held on Whit Saturday, Major R. de Ros Rose (Limerick) being again re-elected President, and Mr. R. Simcox (Cork) was selected for the captaincy.

CRICKET.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY V. ULSTER.

INNINGS VICTORY FOR TRINITY.

Following up their recent successes, Dublin University gained another decisive win yesterday, when, in the College Park, they defeated Ulster C.C. by an innings and 26 runs. Having scored 77, at the close of Monday's play, in reply to the Northern total of 236, the University batsmen were seen to great advantage yesterday, and, thanks chiefly to a fine stand between P. A. Thornton and T. H. Dixon in support of the fifth wicket, the home side were able to apply the declaration with seven wickets down and 125 runs on. Smart bowling and fielding accounted for the speedy dismissal of the Ulster side for 99 runs, leaving Trinity winners as stated.

A feature of the home batting was the splendid display by T. H. Dixon, who, with his captain, Thornton, added 117 for the fifth wicket. Dixon hit well all round the wicket, and when the innings was declared he had topped the century by 13, and was still unbeaten. He was at the wickets one and a half hours without giving a real chance, and among his hits were eleven boundaries. Thornton batted freely for 58, a contribution which included one 6 and five 4's. Lloyd, P. O'M. Dixon and McVeagh also showed good form for their respective contributions. Parsons, with 4 wickets for 49, came out the most successful of the Ulster bowlers.

The visitors never looked like making a stand in their second innings. From the very outset things went poorly, and in less than two hours the side were dismissed for 99. T. H. Dixon, Thornton and Kenay all had a hand in the bowling honours, the first-named coming out with the splendid analysis of 4 wickets for 19 runs. Score:

CLONGOWES V. PEMBROKE.

Clongowes Wood College inflicted a heavy defeat upon Pembroke at Clongowes yesterday. Batting first, they ran up the fine total of 244 for 5 wickets before declaring, and then got rid of the opposition for a paltry 55. The boys gave a very consistent batting display. The best innings was that of P. J. Kelly, who, coming in when things were going none too well, showed a fine defence and the ability to pick the right one to hit. J. R. Johnson and W. O'Sullivan also passed the half century. L. M'Mullen, who made 29 in excellent style, was the only Pembroke batsman to offer resistance to the fine bowling of Campbell and Hickey. Hickey, bowling slow-medium right arm, made the ball swing a lot, and had 5 wickets for 8 runs. Campbell, bowling at a faster pace, with a sharp off-break, captured the other 5 for 27. Score:—

YACHTING.

THE WATER WAGS: BUCKINGHAM CUP.

Until cross-protests—between Pansy and Phyllis, first and second respectively in the first tie for the Buckingham Cup—will have been heard by the Committee, it is not possible to say what boat actually wins the tie sailed on Monday evening.

There were seven boats out on this occasion. There is a handicap start always for the Buckingham Cup, and at 6.42 p.m. the two with the longest allowance, Amyl and Blue Bird, were sent away over the starboard course. Moosmie followed, 2 minutes 20 seconds later. Then after an interval of 20 seconds Pansy and Mollie followed, and again after a 20 seconds interval the two scratch boats, Phyllis and Coquette, went away.

There was little more than a westerly air over the water at the time, but a semblance of a breeze was picked up at once, and they carried it through their three rounds. At the close of the first their order was: Amyl, Pansy, Phyllis, Blue Bird, Mollie, Coquette, Moosmie. Pansy and Phyllis were flying protests.

Pansy finished the next round with the lead, Phyllis coming next, and then Coquette, Mollie, Amyl, Moosmie, Blue Bird, in the order named.

In this order they entered the final round, on which the only changes to be noted were Mollie taking third place from Coquette, and Moosmie dropping back to last. Finish:—

	H.	M.	S.
Phyllis—Mr. G. A. Newsom	8	20	34
Mollie—Mr. A. B. Snow	8	23	0
Coquette—Mr. G. H. Jones	8	24	16
Amyl—Mr. G. Shackleton	8	25	24
Blue Bird—Dr. G. Pugin Meldon	8	26	8
Moosmie—Messrs. Horner and Somerville-Large	8	26	32

Mr. H. R. Newland was officer of the day.

HOWTH S.C.: LAMBAY RACES.

The annual Lambay Races of the Howth S.C. are due to be sailed on Saturday:—First gun for the Small Cruisers at 3.55 p.m., their starting gun (5 minutes later) to be the first gun for the 17-Footers Course, round Lambay (to be left on the port hand), leaving Ireland's Eye to starboard going out and to port when returning. Entries from Small Cruisers and 17-Footers from Kingstown will be very welcome, and we understand that H.S.C. is approaching the D.B.S.C. Committee to have the first tie for the Commodore's Cup for 17-Footers postponed, if possible, to allow boats to go to Howth.

SOUTHEND WEEK.

ASTRA WINS THE HARWICH MATCH.

The first big event of Southend Yachting Week, which opened on Saturday last, was a match for prizes of £80, £20 and £10, given by the town inhabitants, for the big class cutters of over 21 metres rating, the course for which was from Harwich, where the yachts had been racing over the week-end, to Southend.

The entries were as follows:—
Shamrock (cutter)—Sir Thomas Lipton.
White Heather (cutter)—Lord Waring.
Astra (Bermudian)—Sir Mortimer Singer.
Candida (Bermudian)—Mr. H. A. Andreal.
Cambria (Bermudian)—Sir William Berry.

The course was about 48 miles, and Shamrock, which was the scratch boat, was called upon to allow White Heather 1 min. 36 secs., Candida 5 mins. 36 secs., Astra 6 mins. 24 secs. and Cambria 6 mins. 48 secs.

The start was at 11 a.m., and there was a good easterly breeze. All the boats carried a full spread of canvas. The wind was a fine one for nearly the whole passage, which was made in good time. They made an excellent start, White Heather and Shamrock leading across the line. At the Beach End Buoy the order was Shamrock, White Heather, Candida, Cambria and Astra. This order was maintained to the East Ooze, which Shamrock left on the wrong hand and gave up. White Heather led home, but only got third prize, Astra and Candida saving their time on her. The corrected (official) times of the finish were:—

	H.	M.	S.
Astra (winner)	3	2	11
Candida (second)	3	24	32
White Heather (third)	3	26	20
Cambria	3	28	2

There was also a private sweepstakes between three of the International 12-Metre Class—viz., Mr. Tom Sopwith's Mouette, Mr. Benjamin Guinness's Iris, and O. C. R. Fairey's Flica. They were started at 10.30 a.m. Iris had the best of the start, crossing the line ahead of Flica, with Mouette last away. The latter, however, secured the lead at the Cork Sand Buoy, and held it to the finish, which was a very close one, as will be seen by the following official times:—

	H.	M.	S.
Mouette (winner)	3	36	19
Iris (second)	3	36	54
Flica	3	38	7

There will be a full days' racing for the big classes at Southend to-day.

CHESS.

ARMSTRONG CUP.

A further step was taken last night towards the completion of this year's prolonged contest for the Armstrong Cup. Mr. J. Reynolds (Dublin) resumed his game with Mr. N. McCluskey (Sackville), and converted a very even position into a decisive win by the early capture of a piece. Had he only drawn Sackville would have won the match and the cup. In the two remaining games a draw by either Mr. Whelan or Mr. Barry will secure the cup for Sackville.

At the other end of the scale, where there was also a tie, no move has yet been made for the play-off between Blackrock and Dublin University. This is unfortunate, because the loser will be excluded from the senior competition next season, and until the match is played it is impossible to tell the clubs eligible for either section.

THE JUNIOR SECTION.
Although the junior Armstrong clubs have long since completed their contest, a meting of representatives is due for another purpose closely touching. A handsome silver shield has been offered to the Leinster Union for competition in the junior section. The donor's name may not yet be mentioned, until some authoritative step is taken to consider his generous offer.

THE BOWESMAN CUP.
The first year's contest for the Bowesman Cup has just concluded. The finish lay between Messrs. T. P. Kane, P. W. Whelan (Sackville captain) and P. J. Laracy. Messrs. Kane and Whelan drew and Mr. Laracy beat Mr. Whelan. Mr. Kane then beat Mr. Laracy, from whom he won the cup by the score of 1½ to 1.

PRODUCE AND FOOD MARKETS.

Salford—Smaller show Irish Cattle and slow trade. Leeds—Cattle, fair trade. Cambridge—Large show, unchanged prices. Dublin—Butter quiet, steady; Eggs cheaper; Poultry, short supplies, quickly absorbed; Fruit, good supply, fair inquiry; Vegetables, glutted supplies and prices easy; Potatoes, big supplies, old pressed for sale, new 3d. per lb.; Fish, fair supply and demand; Grain idle and values nominal; Hay, large supplies and slow to sell; Straw, slow trade. Tin lower and Copper easier. Rubber steady. Wheat cargoes depressed. Bacon dearer at Manchester.

CATTLE.

SALFORD.—On offer: Beasts 761 (decrease 314), sheep and lambs 6,776 (increase 1,401), dairy cows 53 (decrease 17). Marked falling off was recorded in Irish fat cattle, only 144 being penned, as compared with 376 in previous week, or 232 less. Irish dairy cows totalled 43 (decrease 23); 98 Irish lambs available, 65 more, but quality left room for improvement. Rather slow trade experienced for fat cattle. In sheep and lambs, with exception of heavy weights, demand very fair. Best English fat cattle quoted 10½d. to 11d., best Irish around 10d., secondary grades 9d. to 9½d. good fat young cows around 7½d.; small clipped sheep around 1/3½, others 1/- to 1/2, Welsh lambs 1/6 to 1/7, others 1/5 to 1/6 per lb. Cows suitable for dairy purposes met rather slow trade at £18 to £25 per head.

LEEDS.—Fair trade in beasts, which numbered over nine hundred, prices ranging from 10½d. for small heifers down to 7d. for cows. Sheep, numbering over 3,800, made from 1/1 for choice small clips down to 6d. for tups. Lambs fetched from 1/6. Fair trade.

CAMBRIDGE.—Beasts 444, beef 11/- to 12/6; sheep 661, mutton 8/- to 10/6, lamb 1/6 to 1/8; pigs 1,043, bacon to 13/-, cutters to 13/6, porkers to 14/-; calves 161. Fat cattle a large show and no alteration in prices. Calves in sharp demand. Store beasts—Special spring sale; large supply. Large not quite so good; smalls values maintained. Fat sheep and lambs—Large numbers offered and late rates realised. Fat pigs—Normal supplies came to hand and prices were lower. Store pigs a fair trade.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN GRAIN—Idleness is the most pronounced feature appertaining to this trade, and values are difficult to gauge accurately for Irish oats; whites, say, nominally value for 14/9 to 15/6, and blacks 14/3 to 14/9 per barrel.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT cargo market depressed, and prices 6d. per quarter lower, following the weakness of North American quotations, with buyers reserved White Pacific July, also August-September quoted 41/-; Rosafe (63½lb.) afloat 38/3, June 38/-; Australian afloat 41/6 to 42/-. Parcels dull at 6d. to 9d. per quarter decline: No. 2 Northern Manitoba June sellers 41/9, No. 3 do. 40/4½; Rosafe (63½lb.) June 37/9; Australian afloat 41/-, No. 5 Manitoba, per Minnetonka, afloat sold 35/9. Futures quiet and easier; July sold 39/6 to 39/7 and 39/6, August 39/7, and November 40/- to 39/10 per quarter 480lbs. basis No. 3 Northern Manitoba. MAIZE cargoes neglected and prices eased on lower first-hand offers; Plate steamers afloat sellers 34/3, June 34/6, July 34/9, August 35/-. Parcels easier; Plate April-May sold 33/3, May-June 33/3 to 33/1½, June-July 33/3, July-August 33/4½, August-September 33/9 and 33/7½ per 480lbs. BARLEY dull, and easier; parcels of No. 3 Canadian Western June 29/3, No. 4 do. 27/6; No. 2 Federal American 28/9, Persian July-August 28/3, Karachi 37/9 per 400lbs. OATS inactive; Plate May-June sellers 21/9, No. 1 Canadian feed 22/6, No. 2 do. 21/9; Chilian afloat 21/6 per 320lbs.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—The weakness in America and the Argentine had a depressing effect here and forward deliveries of wheat gave way considerably during early trading, then fluctuated moderately according to the offerings, finishing over the worst point, though marking a heavy decline. C.i.f. parcels wheat No. 3 Manitoba (Vancouver) arrived sold at 34/9 per qr. C.i.f. parcels MAIZE River Plate May-June sold at 33/3, June-July 33/4½, July-August 33/6, August-September 33/9 per qr. Wheat on the spot dull and lower. Maize spot parcels quiet and easier at 7/7 for old and 7/10 per cental for new crop River Plate. FLOUR quiet and officially unchanged; straight run 33/- per 280lbs. ex mill, but lower prices are being taken. Graded wheat futures gave way from the outset until 1½d. to 2½d. per cental decline had been registered, then prices fluctuated fairly, the market closing 1½d. to 2½d under Monday night, December being most affected. River Plate maize options closed ¼d. lower.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—There is again a moderate business reported in Continental, and Irish remains steady at late rates, but American still generally quiet, and backs easier at 87/- to 94/- per cwt. HAMS attract rather more attention owing to the brilliant weather, but, with free supplies, no change is made in values. Shoulders quiet and unaltered. LARD on the spot partially 3d. per cwt. lower in sympathy with easier c.i.f. quotations; American refined now 61/3 to 63/3 per cwt., and little demand experienced. CHEESE firm at the recent advance for New Zealand, with a moderate demand. BUTTER steady at recent currencies. EGGS quiet at 11/3 to 12/6 for fresh Irish hen and 12/- to 12/3 for duck per 120.

MANCHESTER. — BUTTER — Shipments of Danish and Swedish, not including Gothenburg, to Northern ports for week ended May 25th, totalled 29,539 casks, increase 309 casks. Market opened quietly steady after the holidays for Continental makes. Irish creameries affected rather firmer tendency. Choicest qualities quoted:—Danish 164/- to 168/-, special dairies extra; Swedish 164/- to 166/-, Finnish 164/- to 166/-, Irish creameries 162/- to 165/-. Colonials nominal. BACON—Shipments of Danish and Swedish, 15,024 bales, decrease 2,655 bales. Firmer tone for all cures on shorter supplies. Irish held for full late rates. General quotations:—Irish 117/- to 129/-, North of Ireland rolls 136/- to 142/-, according to weight and cure; Danish 108/- to 114/-, Swedish 103/- to 109/-, Dutch 102/- to 108/-. LARD easier; English refined 66/6, boxes, wholesale; American 61/3 to 61/9, according to brand. CHEESE—Weather conditions affecting Cheshire. Choicest grades maintain late rates, but lower grades neglected; New Zealand dearer, white 91/- to 92/-, coloured 93/- to 94/-, fancy Canadian, white 106/- to 108/-, coloured 104/- to 106/-, late makes 2/- to 3/- lower. EGGS—Shipments of Danish and Swedish, 2,805 cases, increase 48 cases. Market quiet. Irish Free State stamped extra selected 12/6 to 13/-, selected 11/9 to 12/3, mediums 10/6 to 10/9, ducks 12/- to 13/-, Northern Ireland 17lb. unstamped 14/-, 15lb. 12/6, 13-14lb. 11/6 to 12/-, English hen 12/6, Polish blues 10/- to 10/3.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE.—Imported fruits in good seasonable supply, with fair inquiry at generally unaltered prices. French strawberries (first arrival), of fair character, and made 30/- to 32/- per crate, or 7/- to 8/- per handle of, perhaps, 5lb.; French cherries 14/- to 15/- per chip. Of local-grown vegetables there was, perhaps, the most glutted supplies brought in since these Corporation Markets opened. Cabbage, cauliflowers, rhubarb, scallions were in superabundance and difficult to sell only at unusually low prices. A few Scotch shipping were helpful to sellers, but it appears the indifferent shipping facilities and belated deliveries seriously curtail their operations. A few special loads of cabbage at opening went 15/- to 20/- and 25/-, but subsequently business lapsed into idleness when large loads of good hearted York cabbage of anywhere from 70 to 100 dozen count proved difficult to find buyers for at 4/6 to 5/6 and 6/- per load. Cauliflowers 1/6 to 2/6 and 2/9 per dozen, afterwards 8d. to 1/3. New Skerries-grown Queen potatoes 2½d. to 3d. and 3½d. per lb.; Swede turnips and mangolds each 1/- per cwt.; rhubarb 1/6 to 3/6 and special 4/- to 5/6 per dozen bundles; lettuce 4d. to 1/- and extra good hearted 1/3 per dozen; carrots 2/- to 2/3 and 2/6 per dozen bundles; leeks 1/- to 1/6 do.; scallions 3d. to 6d. per bundle; Tripoli onions 4d. to 8d., beet 4/- to 6/- per bag; white turnips 6d. to 10d. per bundle; radishes 4d. to 8d. per dozen bunches; parsley 2d. to 4d. per tray; sage 3d. to 6d., mint 3d. to 6d., thyme 2d. to 3d. per bunch. A large carry-over of stuff on several auction banks.

DUBLIN POTATO.—Supplies of old potatoes still big and pressed for sale at a wide range in values. City prices anywhere from 3/6 to 4/6, inferior less, and selected lots in some hands quoted 4/9 to 5/- per cwt. New County Dublin sand-grown potatoes on vegetable market made 3d. to 3½d. per lb and seconds 2d. per lb.

DUBLIN POULTRY—Market remains very bare of chickens, duckling and young tender fowl, and no appreciable or steady improvement in supplies can be looked for until a month hence. Trade equal to a quick absorption of everything coming to hand. Chickens over 2lb. weight 1/6 to 1/7 per lb. Young fat hens, etc., 3/- to 3/6, others 2/- to 2/6, inferior 1/-. Choice heavy duckling 4/6 to 5/6, mediums 3/6 to 4/-, stores 2/- to 3/-, old ducks 1/- to 2/- each. Rabbits 1/1 to 1/4 each; graziers 2/6 to 10/- and 12/- per dozen. Guinea fowl 5/6 each.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG—The butter position is difficult to gauge accurately, and certain creamery quotations last week close a couple of shillings lower, but the trade appears to be optimistic with regard to the situation and do not think there is much room for lower prices. However, markets are moving in a quiet groove, and much depends upon cross-Channel movements. The stone wall attitude of holders of New Zealand and Colonial produce at the other side is certainly favourable to Irish creamery trade, and 1/- rise is spoken of yonder, but Danish advices coming easier may have some contrary influence on creamery value. Spot prices here for choice standard creams 1/5½ to 1/5½, good mediums 1/5, factories 1/3½ to 1/4; farmers' butter 1/1 to 1/3½ per lb., and coming in in fair order is clearing well. Eggs, as anticipated, open a cheaper market this week, and on a slack trade may further weaken. However, prices may so far be written a good 1/- per 120 under last week, but currencies are still relatively high for cold storing operations, and it is now almost too late for such. Duck eggs very slow, poor trade. Selected case arrivals of hen eggs 10/6 to 11/6, and from reliable sources perhaps 12/-; extra selected heavy fresh eggs 12/6 to 13/- and 13/6 per 120, mediums 9/9 to 10/3, smalls, etc., around 9/-. Duck eggs 10/9 to 11/6 per 120.

DUBLIN FISH.—Market offered a fair supply of local and country fish, including 36 packages salmon, 17 chests lobsters, 60 boxes herrings, 20 of mackerel, and 222 boxes mixed stuff from two steamers. Trade good for fresh fish. Salmon dearer, 2/8 to 3/- per lb. Best live lobsters 15/- to 20/- per 13, seconds 10/- to 12/6, others 5/- to 7/6 per lot. Turbot 1/- to 12/- and brill 6d. to 5/- each. Best soles 25/- to 40/- per lot, fair 20/-, mediums 15/- to 17/6, slips 5/- to 10/- per lot. Half-boxes plaice 30/- to 60/-, dabs, etc., 15/- to 25/-, white soles 20/- to 30/-, whiting 20/-, 60/- and 70/-, codfish 20/- to 55/-, hake 20/- to 70/-, pollock 15/- to 25/-, ling 17/6 to 25/-, conger eels 15/- o 25/-, ray 10/- to 15/- and 20/-, mackerel 5/- to 6/-, and herrings 10/- to 12/6 average.

MANCHESTER MEAT.—Home-killed beef: Sides 8½d. to 9½d. Mutton—Hoggs 1/- to 1/2, spring lambs 1/4, ewes 8d. to 8½d. Chilled beef—Hind quarters 5d. to 6½d., fore quarters 3½d. to 4½d. Frozen beef—Hind quarters 5½d. to 6d., crops 5½d. to 5½d. Mutton—Wethers 5½d. to 6½d., ewes 5d. to 5½d., lambs 7½d. to 10d.

BILLINGSGATE FISH.—Fair supplies; fair demand. Soles 15d. to 19d., slips 14d. to 18d.; salmon: English 31d. to 33d., Scottish 33d. to 36d., Irish 32d. to 34d. per lb.; live eels 10/- to 28/-, dead 8/- to 24/- per draught; turbot 5/- to 7/-, brill 6/- to 8/-, plaice 5/- to 9/-, halibut 7/- to 10/-, lemon soles 8/- to 10/-, hake 5/- to 7/-, haddocks 3/- to 7/-, skate 2/- to 4/- per stone.

PRODUCE.

LONDON.—SUGAR—No change in spot prices, but consuming demand only moderate. Terminal sections quiet but steady; May raw quoted 7/7¾, August 7/10½, December sold 8/3½ to 8/3 and 8/2¼; combined March 8/6½ to 9/5¼, white August 10/5, December 10/8¼. COCOA—Spot slow market; forward positions weaker; Acra F.F. October-December sold 42/- f.o.b., terminal March sold 46/10½. TEA—Ceylon sales of 22,887 packages were accorded fair competition, but prices disclosed irregularity in most cases, while frequently ½d. to 1d. per lb. down. This was partly accounted for continued falling off in quality. Pekoe sold 1/0½ to 2/2, broken Pekoe 1/11 to 2/2¼, orange Pekoe 1/3¼ to 2/3, broken orange 1/6½ to 2/4¼. Of China descriptions there is a sustained demand for fine Keemuns, with sales at 2/5 to 2/6; low siftings from 6d. to 7d. are well sought after. Cables from Hankow report quality of new season much better than last year, and sellers hold for firmer prices; Keemuns from 2/7 to 3/3, according to quality. SPICE—Pepper market dull and forward positions lower; sellers were more aggressive. Lampong May-July 1/3½, August-October 1/3¼, Muntok 2/2½ and 1/11½ respectively. Cloves dull, unaltered. JUTE market steadier, but trade quiet. Firsts May-June sold £30 2/6 to £30 5/-, June-July sellers £30 10/-, July-August £30 15/-, July-August new £31 15/-, August-September £31 10/-, September-October £31 5/-, lightnings May-June quoted £29 15/-. HEMP—Manila sparingly offered and firm; J2 June-August quoted £38, K sold £33 10/-, L1 £34, L2 £31 10/-, M1 July-September £32. African Sisal remains in a strong statistical position owing to comparative dearth of Mexican. SHELLAC quieter; fair T.N. spot 197/6, August sellers 196/-, October sold 200/- and 199/-, December sellers 203/-. COPRA—With sellers predominating, prices further relapsed; Straits S.D. June-July to Rotterdam quoted £21 12/6, Ceylon £23 15/-, smoked South Seas to Marseilles £20.

RUBBER opened quiet and easier, but became steady; spot and June sold 10¼d., July-September 10½d., October-December 10¾d to 11d., January-March 11 5-16d. OILS—Linseed easier; spot 28/9, July-August 28/4½, September-December sold 28/6, January-April quoted 29/-. Rape inactive; crude spot 41/-, refined 43/-. Cotton steady; crude Egyptian spot 27/6, common edible 34/-, deodorised 36/-. Coconut dull; Ceylon spot drums 36/-, May-June 32/9, Galle ditto 32/3. Turpentine slow; American spot 46/6, May-June 44/9, July-December 42/6 per cwt. OIL-SEEDS—Linseed quiet and easier; bold Bombay to London May-June, also June-July £18 10/-, Calcutta to London May-June, also June-July £17 5/-, July-August £17 6/3, Plate to Hull May-June, also June-July £15 13/9, July-August £15 15/-, August-September £15 16/3, September-October £15 17/6. Rapeseed quiet; Toria to Hull-Continent May-June, also June-July £18 18/9. Cottonseed easier; Egyptian black to Hull June £8 17/6, July £9, with white sorts at 10/- per ton less respectively; Bombay June-July £8 6/3. Groundnuts inactive; Coromandel machined May-June £18 2/6, June-July £18 5/-, July-August £18 8/9, August-September £18 11/3. Castorseed slow; Bombay May-June £17 10/- per ton.

LIVERPOOL.—CANE SUGAR quiet, with sellers of basis 96 deg. pol. parcels June-July shipments c.i.f. to U.K. at 8/6½ per cwt. COCOA—African on spot remains quiet. Fine fermented Accra in bond without quotable change at 47/-; forward shipments slow of sale. For fair fermented Accra f.o.b. sellers intermediate crop June-August shipment at 39/6, and new crop October-December 42/6 per cwt., both B. clause. COFFEE—Market a shade steadier at the lower prevailing rates. OILCAKES—Imported brands attracting limited notice. Linseed descriptions continue at £11 for American, £11 5/- Bombay expeller, and £11 10/- River Plate, all c.i.f., May-June shipments. Egyptian undecorticated cottonseed early shipments remain at £7 ex ship. Burmah groundnut to arrive held for £8 15/- 39 per cent. and £8 7/6 36 per cent. c.i.f. May-June shipments. Liverpool-made palm kernel feeding stuffs in quiet request, with prices showing no further change at £9 crushed meals, £8 15/- cakes, and £8 per ton sweetened crushed meals ex mills. RUBBER—Para hard fine spot 1/- plantation spot and June 10½d., July-September 10¾d. per lb. values.

LIVERPOOL AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.—A fair supply of farm produce was offered at yesterday's market, and the following prices were obtained:—Potatoes: King Edwards (Lincoln) 5/6, Irish red soil 4/-, Irish light soil 3/6 per cwt.; new Majestic 17/- per cwt.; spring cabbage 1/6 to 2/-, cauliflowers 3/- to 3/6, cucumbers 4/- to 6/- per dozen; rhubarb 6d. to 8d. per dozen bundles; carrots (washed) 4/-, Swede turnips 4/6 per cwt.; Spanish onions 8/- to 10/- per box of 120lbs., Egyptian onions 6/- to 7/- per cwt., spring onions 4d. to 5d. per dozen bunches; lettuce, long round, 2/2 to 2/3 per dozen; radishes 8d., leeks 8d., parsley 1/-, mint 1/-, sage 1/6 per dozen bunches.

LIVERPOOL SUGAR.—The following are Messrs. Tate and Lyle's (Ltd.) quotations:—Crystals—No. 1 24/9, small No. 1 24/3, No. 2 23/-, bright 22/10½. Granulated—Standard 22/6, H.T.S. 22/7½, coarse 23/4½, fine 23/4½ ex refinery Liverpool, less 1½ per cent. discount. Cubes ex refinery in London—No. 1 25/6, H.T.S. 25/3, afternoon tea 25/9, less 1½ per cent. discount.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.—American futures declined during the morning in sympathy with New York, but the market was better supported in the afternoon, and prices partially recovered. Sales 5,000 bales (exports 100). American futures steady: May 9.90d., June 9.81d., July 9.83d., August 9.82d., September 9.80d., October 9.79d., November 9.77d., December 9.77d., January 9.78d., February 9.79d., March 9.82d., April 9.83d., May 9.85d. Egyptian Futures—Sakels: May 15.83d., July 16.08d., October 16.31d., November 16.27d., January 15.57d., March 16.66d.; Upper: May 10.99d., July 11.10d., October 11.46d., November 11.49d., January 11.66d., March 11.88d.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW.—Yesterday's hay market was of larger dimensions than previously. There was fair buying on prime strong qualities of horse and cow hay, which proved just difficult to clear, but trade was slow and tedious for old meadow descriptions of fodder, particularly soft and poor-coloured stuff. Prime first crop hay 5/- to 5/3, and occasionally fancy loads 5/6 per cwt.; second and third crop 4/3, 4/6, 4/9 and 5/-; best strong old meadow 3/6 to 4/-, medium 2/6 to 3/3 and 3/6, other sorts 2/- to 2/6 per cwt. Only a few loads of loose wheaten straw, which were privately disposed of; baled wheaten 3/6. The small arrival of oaten straw proved just enough to cover a slow trade and averaged 3/- to 3/3 per cwt.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

TIN LOWER AND COPPER EASIER.

At first change the market for TIN displayed quiet features, and prices slightly irregular on weaker Eastern cables, cash on balance marking a decline of 7/6 and forward 5/- per ton; standard cash quoted £195 15/- to £195 17/6, three months £198 15/- to £199, settlement price £195 15/-. 650 tons changed hands, cash at £195 10/- to £195 15/-, three months £198 10/-, £199 and £198 15/-; English ingots quoted £196 15/- to £197 5/-. In the East 225 tons reported sold on the basis of £200 15/- c.i.f. COPPER again easier on selling pressure, though offers were fairly well absorbed, cash on balance ruled 7/6 to 10/- and forward 10/- to 12/6 ton lower; standard cash quoted £72 to £72 5/-, three months £71 7/6 to £71 12/6, settlement price £72. 850 tons sold three months at £71 10/- to £71 7/6; electros quoted £84 to £84 7/6, wire bars £84 7/6, best selected £74 to £75 5/-, strong sheets £112. LEAD in fair support and market generally steady. 750 tons sold, good soft foreign pig May at £23 12/6 to £23 13/9, June £23 11/3, August, also September, £23 7/6; settlement price £23 12/6; English quoted £25. SPELTER steady, with dealings on a fair scale. 600 tons sold. May at £26 17/6, June £26 11/3, July £26 10/-, September £26 8/9 to £26 7/6, settlement price £26 17/6. ANTIMONY—China Regulus May-June quoted £31 5/- to £31 10/- per ton c.i.f. Second Session—Tin quiet, 185 tons sold, three months £199 and £198 15/-. Copper dull, 100 tons sold, three months £71 15/- to £71 17/6. Lead slow, 100 tons sold, good soft foreign pig September £23 7/6.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL.—There is little change to report. The market is quiet and steady, with quotations firm. The scarcity of scrap is helping the pig iron position to some extent, as more use is being made of pig iron.

WE have received instructions from the Executors of the late Mrs. Argue, TO SELL BY PUBLIC AUCTION, AT OUR SALEROOMS, MAIN STREET, STRABANE, ON TUESDAY, 4th JUNE,
LOT 1—All those valuable Premises known as "Lifford House," in which the late Mrs. Argue had for many years carried on the business of a Private Hotel. The property is centrally situated in Lifford, the county town of Donegal, and is of a most substantial character, consisting of a spacious hall, diningroom, drawingroom, smoke room, 13 bedrooms, bathroom (h. and c.), 2 w.c.'s, together with china pantry, boxroom, kitchen, housekeeper's sitting-room, servants' rooms, with 2 additional pantries. The property is in excellent repair and attached is a fine enclosed yard, with coalhouse, wash-house, stabling, sheds, byres, and other offices, and is also free of all rent.
LOT 2—All that garden (at present laid out in grass), containing 3 roods and 16 perches, Statute measure, or thereabouts, held for ever free of rent.
LOT 3—All that garden, containing 1 rood and 18 perches, Statute measure, or thereabouts, held for ever free of rent, and is at present planted and sown with vegetables, etc., for the season.
DESCRIPTIVE PARTICULARS.
This is the only hotel accommodation in the town, which is the centre of the Circuit Court, County Council, Customs and Post Office officials.
A valuable and lucrative hotel business has been carried on by the late Mrs. Argue for many years. The premises are in every respect qualified, should a purchaser think fitting to apply for an hotel licence, and would be very suitable for conversion into public offices. The premises are within a few minutes' walk from Lifford and Strabane Stations, where connection can be made with any part of County Donegal, Dublin, Belfast, and Londonderry.
Terms of Sale—Deposit of £25 per cent. and £2 10/- per cent. Auction Fees at time of Sale, remainder in accordance with conditions of Sale.
